Atlantic Hop Still Awaits Fair Weather

WESTBURY (N. Y.) Sept. 19 (AP)—Guarded by two deputy sheriffs and two torpedo men assigned by the Navy Department, the Sikorsky biplane S-35 stood idle in its hangar today awaiting favorable weather for the New York-to-Paris nonstop flight.

Capt. Rene Fonck, who will be commander of the flight, visited the hangar for a few minutes, scanned the weather reports briefly, and then departed.

Tuesday still stands as the tentative date for the hop-off, but the start may be delayed beyond that date. The weather report today showed no change in the unfavorable conditions.

HEAVY LOSS IN OLIVE OIL MILL BLAZE

Fire Sweeping Ranch Near Roseville Destroys Plant and Other Property

ROSEVILLE, Sept. 19. (AP)—Fire today swept the Stoccato ranch, five miles east of here, destroying an olive oil mill, prune-drying sheds and other buildings valued in excess of $100,000, and endangered property for miles around. A bucket brigade of 500 farmers prevented the loss of farm buildings immediately across the road.

Fed by 4000 gallons of olive oil, flames leaped hundreds of feet into the air and fire and living cinders fell on buildings two miles away. Thousands of spectators were attracted from miles around by a heavy blanket of black smoke.

The Bank of Italy was named as the principal loser in the fire, which destroyed mill machinery, the olive oil mill, 4000 gallons of olive oil, prune-drying sheds, a bunkhouse, a barn, fifteen tons of hay and three tons of almonds. Insurance partially covered the loss.

SIX DEAD IN IOWA FLOOD

Sioux City Fears New Innundation from Floyd River; Odanah, Wis., Fights to Save Levee

CHICAGO, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—The waterlogged Middle West, which has worked frantically for the last few days strengthening levees and dams in a battle to check the spread of flood waters of streams, swollen by torrential rains, over farm lands and towns had a slight respite today while Florida was extracting itself from the devastation of a leveling hurricane.

The death toll of the Middle West was raised to six last night, when four were drowned by the sweeping waters of the Floyd River, which swept through Northwestern Iowa on the heels of a blast of rain, hail and lightning.

The situation generally was reported favorable unless more rain came. Sioux City, whose surrounding lowlands were inundated by waters which swept away $1,000,000 worth of property and live stock, reported the waters of the first flood under control, but feared a second damaging flood from waters of the east branch of the Floyd River.

ODANAH THREATENED

Odanah, Wis., threatened Friday by waters rising against the White River dam, was endangered from a new source today from the swollen waters of the Bed River. Residents of Odanah hastened to the dam to strengthen it while others fled to safety of higher ground, fearing that the White River dam would break.

Beardstown, Ill., threatened for three days by the upward surge of the Illinois River, was believed safe from further inundation today. The water rose only a fraction of an inch higher today and the United States Weather Bureau at St. Louis announced that the peak of the flood would be reached Monday.

From Ohio to Nebraska throughout the Central States, preparations were under way for the vast program of reconstruction which awaits the abatement of the high waters. Highways must be rebuilt, railroad tracks relaid, while thousands of homes and buildings must be rebuilt and many more basements will be emptied of their present capacities of water.

SEARCH FOR DEAD IN SIOUX CITY FLOOD

SIOUX CITY (Iowa) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—More than 500 families were forced from their homes last night and early today by flood waters of the Floyd River and damage will probably run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. At 5 o'clock this afternoon the crest of the flood had passed into the Missouri River, but still a large section of the city was covered with water ranging from a few inches to seven and eight feet. Police and firemen, assisted by Federal officers and private citizens worked all night with rowboats reaching for hundreds who though repeatedly warned had refused to abandon their homes. Today rowboats are easily navigating streets where street cars ordinarily run and where traffic ordinarily is heavy.

The stockyards district was flooded, but, it is said, none of the packing companies suffered heavily due to precautions, while stock from the yards had been removed to higher ground.

A second rise in the flood at Merrill, fifteen miles upstream from Sioux City, was reported at noon today but it lacked several feet of being as high as the crest of the flood when it passed there Saturday so no further damage is anticipated.

In the vicinity of Merrill Saturday morning several hundred head of stock were drowned, one farmer losing 400 head of hogs and fifty head of cattle, while others lost in smaller numbers. Between Sioux City and Lemars, Illinois Central, Northwestern and Great Northern railroads each lost several feet of track. Late this afternoon, it was stated, the Illinois Central had made repairs which would enable trains to reach the city from east direction, the first since Friday evening.

The flood waters of Big Sioux River and Dry Creek, which raced through the streets of Hawarden Friday night and Saturday, have receded and no further damage is anticipated. One man, C. M. Fleischmann, retired business man, was drowned there when he attempted to cross a street Friday night.

SUCCESSOR TO RODGERS APPOINTED

Commander H. Bartlett Placed in Charge of Navy Pacific Air Squadron

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19. (AP)—Commander Harold T. Bartlett has been selected to succeed the late Commander John Rodgers in command of the special squadron of flying boats under construction at the naval aircraft factory at Philadelphia.

The squadron, when completed, will be flown via the Panama Canal to San Diego for experimental work with the fleet in long-distance flying, and after these tests the Navy Department will decide whether another nonstop flight from the California coast to Hawaii will be attempted.

Commander Bartlett, a pioneer naval aviator, served with both British and French air forces during the World War, and was awarded the Navy cross for bombing raids against the enemy. He was appointed to the Naval Academy from Connecticut, his native State, in 1906.

TRAIN GOES INTO RIVER IN MEXICO

Loss of Life, Believed Heavy, May Never be Known, Survivors Say

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—The exact number of the drowned probably never will be known, but many persons must have died when all but two Pullmans of a train were dragged by the engine into the River La Laja Thursday when a steel bridge collapsed near Obregon station on the Laredo-Mexico City line, according to John Seymour of San Antonio, Tex., a passenger. Seymour arrived here after a three-day detour.

The swollen stream practically covered the wreck, he said. The river had risen until it reached the upper structure of the bridge, which was about seventy-five feet long, spanning a gully sixty feet below. The engineer, according to Seymour, failed to slacken the speed of the heavy engine, which rushed headlong into the stream when the trestle collapsed, carrying with it the express and mail car, and one second and one first-class coach. Only two Pullmans remained on the ground.

The engine crew and the express and mail clerks were either crushed to death or drowned. The second-class coach was entirely under water, all passengers drowning, as they had no way of escape, Seymour believes.

No Pullman passengers were killed. Among the Pullman passengers were their baggage. John Whipple, American oil operator of Tampico, also has arrived here from the wreck and tells a similar story.

The driver of the car, Albert Goodwin, a senior at Stanford University, escaped practically unhurt.

LOSS HIGH IN MILLIONS AND THOUSANDS MADE HOMELESS

West Indian Hurricane Leaves Devastation and Death in Wake Along Lower East Coast; Food and Aid Rushed to Area

JACKSONVILLE (Fla.) Sept. 19 (AP)—Estimates of the loss of life from the hurricane which swept over lower Florida amounted to more than 1,000 late tonight in revised figures from the storm stricken area. The casualty list in the Miami section, which bore the brunt of the storm, was placed at 804 by Jerry H. Owen, general superintendent of the Florida East Coast Railway. He estimated 500 dead in Miami; 250 in Hollywood and fifty-four in Hileah, both of the latter places being suburbs of Miami. Other reports placed the dead in Fort Lauderville at 100 and in Moorehaven section at 140.

Additional indications of the appalling toll of the storm were given in a message picked up here by an amateur wireless operator from Sheriff Henry Chase of Dade county, appealing to Gov. Martin for help in obtaining 600 coffins. The message was relayed by telegraph to the Governor at St. Augustine, where he had gone from Tallahassee to expedite the movement of troops and relief to the stricken area.

As relief workers penetrated the storm sections and wires were recovered, additional reports saw the death list from the most terrible of Florida storms mount rapidly.

With more than 38,000 people homeless and the injured placed at more than 2000, first efforts were given to reaching the people with food and medical supplies. Reports from all sections of the district brought stories of suffering and want. It was not practicable to obtain anything like accurate check of the dead and injured tonight.

The gale, reaching a velocity of 120 miles at Miami Beach Saturday, whipped across the Everglades and had an estimated intensity of between seventy-five and ninety miles an hour when it passed over the west coast into the Gulf Sunday.

The west coast was spared of casualties but heavy damage was done to citrus fruit, growers and shippers said.

Miami was without drinking water from Friday evening until Sunday. Shipping in the Miami harbor was hard hit and thousands of buildings were reported damaged. Water was knee deep in the streets, persons arriving at West Palm Beach from Miami said.

The storm raged for nine hours at Miami. A brief lull caused hundreds to venture forth, to be caught in a second wind more terrific than the first.

The Pullman Company offered its full resources in equipment to carry doctors, nurses, food, water and supplies into the stricken area, and the Red Cross placed its facilities at the disposal of Gov. Martin of Florida.

Responding to the request of the sheriff at Miami for 500 soldiers "as quickly as possible" Gov. Martin dispatched several national guard companies and hospital units to the scene to aid civil authorities.

Jacksonville rushed 5,000 loaves of bread to the stricken area following an appeal from Fort Lauderdale.

LOSS ESTIMATED AT $125,000,000

WEST PALM BEACH (Fla.) Sept. 19—(AP)—A death list approximating 500 persons and property damage estimated at between $25,000,000 and $125,000,000 was the toll attributed tonight to the West Indian hurricane which raged along the lower east coast Friday and Saturday and passed into the Gulf of Mexico headed toward Southern Alabama and Louisiana.

Reports from the storm area indicated more than 38,000 persons made homeless, and that many of these were in urgent need of food and medical supplies.

Miami and vicinity and Fort Lauderdale appear to have borne the brunt of the storm. Water was flowing in the streets of Miami, practically every place of business was said to have been damaged, no drinking water was immediately available and phones and electric lights were out of commission.

Reports from Miami said stores were closed and restaurants were not serving food on account of lack of water, electricity and gas. In response to urgent appeals, doctors, nurses, supplies and water were hurried into Miami from sister cities of Florida.

Originating in the Bahamas, the hurricane struck Miami in all its fury Friday night. For nine hours it raged over Miami and Miami Beach, leaving destruction in its path. Desolation also was wrought in Hollywood, thirty miles north of Miami.

Miami Beach was swept by a 120-mile wind and high waves swept over it. During a lull hundreds of persons ventured forth in an attempt to salvage their household effects, but another storm hurled itself against the city. This latter wind raged unabated for two hours and was more intense than the first.

BODIES STREWN ALONG ROAD

Accounts placed Miami Beach with the greatest number of dead, the estimate there being 150 and eighty more bodies were said to be in Miami, undertakers being unable to care for them. The property damage in these two places was estimated at from $25,000,000 to $100,000,000.

The storm swept on across Fort Lauderdale, north of

RED CROSS URGES AID

Nation Asked to Help Florida

Tremendous Amount Needed for Relief in Area Struck by Storm

Director Rushing by Train and Plane to Take Charge of Task

WASHINGTON, Sept 19. (Exclusive)—A nation-wide appeal for funds for the immediate relief of the homeless and injured victims of the hurricane which swept the Florida east coast last night was sounded by the American Red Cross headquarters here tonight. No estimate of the amount required is made, but officials of the organization, notifying chapters throughout the country to undertake the collection at once, state that available information indicates a tremendous need.

Acting under authority given by Gov. Martin of Florida in a telephone conversation with headqartrs this afternoon, the Red Cross has assumed complete charge of the relief work and hundreds of workers are en route to the stricken sections from points as far north as Cleveland, O. Henry M. Baker, director of disaster relief for the Red Cross, has been ordered to proceed to Miami by airplane from Kansas City, Mo., and until his arrival Henry T. Reed, Florida field representative, who left Jacksonville by airplane today for Miami, will be in charge.

When ordered to Miami, Mr. Baker was directing relief operations in the Kansas flood district.

A large corps of Red Cross workers was to leave Washington tonight and other groups are being mobilized in eastern and southern cities.

Miss Pauline Marshall of Cleveland, O., national director of case work, is already en route to Florida from her home, it was announced here.

In his conversation with the headquarters, Gov. Martin declared he was leaving Tallahassee, Fla., the State capital, for St. Augustine at once, and from there will continue southward through the devastated area, reporting to the Red Cross here conditions and needs as he finds them, as frequently as the interrupted communication systems will permit.

Such relief supplies as are needed will be dispatched from Jacksonville, Atlanta, Mobile and other points as near as possible to the area, it was announced.

National headquarters of the Red Cross received the following message tonight from V. J. Sharman, general chairman of the relief committee, Hollywood, Fla.:

"Help urgently needed in Hollywood due to devastating hurricane. Ten thousand persons homeless, 100 killed, 1000 injured. This only preliminary estimate. Most urgent necessities are tents, cots, bedding, food, medical supplies, lightweight clothing, doctors and nurses. We will eventually need permanent reconstruction and ask that you send representatives to make survey. Immediate action necessary."

The following message was received from Henry T. Reed, Red Cross field representative at Jacksonville, Fla.:

"W. F. Busch, passenger agent, Florida East Coast Railway, reports, 38,000 homeless, more than 700 killed in Miami and near-by towns."

Mr. Reed reported that he was leaving Jacksonville at 9:50 tonight in a special car provided by the Florida East Coast Railway for relief workers. He should reach Miami at 8 a.m., Monday. He will take charge of disaster relief work, pending arrival of Henry M. Baker, national director of the Red Cross disaster relief.

Mr. Baker left Kansas City for Memphis on Frisco train No. 105 at 6 o'clock tonight. He is due to arrive in Memphis at 7:40 a.m., Monday. Gen. Foore expects to provide an airplane to leave Kansas City early Monday morning and pick up Mr. Baker at Memphis for remainder of journey to Miami. Baker will proceed by train from Memphis if airplane service cannot be provided.

Miami, wrecking property which so far has not been estimated, and leaving a casualty list placed at 100.

Reports said Moore Haven, seventy-five miles northwest of Fort Lauderdale, suffered heavily. The dead at Moore Haven and Clewiston were estimated at 140 and one report said bodies were strewn along the road. Another report said that from thirty-five to forty white women and children were drowned in the lake region near Moore Haven.

The death toll in Hollywood was placed at twelve, eleven at Dania, one at Ojus, one at Hialeah, and two at Hallandale, all in the vicinity of Miami. Homestead, forty miles south of Miami, had one death.

Property damage at Palm Beach and West Beach was estimated at $1,000,000, with no loss of life.

While the damage at Hollywood was unestimated, those familiar with that city said in the past two years approximately $40,000,000 worth of building and development had been done, and property loss must have been great.

Fuel, water and medical supplies were urgently needed in the stricken cities.

GUARD ORDERED OUT

Gov. Martin ordered several companies and hospital units of the National Guard into the storm-swept sections to aid the civil authorities in preserving order and to aid the needy.

Fort Lauderdale sent a request to Jacksonville for 5000 loaves of bread, which were immediately furnished them.

The Associated Press staff correspondent in Miami was the first to reach the outside world with the story of the stricken city of Miami. He left that city at 5:15 p.m. yesterday and traveled through woods and railroad tracks over which water was flowing. In a blinding rain he proceeded on foot north of Fort Lauderdale. Telephone and telegraph poles and wires blocking the road, he walked the railroad track to Fort Lauderdale and slept in the Women's Club with fifty refugees. Water was so scarce at that place it was portioned out, half a glass at a time.

Frightened and anxious people asked for information. The correspondent reached West Palm Beach today and sent his story to the Associated Press members.

Gerald F. Beane, editor of the Fort Pierce News-Tribune, estimated the loss of lives at several hundred and the property damage at millions of dollars in the district around Pompano, five miles north of Fort Lauderdale.

SUPPLIES RUSHED

Jacksonville, West Palm Beach, Tampa, Fort Pierce and other places rushed medical aid, food and water to the storm area. The work was carried out under the direction of Chairman Slocum Ball of the Red Cross committee.

Gov. Martin, advised that the American Red Cross had placed its facilities at his command, authorized that organization to direct the relief work. He also issued a special call for physicians to go with the relief workers. Hundreds of these together with nurses and many civilians left aboard special trains tonight for the Miami district, Moore, Haven and Clewiston.

The hurricane struck the west coast this afternoon, leaving a trail of wreckage, disabled public utilities and damaged crops. There was no loss of life on the west coast, however, and only a few minor injuries were reported.

The brunt of the west coast storm apparently was borne by Fort Myers, which was mauled by a 90-mile gale. Many horses were unroofed, all public utilities were disabled and the city was cut off from outside communications for twenty hours. Property damage was estimated at $1,000,000.

Packers and shippers estimated the indicated crop of grapefruit was reduced 75 per cent and the crop of oranges will be only one-third of a normal yield.

The gardens at the estate of Thomas A. Edison and the grounds of Henry Ford's place adjoining were hard hit.

Sarasota was in the grip of the hurricane for six hours during which time the city lay in darkness. Heavy rains whipped by the hurricane swept through broken windows in the business district with considerable damage to merchandise.

TREES UPROOTED

Thousands of trees were uprooted at St. Petersburg by the storm, which reached its peak at 2 o'clock this morning. The wind attained a velocity of seventy-five miles an hour, but no serious damage was reported. Tampa suffered damage estimated at $100,000 and several persons were injured by flying debris. Outlying sections of the city were inundated by water from Tampa Bay and the Hillsborough River.

All available motor trucks in Jacksonville were marshalled tonight for the transportation of foodstuffs and medical supplies to relief tasins and volunteers loaded the trucks.

Red Cross officials drew on drug warehouses for materials. Tents were taken for the homeless.

Capt. William Steitz, commander of the Florida department of the American Legion, called on every Legion post in the State to render aid to the stricken area. Capt. Steitz was aboard the Lakeland relief train, which left for Moor Haven tonight.

A partial list of the injured in Miami zone includes: Floyd Delaney, L. J. Delaney, Bert Stegall, Mrs. T. W. Davis, W. G. Moore, J. B. Lingefeld, Mrs. Minnie Shaw, Mrs. T. E. Smith, T. W. Davis, A. GUARDSMEN SENT National Guardsmen and hospital units were ordered into the area by Gov. Martin. The entire resources of the American Red Cross were placed at the disposal of the sufferers. Military control was ordered in the stricken city of Miami by City Manager Warden. More than 300 extra policemen were sworn in, after looting had taken place in certain parts of Miami, chiefly in the negro section. Seven suspects were arrested.

At Miami Beach, where the dead were estimated at 150, and in Miami where undertakers were unable to take care of eighty other bodies, emergency hospitals were opened and there was a steady stream of the injured into these and into regular hospitals.

Trucks commandeered by police delivered food. Temporary morgues were established to care for the dead. Houses and buildings were crowded with refugees and business was suspended. The grandstand at the Miami Jockey Club, the Miami Kennel Club and similar arenas for sport events were razed.

There was darkness from Homestead to Pomano. Pitiful scenes were witnessed as families hovered over flickering candles in the ruins of what had been their homes and hunted for lost members of their families.

THOUSAND HOMELESS

More than 200 men were sworn in by candle light tonight to guard Hollywood, which was practically wrecked. There were thirty known dead in Hollywood and 300 injured. The Hollywood Hotel, the City Hall and the police station were crowded with the injured. A thousand were homeless.

The list of 103 accounted for as casualties was distributed as follows:

Hollywood, 19; Dania, 11; Ojus, 1; Coral Gables, 3; Miami and Miami Beach, 44; Larkins, 1; St. Louis, Mo., 1; Johnson City, Tenn., 1; Hialeah, 5; Fort Lauderdale, 11, and Biscayne Park, 6.

Only a single structure along the large array of skyscrapers in Miami suffered disastrously, but all showed the marks of the driving force of the storm. The new eighteen-story Meyer-Kiser Bank Building, a $1,000,000 structure, received a severe twist in its superstructure which will necessitate razing, although there is no immediate danger in the building toppling.

Few windows were left in the various major buildings, among which are the Commodore and the McAllister hotels. The new Everglades Hotel, on the bay shore, lost its roof. Otherwise these structures remained intact.

BAROMETER FALLING ON LOUISIANA-ALABAMA COAST

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 19. (AP)—Falling barometers here and at Mobile, Ala., and at Morgan City and Burrwood, La., late today gave evidence of the approach to the Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi gulf coast of the storm that swept over Florida Friday night and yesterday.

Late afternoon readings from Burrwood and Morgan City showed a drop of two points since the 1:30 p.m reading, the pressure being recorded as 29.70 at both points. At Mobile the barometer stood at 29.74 and at New Orleans 29.97.

A twenty-six-mile-an-hour wind is blowing at Mobile, while a twenty-four-mile blow is reported at Burrwood.

Morgan City reported a ten-mile wind and at New Orleans it was blowing sixteen miles an hour. The New Orleans Weather Bureau issued the following advisory warning:

"Noon specials indicate hurricane center near 28 north, 86 west, moving west-northwestward. This is a hurrican of great intensity and magnitude nad emphasis should be placed on need of every possible precaution for destructive winds, especially Pensocola to mouth of Mississippi River. Hurricane center will likely pass inland late tonight or Monday morning."

Persons living in sections along the coast were warned of the approach of the storm.

Recollections of the heavy toll in property and the loss of more than a score of lives in the hurricane which swept through Southern Louisana during the latter part of August enhanced the anxiety with which residents of outlying districts awaited the approach of the storm.

CUBA ESCAPES STORM BUT FEELS HIGH WIND

HAVANA, Sept. 19. (AP)—The hurricane did not strike Cuba with any violence. Some high winds and heavy rains were reported, but little damage and no lives lost.

A small schooner was sunk near Guantanamo Bay and the fate of the crew is unknown. For sixty miles north of Key West telephone advices report little damage, but no definite news can be had of Miami through that channel.

STORM PERILS LOCAL SHIPS

Seventeen Vessels in Atlantic Hurricane Area; Bankers' Craft Believed Safe

Seventeen ships bound to and from Los Angeles are believed to be in the area of the hurricane which has been devastating the lower east Coast of Florida. Nine of the ships placed in the danger zone are en route here. The remaining eight are bound to eastern points from Los Angeles.

The only passenger ship involved is the Panama-Pacific steamer Finland, carrying 350 eastern bankers to the National Bankers' Association convention, to be conducted October 4-7. The Finland is believed to have escaped the worst of the storm. Her schedule called for her arrival at Havana last night.

The steel freighter Edgar F. Luckenbach, which left Mobile for Los Angeles Saturday, was the major subject of concern at the harbor last night. It was believed the ship was in the center of the storm area. No word from the vessel by radio was received here, although Luckenbach Line officials endeavored to get news of her.

Other Los Angeles-bound vessels believed to be in the storm region are the tanker Bidwell, which left Boston on the 11th inst.; the freighter Sidney M. Hauptman, from Baltimore, the 11th inst.; the freighter William Perkins, from Philadelphia, the 11th inst.; the freighter Orinoco, from Philadelphia, the 12th inst.; the freighter Panaman, from Boston, the 13th inst.; the tanker Delaware Sun, from Philadelphia, the 13th inst.

Ships from Los Angeles thought to be in the hurricane area are the freighter Oneida, for New York, the tanker Francis E. Powell, for Philadelphia, the tanker Watertown for Boston, all of which left on the 3rd inst., and the freighter James B. Duke, for New York, the tanker Agwilake, for New York, and the freighter Lewis Luckenbach, for Boston, all departing on the 4th inst.

STEAMER SUNK

The steamship Nohab, said by radio dispatches received early yesterday at New Orleans to have been sunk in Miami Harbor by the West Indies hurricane, was owned by Bert Ryerson, who resides at the Engstrum Apartment Hotel, 623 West Fifth street. The vessel—which was originally named the Lensen—was built in Kiel, Germany, in 1901, for the Grand Duke of Oldenberg, eldest son of the Kaiser, Ryerson said last night, and after his suicide became the Kaiserin's private yacht.

Up until late last night Ryerson had not received confirmation of the report of the boat's sinking, but declared it was anchored in Miami Harbor when he left the Florida city a few weeks ago, and was being held there pending the outcome of litigation which grew out of a dispute between a real estate concern and a motion-picture organization, each of which claimed charter rights in the vessel.

CREW NUMBERS TWENTY-TWO

The ship is commanded by Capt. Dennis Haines, the owner stated, and he estimated a crew of twenty-two may have been aboard. He bought the craft for approximately $200,000, he asserted, and carries $175,000 insurance on it.

The vessel originally cost $1,000,000, he declared, and each of its twenty-six staterooms was equipped with bathtubs made of German silver. The boat, which was acquired by a Swedish nobleman after the war, has been the scene of many pretentious affairs, the owner said, and world figures, including the late Theodore Roosevelt, have been entertained on it. Ryerson is an official of a mining company, with properties in California, and said he is here in connection with developing them.

RED CROSS IN STORM APPEAL

Cross, made connections here tonight from the Neosho Valley flood area in Kan., is scheduled to overtake him and carry him into the Florida storm sector.

Should the army plane fail to reach Memphis in time, a plane from St. Louis will be dispatched, according to John D. Neal, secretary of the local Red Cross chapter, in the event neither plane reaches Memphis a special train will be arranged from that city.

Kansas with a Memphis-bound train where an airplane from Fort Riley.

The plane, piloted by Lieut. J. Mc Bevans, arrived here shortly after Mr. Baker's departure and will leave Richards Field here at daybreak bearing Mr. Neal also, who will facilitate arrangements for the disaster relief director. The plane is expected to arrive at Memphis about an hour after the arrival of Mr. Baker's train at 7:45 o'clock tomorrow morning. The pursuit plane was ordered at the service of the Red Cross by Brig-Gen. Poore, Omaha, commandant of the Seventh Corps Area of the Regular Army.

JACKSONVILLE GIVES THOUSANDS FOR RELIEF

JACKSONVILLE (Fla.) Sept. 19. (AP) At a mass meeting called by the local Red Cross, citizens tonight raised a relief fund of $35,000 for the hurricane victims. The Red Cross indicated a State-wide appeal will be made within a short time.

Faithful Followers Visit Shrine to Acclaim Evangelist

...Mrs. McPherson's faithful followers assembled for services yesterday morning and to reassert their confidence in the evangelist, who made a request of her congregation ...subscribe to a fund to be known as the "devil fund." This money, she asserts, will be used in her coming trial on a charge of perjury. Her request was met with shouts of and that $10,000 may be raised. Previous calls on the temple congregation have been met most liberally, friends of the temple declared.

At the close of the evening service, Mrs. McPherson bitterly denounced newspapers, making an exception of one paper, which she said was "very fair" to her and incited her audience to storm newspaper editors with protests "against the stuff they are printing." Two of the temple services yesterday were thrice halted to enable photographs to be taken of the evangelist on her platform in service for newspapers.

Mrs. McPherson at one time in her story related how they had been taken in, she said, by conspirators against them and declared in a pathetic voice:

"We're not big city folks, we're country folks . . . . I hardly know what it's all about!"

TEARS FLOW

The evangelist's outburst of tears and sobs was precipitated when she had described her own suffering and how she gained victory over it, but asserted she could gain no victory over the suffering of her mother, whom she described as "my dear, little, sweet, lovable mother, who has been brought into this diabolical plot."

A wave of emotion swept over the great audience as she cried:

"I wish my mother had died. I wish she would die tomorrow. Isn't that awful to say . . . I don't know what's wrong with me to make me say that."

"We don't even own the roof over our head," she explained in her story. She said the temple property is in the hands of an association.

"Even the nails in the cross couldn't have hurt worse," Mrs. McPherson said in describing her agony over her plight.

"I don't care what they do to me—but, oh, my mother!" she cried, and burst into sobbing that moved the audience to do likewise.

In speaking of dealing with R. A. McKinley, the blind attorney of Long Beach, and his secretary, Bernice Morris, Mrs. McPherson said it had seemed to her and her mother that the two offered some substantiation of the kidnaping to which she attributed her absence from the city last spring. She said the county was not spending any money, "so we two little women" tried in their weak way to find out what they could. As to the Wiseman episode in the situation she said she does not know whether it was a "plant" or not.

Yesterday was the first Sunday since the women were placed under bond and the first Sunday Mrs. McPherson has appeared since her recent illness. She explained from the platform how she came to have a doctor, in order to comply with the law, she said, but gave credit for her recovery to the healing service conducted after the manner of a temple rite.

APPEARANCE DRAMATIC

Mrs. McPherson's entry into the church was very dramatic, appearing after the services were under way in company with her daughter, Roberta, and her son, Rolf, with a corsage of flowers pinned to her bosom.

As the trio came down the stairway and approached the rostrum the congregation burst forth with fervid cries of "Hallelujah! Praise God, Sweet Jesus,' and other exclamations characteristic of the Angelus Temple technique.

Her appeal for contributions came half way in the services after a Chicago attorney, who did not give his name, made an address expressing his belief in Mrs. McPherson's innocence and confidence in her acquittal.

"You may call it a 'fight the devil' fund if you wish, because that is what it will be used for," Mrs. McPherson said. "You know they are going to use county money on the other side.

"Information has come to me to the effect that the man who will handle the prosecution said that either she will have to go or we will have to go. And I am here to say that when I am proved innocent he will certainly have to go.

"They say 'It is either she or us. We've got to spend the money or we are done.'"

After telling her congregation of the sale of her beach lot at Santa Monica and of the expenditure of the proceeds of the sale, Mrs. McPherson said that she felt the time has come when a fund must be set aside to be used as needed so that "we need not feel handicapped." She said she did not want to handle the money herself or did she want her mother or the secretary or treasurer to handle it but that she did want a committee of business men to take charge of it.

WILL TURN BACK SURPLUS

If there is any left, she said, it will be turned back to the people.

She then called for a showing of hands to vote on the proposition and her suggestion received the unanimous approval of the vast crowd which jammed Angelus Temple. The vote was accompanied by shouts of "Hallelujah," "Praise God" and "Amen."

"The Lord is going to give us a wonderful victory," she cried. And the congregation answered "Amen." The pastor concluded her appeals for money by saying that she did not want any long faces because everything "is going to come out all right."

During her talk one of the loud speaking amplifier used to carry her voice to all parts of the temple went out of order and emitted a shrill blast.

"That's Gabriel blowing his horn as a sign of victory," the evangelist shouted, bringing down the house in a blast of applause.

In opening her services the evangelist said that she had felt "the touch of the Lord" and that was why she was able to be on her feet before the congregation. She said that her temperature not only had disappeared, but that her temperature yesterday morning was below normal. It still hurt her face a little bit to smile, she said.

She curtailed her activities at the morning services somewhat, explaining that she wanted to save her energy for the later services.

The Chicago attorney was introduced by Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of the evangelist, who was on the rostrum. She said that he had spoken over the radio Saturday night, having been brought to the temple by a local business man, and that so many people had called up and asked if he would not speak at the church Sunday morning that she decided to introduce him yesterday morning.

She said she would leave it to him as to whether he wanted to give his name. A man walked up to pulpit from the audience, a heavy-set individual, and draped himself rather informally on the pedestal and said:

"Good morning, folks."

He remarked that he may be the man who put the pop in pop corn and the ham in the "ham what am" and that from that description the people might get his name. His remarks brought forth laughter from the audience. His name was believed to be Frank Popham. No attorney of that name appears to be known in Chicago, it was reported from there last night.

"Well," he said, "I've been reading the newspapers about this matter and I have concluded that it amounts to nothing except a brainstorm on the part of some higher-ups. I will say it is my opinion that in this county there are not twelve law-abiding people with red blood in their veins who will say that your good leader, Mrs. McPherson, has been guilty of any crime.

"One reason why I say this is that a good woman cannot go away and become a criminal overnight, a woman who has been studying the Bible and preaching the gospel for seventeen years as has been Mrs. McPherson.

"Another reason why I say this is because of my reaction when I read that funny complaint in the newspapers. She is charged on two counts. In the first place she is charged with conspiring to have two fellows accused of kidnaping her and in the next count it says there are no two such fellows.

"As a lawyer I was amused at this complaint."

This analysis of the complaint brought forth shrieks of laughter and much applause.

The attorney talked for about fifteen or twenty minutes, during which he said he felt the people of the county would insist on fair play. He said the prosecution must protect the innocent as well as prosecute the guilty and that he felt that California will give Mrs. McPherson the right to be presumed innocent until proven guilty. He said that public officials must realize that official irregularity is as reprehensible as private wrongdoing.

He said that he had heard of an offer to exchange State's evidence for immunity to a certain person. Without mentioning that individual's name he apparently had Kenneth G. Ormiston in mind. He spoke contemptuously at this time on "squealers."

After paying compliments to the attorney who is reported to have made that offer "in behalf of a client whom he has nver even seen," the speaker said: "Caesar had his Brutus and Christ had his Judas, but in behalf of Judas it can be said that immediately afterward he went and hung himself."

There were many cheers, hand clapping and Hallelujahs at this point. Laughter of ridicule greeted this remark that "You have a wonderful press in Los Angeles." A moment before that remark the lawyer had said "our attitude should be Lord, forgive them for they know not what they do." The suggestion was greeted with "yea" and "yea" and Hallelujah."

When some of his remarks excited the temple crowd he said he was not advocating "anarchy."

GREETS VISITORS

While Mrs. McPherson was conducting the service she called upon all those in the congregation who had come from out of the State for the sole purpose of attending the services and hearing the Four Square Gospel to come to the rostrum to shake hands with her and Mother Kennedy.

"We do not mean simple tourists or visitors. We mean people who came to Los Angeles for the particular purpose of attending these services."

There were between 200 and 300 men, women and children who went forward. Some came from foreign countries, they said.

The afternoon services were taken up almost entirely by the children of the temple, several hundred participating. The children, dressed in blue and white temple uniforms, marched in impressively and later Mrs. McPherson appeared with her two children. She was given a tremendous ovation when she walked into the auditorium.

A specially written song, giving praise and honor to Mrs. McPherson, was sung by the children. It contianed the phrase:

"We are Mrs. McPherson's boys and girls."

SAYS CHARGES FALSE

Mrs. McPherson made but one reference to her court trouble at the service conducted by the children. She said:

"All these things that these people falsely are saying derogatory to my character and our church are absolutely false."

Little Miss Helene Smith, 13 years of age, preached the afternoon sermon. She likened Angelus Temple to the works conducted by Moody and Spurgeon and declared "it is God's greatest beehive on earth now." She described Mrs. McPherson as "the queen bee." The child pictured the temple beehive as beset by enemy bees trying to sting Mrs. McPherson to death but declared Mrs. McPherson would be spared to become the bride of Christ.

The hunt for Ormiston, considered the "key" witness in the McPherson case, continued unabated yesterday under the direction of Ben Cohn, chief of the District Attorney's detective staff, and his assistant, Charles Reimer.

According to Reimer, investigators are watching several places in Los Angeles where Ormiston might appear if he comes here, and a number of other leads are being followed in near-by communities. Circulars are still being sent out to police in cities through the country which contain a picture and a description of Ormiston and instructions that the radio expert be arrested for the Los Angeles authorities.

The official investigation into the McPherson case is expected to be resumed today by Dist.-Atty. Keyes, Chief Deputy Davis and Deputy District-Attorney Dennison. Mr. Keyes stated Mr. Davis and Mr. Dennison will assist him in the preparation of the mass of evidence which will be presented when Mrs. McPherson and her codefendants appear before Municipal Judge Blake at 10 a.m. on the 27th inst. for their preliminary hearing. At the hearing Mr. Keyes will present all of his evidence, he said.

ADVANCING DATE FOR GRAND JURY DENIED

Superior Judge Keetch yesterday denied reports in circulation at the Hall of Justice that he had secretly advanced the date for the impaneling of the new 1926 grand jury, which is to succeed the original jury which he summarily ousted several weeks ago because of 'leaks" and "discord and inharmony."

The reports were to the effect that Judge Keetch had advanced the date to today from the 28th inst., which was the date fixed by him when a venire of thirty jurors, from which nineteen will be selected, was drawn.

"It will be impossible to change the date because the jurors have been subpoenaed to appear on the 28th inst.," Judge Keetch said. "There is no truth in the report I had changed the date and intended to impanel the jury on Monday. The jury will be impaneled on the date which was set originally."

The names of the thirty persons from which the jury will be drawn have been kept secret by Judge Keetch. The new jury is expected to take up several important inves-

His war record included service in the Indian warfare in the Northwest, for which he won the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Philippine revolt, the Mexican raids and the World War.

He also was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, the Croix De Guerre with palm, and was an officer of the Legion of Honor of France.

During the World War, Gen. Howze commanded the Thirty-Eighth Division and served in the Meuse-Argonne sector. He commanded the Third (Marne) Division in its march to the Rhine and led that division in the Army of Occupation in Germany.

On his return to the States he was assigned to Mexican border duty with the Third Division and was in command of the district of El Paso.

He came to Fort Hayes, Columbus, in July, 1925.

MITCHELL TRIAL

Gen. Howze again came into prominence a little less than a year ago when he was called upon to preside over the army court-martial which tried Col. William Mitchell for his famous charges of maladministration and near-treasonable conduct of aviation by the War and Navy departments.

The presidency of the court evolved upon him when Maj.-Gen. Charles P. Summerall, senior officer on the active list of the Army, was excused from this post at his own request after Col. Mitchell had attacked Summerall for his record as commander of the Hawaiian department. Throughout the stormy trial, Gen. Howze ruled with a firm hand and frequently reprimanded both defense and prosecution counsel for their clashes over procedure, but never administered a reprimand to one without including the other.

EARLY ACHIEVEMENTS

Indian wars, Philippine revolts and Mexican bandit raids gave Maj.-Gen. Howze his training in hard riding, hard fighting and in surprise attack which won him the Congressional Medal of Honor, many mentions in official orders and rapid promotion.

As a lieutenant of cavalry he prevented the warring Sioux tribes from escaping at Wounded Knee, and, with his fifty cavalrymen, closed the gap which made possible the return of the Indians to the reservation. When a lieutenant-colonel of volunteers, Gen. Howze rescued Lieutenant-Commander Gilmore and twenty-seven other naval officers and men from the Philippine insurrectos under Aguinaldo. In conjunction with Col. Luther Hare he also rescued 3500 Spanish prisoners, including 450 officers, one a major-general. For this Gen. Howze was officially thanked by the Secretary of War for "most distinguished conduct." He was then promoted to be a brigadier-general of volunteers, although only a lieutenant in the regular line.

In Gen. Pershing's punitive expedition into Mexico after Villa, Gen. Howze, then a major commanding a squadron of selected mounted men, rode seventy-five miles in twenty-four hours without rest while pursuing Villa through the mountain passes of Chihuahua. He made a night ride of forty-two miles and fought an engagement with the bandits at Ojos Azules, killing sixty-one of the bandits, including a Villa general. This ride is still referred to as "Howze's ride," and won for him a promotion to be a lieutenant-colonel.

Gen. Howze is a native of Henderson county, Texas, and a graduate of the class of 1883 at West Point Academy. He was commandant at West Point, organized the famous Thirty-fourth Volunteer Infantry at Fort Logan, Colo., served in command of the American regiment stationed in Porto Rico, was graduated from the War College and was chief-of-staff of the northeastern department with headquarters at Boston before going to the Mexican border to command the El Paso district.

Gen. Howze was promoted to be a major-general on August 22, 1913, which date was the fifty-fourth anniversary of his birth. While in command on the Mexican border, Gen. Howze succeeded in establishing friendly relations with the Mexican officials in Juarez and his period of command was known as "Howze's era of good feeling." He has been in command of a cavalry unit on the western front in France.

GEN. PERSHING PAYS TRIBUTE TO COMRADE

LINCOLN (Neb.) Sept. 19. (AP)—The death of Maj.-Gen. Robert Lee Howze at Columbus, O., today ends the career of one of the best cavalrymen and one of the best cavalry officers in the United States Army, Gen. Pershing said here tonight after being informed of Gen. Howze's death.

"Gen. Howze and I served at West Point together and saw service in the old Sixth Cavalry in Mexico and Arizona many years ago," the general said. "He was a fine soldier and one of the best cavalrymen in the army. I am very sorry to learn this sad news."

CARSON CITY (Nev.) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—The Nevada Supreme Court has ruled that mining companies cannot make deductions from the bullion tax for depreciation of property, cost of maintaining outside offices, and other taxes. The decision was handed down in a test case brought by the State of Nevada against the Tonopah Extension and other companies operating at Tonopah. It sustains a previous judgment by the District Court of Nye county.

GLOOM SHROUDS ISLAND OF GUAM

Economic Outlook Declared Lacking Hopes

Tiny Sea Territory Fails in Supporting Self

Inhabitants Depend Upon Navy for Living

BY PARKE BROWN

ACANA (Guam) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—If Col. Carmi Thompson had carried out President Coolidge's original plan and come to Guam after completing his survey of the Philippine Islands, he would have been forced to report the economic outlook of the tiny island a gloomy one.

The colonel idopped Guam and Samoa from his itinerary because of the difficulties of transportation, but for a solid week I have been ransacking Guam for a ray of hope indicating the possibility of its becoming self-supporting.

I have discovered no reason materially moderating the severe official verdict of Gov. Dyer in his report to the Secretary of the Navy in 1904 that it "has neither present nor prospective economic value."

LIVING OFF NAVY

An organized scientific study of the situation would show that Guam is living on navy funds. In addition to the strictly naval station, the maintenance of the three main cities is advanced by naval aid and public works to an incalculable degree and almost the entire native population benefits from the pay rolls, either directly from receipts on the civilian rolls or by sharing in the expenditure of the American officers and enlisted men, many of whom have families here.

Guam, in every sense of the word, is a dependency. The much-discussed paternalism really amounts to materialism. The United States has mothered the islanders to such an extent that they really are slipping backward commercially instead of progressing, as experts say they would have under the harsher British, Japanese or German colonial methods.

Agriculture, particularly the raising of cocoanuts, is pronounced the one chance for Guam to pay its own way. But the production of copra, or dried cocoanut meat, universally is condemned as ridiculously low. Wide stretches of former rice fields now are covered with lush grasses. Garden vegetables and fruits of untold varieties grow with almost no attention, but the naval establishment is forced to maintain its own gardens in order to obtain a sufficient supply of such products for its own needs.

From the standpoint of social advancement, the record is different. Education, public health, housing, and transportation are going ahead steadily, even if slowly. Guam is one of the cleanest and healthiest and most attractive islands in the Pacific, and taken as a whole conditions are better than on any island seen in the Philippine archipelago. But is is the opinion of impartial observers that this progress would cease and the many gains would be undone if the American influence and control and help were withdrawn.

There is a complete absence of initiative enterprise. The islander today, as a century ago, is satisfied with a little farm, raising enough to feed him and his family, living in town and walking back and forth to what he calls his ranch, no matter how small the plot of ground. If he has a vocation, such as carpenter or blacksmith, it is merely a side line. If one member of a family has a job on the naval pay roll or island government, all his relatives share in the proceeds.

MANILA VETERANS CENSURE COL. THOMPSON

MANILA, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—A resolution censuring Col. Carmi Thompson, President Coolidge's personal investigator in the Philippines, who formerly was chief of the United Spanish War Veterans, for permitting a Filipino orator to make a seditious speech in his presence at Legaspi, is being urged by members of the local post of veterans. If the resolution is passed it will be presented to Col. Thompson shortly before his departure from the Philippines.

The speech to which exception is taken was delivered by Bienvender De Lopaz, former editor of a Manila navy paper. It compared Gov.-Gen. Wood with George III, accused him of riding rough shod over Filipino rights, and also accused him of responsibility for the massacre of hundreds of Moros some twenty years ago. The orator compared Gov.-Gen. Wood to certain judges in Spanish days, who would condemn prisoners and have their throats cut because they were too lazy to listen to the trial of the case. Col. Thompson listened to the oration and made no comment after De Lopaz subsequently was banqueted by the Filipinos in recognition of his speech and a special edition of his paper containing his remarks in full has been mailed throughout the islands.

Col. Thompson and Gov.-Gen. Wood both refuse to comment on the incident, but it is learned from the Thompson party that Col. Thompson's failure to rebuke the orator is in line with his previously announced policy of "saying nothing and listening much."

The local opinion is that though his task is difficult, Col. Thompson would have been justified in refusing to listen to the long speech vilifying the chief executive of the Philippines, who is a Presidential appointee. The charge is made that Mr. De Lopaz was specially commissioned by Manuel Quezon, President of the Philippine Senate, to launch the public attack on Gov.-Gen. Wood for propaganda purposes. This has been denied by both Quezon and De Lopaz.

WINS PRIZE AS PIG ENCHANTER

Former College Professor Hog-Calls Himself to Victory in Unique Contest During Alumni Picnic at Which Graduates Play Role of Swine

CHICAGO, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Hugh G. Van Pelt, former professor at the Iowa State College of Agriculture, won a ham sandwich when he who-o-o-o'ed and peeg-peeg'd his way to victory in a hog-calling contest yesterday at a picnic given by the alumni of the Iowa College.

Mr. Van Pelt's two competitors, Wallace F. McKee and O. L. Seaton, were right behind the winner and Van Pelt had to release his best vocal blasts to win the championship.

The contest was unique. Many of the alumni were speculating on how the contest would be staged. They believed there would be a herd of pigs in the offing and the contestant who could bring them in from the longest distance would be declared the winner. But the pig enchanters were asked to stand in a group. The 60 picknickers were told to "take to the woods." When the audience had scattered through the woods the contestants cut loose their vocal blasts. Several farmers, living within a mile of the scene, locked up their pigs, fearing they might be enticed by the soothing "who-o-o-o."

The picknickers decided the contests by coming forth when the favorite call was heard. The calls ranged from soo-o-o-o to who-o-o-o. The audience decided that Van Pelt called clearer and louder than the others and insisted he should be given the prize.

INDIGESTION

Acid Stomach and Torpid Liver of Prominent Cafe Man Relieved With Coso Volcanic Iron Water

BILL PAINE

For twenty-five years I have been identified with Cafes in Los Angeles and community. As either manager or owner I directed the first Green Mill, Sunset Inn, Cafe Nat Goodwin, The Old Tavern, The Ship, Vernon Country Club and the Winter Garden. Numbering my friends by the thousands I was constantly entertaining or being entertained at midnight suppers where the menu consisted of well prepared but rich and highly seasoned food. Enjoying my food and eating more than I really should, I contracted a severe case of indigestion and have suffered from acid stomach and torpid liver for years, trying various remedies and many mineral waters. Some time ago a new mineral water came to Los Angeles, which many of my friends recommended. I was skeptical of a mineral water relieving my condition, as I have sold various mineral waters for many years. At last, however, I was persuaded to purchase a case of Coso Volcanic Iron Water, and after using three cases I can say with all sincerity that I am absolutely free from every form of indigestion, my liver functions properly and I am in better health than in twenty years. I trust my experience will be of value to my many friends and acquaintances.

(Signed) BILL PAINE.

Those suffering from acid stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, rheumatism who have failed to get relief by other remedies will find the Treatment of Volcanic Iron Water and Medicinal Mud a boon to humanity. Hundreds who have tried it find that the very first case of mineral water will start them on the road to health. Such benefit that they are convinced as to the merits of the treatment that they purchase a complete course of treatment, consisting of twelve bottles of water, $5.00; single bottles of water, $1.00; case of 16 bottles for $14.00, case of 24 bottles for $20.00, case of 36 bottles for $30.00, case of 48 bottles for $40.00. Single jars of mud for $2.00; case of four jars $10.00. For sale by all druggists, or order by mail.

Historians Aid Period Films in True Portrayals

NEW YORK, Sept. 19. (Exclusive) The American Historical Association is offering assistance to persons who desire to make an accurate use of historical material in the arts. Prof. Solon J. Buck, executive secretary of the endowment committee, said today in commenting on the development of this phase of historical research. Among those seeking aid of the historians are motion-picture producers making films based on social life in early America.

"We are making an exhaustive historical research into the life and manners of the old South for the period of 1830 to 1870 for a forthcoming production, said a letter to Prof. Dana C. Munroe of Princeton, president of the association, from a film corporation in California.

The association was asked to supply information on a Southern wedding of 1856 and describe the dress of the bride and bridegroom, the attendants, guests and negro servants.

Mr. Merton said he felt so satisfied with the results that he paid King anyway—and paid the maximum of 5 per cent, or $391,000. Mr. King, Mr. Merton further testified, had placed him in invaluable touch with both Col. CROSS QUESTIONING

No sooner had the government finished with Mr. Merton than the defense took him in hand for cross examination. To the surprise of the courtroom, Mr. Merton found himself so comfortable under the questioning of Col. William S. Rand, Col. Miller's counsel, that Judge Julian W. Mack later permitted the government to "cross examine" its own witness on the latter's contention that Col. Rand had turned Mr. Merton into a witness for the defense as well.

Col. Rand prevailed upon Mr. Merton to say that he regarded the $441,000 commission paid to Mr. King as a legitimate transaction and that he had never had any understanding that it was to be divided later with any government officials.

MANIAC IN WILD RIDE ON ENGINE

Madman in Locomotive Races It for Miles Down British Columbia Tracks

VICTORIA (B. C.) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—With a maniac at the throttle, a locomotive raced wildly through the interior of British Columbia recently, terrifying settlers, scattering cattle and threatening to wreck itself and other trains. The engine had been standing alone for a few minutes in a railway yard when a man who called himself J. F. Downing slipped into the car, opened the throttle and sped down the tracks. The trainmen were unable to pursue it as no other locomotive was available near by.

Dispatchers clicked out the news to stations along the route, but the maniac refused to stop for signals. British Columbia police officers set out in pursuit by automobile, making a quick detour in order to cut off the progress of the runaway before it could do serious damage. The officers reached the terminus of the little branch railway, to find that the locomotive had not arrived. They walked down the tracks miles before they found the locomotive, stalled without steam to proceed further.

Inside the cab the madman was desperately shoveling coal in an effort to get up more steam. He said he was an engine driver and had caused a terrible train wreck in New Jersey. Apparently he thought he was running away from those who wanted to punish him. He was committed to an asylum.

GIRL RESCUED FROM GLACIER

Falls Forty Feet in Crevasse at Mount Hood

Portland Woman Has to be Chopped from Ice

Near-Victim Saved by Guide and Forest Ranger

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Miss Vanda York of Portland is badly lacerated and suffering from shock, but she considers herself a rather fortunate young woman. She came very near being a victim of a Mt. Hood glacier. Her escape, without broken bones or eve.. death, from a forty-foot fall into a crevasse is considered little short of miraculous.

In company with Mark Weygandt, professional guide, and Herbert Gordon, forest ranger, Miss Vanda started for the summit of the mountain. The men were ahead and had just left Eliot glacier when their heard a cry behind them. They turned just in time to see their companion slip out of sight behind a ridge of ice.

They found Miss York wedged between some ice spurs about forty feet down in a crevasse. They had no rope and one of the men raced back down in a crevasse. They had no length. One of them let the other down into the crack.

He found that Miss York was so tightly wedged in the ice that he had to chop away some of the spurs before she could be released. She was lifted out finally and the two men carried her down over the glacier to meet a rescue party sent out when one of the men gave the alarm.

The girl was held in the ice for several hours.

Moffett Visions Chicago-Berlin Dirigible Line

CHICAGO, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Visions of huge dirigible airships, three times the size of the wrecked Shenandoah, sailing direct from Chicago to Berlin or Paris in sixty hours' flying time were pictured by Rear-Admiral William A. Moffett, head of the aviation section of the Navy, during a few hours' stopover here en route to the Pacific Coast.

The development of commercial aviation will bring that spectacle about, Admiral Moffett, a strong advocate of the rigid airship, said, and time will see the three functions of passengers, mail and express, in the possengers, mail and express, in active operation on one ship.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19. (AP)—Obregon has arrived safely at his home in Cajema and is not in the field fighting the Yaqui Indians, as had been reported here, according to Gen. Pina, Undersecretary of War.

Gen. Pina said that the government has no confirmation of the report of a serious engagement between the Jaqui Indians and the Federal forces. There is no official report of any such fighting at all, he stated.

PACT URGED ON AMERICA AND CANADA

Lifting of Tariff Barrier Predicted as Aftermath of Dominion Election

VANCOUVER, Sept. 19. (Exclusive) In a published interview in the Vancouver Sun Robert E. Smith, president of the Lumberman's Trust Company, Portland, Or., states that in last Tuesday's Canadian election, in the overwhelming return of the Liberal party to power in Canada, "I see fusion between Canada and the United States, not political, but economic fusion.

"Political annexation of the two countries," he declares, "is just as unwelcome to Americans as it is to Canadians and in my opinion such a thing will not occur except in the minds of certain politicians. But in the interest of the peoples of our two countries there are tremendous benefits to be obtained and there is no reason that I see why closer trade treaties should not be observed between the two countries. The natural trade routes of America are north and south but today the United States is geting the best of the deal.

"Americans if they want to show their appreciation for the hundreds of million dollars of annual trade which Canadians are giving to this country should remove existing tariff barriers against raw and manufactured products natural to Canada, in return for which Canada can do the same with respect to products natural to the United States.

PRIEST HONORS AMERICANS

PARIS, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Because of his admiration for America which it has been his unachieved ambition to visit and to whose troops he ministered during the war, Abbe Loubiere, priest of the Sacred Heart Church on the summit of Montmartre, has given his only personal property, a fifteenth century chateau in the south of France, to be used as a school for American song.

Down in the Avreyon department, the home of Emma Calve, there is to be founded a school to which American girls of moderate means can come to study.

"For the last four years," Abbe Loubiere said today, "I had been wondering what I would do with the chateau, which is not of any use to me. It is a big building with two massive towers built for defense in the days of the Saracens and religious wars. It has been besieged and has resisted attack. Some time ago I had a chance to sell it to a cinema firm, which wished to make a realistic film in which the chateau was to be partly burned. I did not want that and I decided to give it to some charitable work or for the encouragement of art, but I did not know exactly how to go about it."

An American singer who visited him one day to have a rosary blessed suggested the singing school which he has adopted.

Bandit Murder Fails to Check Mexico Travel

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 9. (AP)—Undeterred by the bandit outrage on the highway at Cuernavaca last Sunday, which resulted in the murder of the American, Jacob Rosenthal the foreigners in this city made their usual week-end trips to the near-by resorts.

The near-by regions are very safe, being well covered by soldiers searching for outlaws. Officials believe that most of the bandits responsible for the latest outrage have been killed.

Rosenthal's body will be sent home tomorrow if the legal formalities have been completed.

EX-UNIVERSITY RECTOR DIES

BERLIN, Sept. 18. (AP)—Gustav Roethe, former rector of the University of Berlin, died today at Bad Gastein, in Austria. He was 67 years of age and a noted Nationalist leader.

Warrants Out for San Jose Tong Slayers

SAN JOSE, Sept. 19. (AP)—Warrants for the arrest of four, presumably Chinese, have been issued by John M. Hoesch, justice of the peace of Gilroy, in connection with the shooting affray there on the night of the 10th inst., when eleven Chinese in two automobiles swooped down upon the Chinese quarters, emptied their automatics and fled, leaving two dead and four wounded. Justice Hoesch said the names of the four would not be disclosed until the warrants have been served.

The Gilroy affair is attributed to warfare between the Hop Sing and Bing Kong tongs. Those fired upon were members of other tongs not involved in the war and the supposition is that the invading party were mistaken in the identity of those attacked.

WAR GRAVE INDICTMENT STIRS PARIS

Desecration Charges of Senator Bring Inquiry and Vigorous Denial

PARIS, Sept. 19. (AP)—So great was the feeling caused by publication in the French press of Senator Caraway's charge of the desecration of American war graves in France that the Minister of Pensions messaged all sectors of the battlefront where American soldiers are buried, ordering a rigid inquiry.

The investigation is said to have revealed no basis for the Senator's charge. On the contrary, the authorities state, it showed that isolated graves in local cemeteries are scrupulously kept up by the French although they are visited by Americans only once a year, on Memorial Day.

The American graves registration service, charged with the upkeep of the great national cemeteries, denies categorically any desecration of the graves, which are guarded daily by former service men.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19. (AP)—Senator Caraway of Arkansas in a cablegram last night to the Paris Post of the American Legion denied personal knowledge of the reported desecration of the graves of American war dead in France.

The Senator, who in a pronouncement after a recent trip abroad said such inscriptions as "To Hell with America," had been written on the white crosses that mark the graves, cabled that the "statement made by me rested upon no personal information of mine."

houses, but all early winter crops suffered and wire service was crippled.

Much apprehension is felt here for Moore Haven and Clewiston, as the wind came from the northeast and these are on the southwest side of the lake.

Four miles of Connors Highway at Eastend is reported covered with water from an overflow of Palm Beach canal, but cars are still able to pass.

Hundreds of snakes have been killed on highways as a result of wild life seking high ground. One houseboat and one large launch broke their mooring and were washed ashore, but no lives are believed lost.

SCHOONER HELD LOST DAMAGED BUT SAFE

ANASTASIA ISLAND (Fla.) Sept. 19. (AP)—The schooner Lydia Baxter of New York was anchored in seventeen fathoms of water and leaking badly twenty miles from Jupiter this afternoon, it was reported to the United States government radio station here.

The small schooner, the second reported sea victim of the hurricane, was said to have had all of its sails ripped off by the heavy winds.

A Coast Guard cutter was requested by the boat, which was said to have been in no danger.

Dispatches of the schooner's plight were relayed from other vessels, the local station "picking up" the news during the early afternoon.

MOORE HAVEN UNDER FIFTEEN FEET OF WATER

FORT PIERCE (Fla.) Sept. 19. (AP)—A telephone message from the Okeechobee News tonight stated that Moore Haven still is under water which is twelve to fifteen feet deep in some sections.

Aviators who flew over the town today said they saw a number of persons marooned on a high ditch bank. It was impossible to land and give aid. The News estimated that from forty to sixty lives were lost at Moore Haven, while nothing has been heard from Clewistown. The general opinion is that Clewistown has been washed away by the waves which were piled up in Lake Okeechobee by the tropical hurricane.

Connor's highway, in the vicinity of Canal Point, another village in the Everglades, is said to be under five to six feet of water. It will be a week before traffic can be resumed.

BEACH CITIES BUILT ON SERIES OF KEYS

Miami, reported laid waste early Saturday by the worst hurricane in the history of Florida, lies on the extreme lower east coast of the peninsula, approximately 396 miles south of Jacksonville. West Palm Beach, where damage was reported in excess of $1,000,000, is sixty-five miles north of Miami with Fort Lauderdale about midway between.

Pompano is a coast town with an estimated population of 15,000 lying midway between Fort Lauderdale and West Palm Beach.

Running down virtually the entire eastern coast of the peninsula is a series of "keys," long narrow islands of sand and coral formation, separated from the mainland by lakes and inlets.

Miami Beach and Palm Beach are built on keys lying off the mainland and fronting directly on the ocean. Miami Beach is separated from Miami and the mainland by Biscayne Bay, having an approximate width of three miles. Early reports told of the sinking of all ships in the bay and the virtual destruction of the $1,000,000 causeway connecting the two points.

Lake Worth, separating Palm Beach and West Palm Beach on the mainland, has a width of about one-half mile.

Fort Lauderdale, also reported in early dispatches to have suffered heavily from the storm, has a deep water outlet to the ocean in the New River, said to be the deepest inland stream in the United States. Fort Lauderdale is a base for a United State Coast Guard unit.

Lying between West Palm Beach and Miami are approximately a score of small cities where damage is also believed to have been high.

Real-estate activity of the last few years has seen millions of dollars poured into developments, modern hotels, subdivisions, apartment-houses, homes, public utilities, public schools and churches along the lower coastal sections of the peninsula which bore the brunt of the hurricane.

MIAMI HARBOR SUFFERS

Miami Beach, ten years ago, a low lying sand bar and mangrove swamp had of late years taken on the appearance of a tropical vista. Spanish villas, golf courses, polo fields, yacht basins and artificial lakes and canals constructed there have for several seasons enjoyed popularity with winter visitors.

The past three years have seen the erection of the Fleetwood, Flamingo, Nautilus, Pancoast and Roney Plaza hotels, all modern structures, at costs estimated at millions of dollars.

Miami's harbor, where, according to late dispatches, damage running into the millions was suffered, has for several years been the site of an extensive development program and assisted by the Federal government, thousands of dollars have been expended in deepening and widening the channel.

In the shallow waters of Biscayune Bay, artificial islands have made their appearance and the "Venetian Islands," a late feature of this type of development built of bulk sand, sucked from the bottom of the bay, have been show places of the Miami area. Late dispatches told of water covering the $1,000,000 caseway, connecting Miami with Miami Beach, and running directly through the "Venetian Islands."

Royal Palm Park in Miami, lying one block from the Biscayne Bay water front and where, reports say, a large steamship has been stranded, is the scene of the famous weekly Sunday-school class of the late William Jennings Bryan. The park lies directly in front of old Royal Palm Hotel, erected in the '80's by Henry M. Flager shortly after the completion of his Florida East Coast Railway line south of West Palm Beach.

The Miami Tribune plant, reported destroyed, was several blocks from the water front.

DEVELOPMENT COSTLY

At Hollywood, a city with an estimated population of 15,000, developments of the last few years have soared into millions of dollars. A $3,000,000 hotel, the most ambitious unit of the Hollywood program, fronts directly on the ocean beach and a three-mile concrete broad walk has been said in winter months to rival the color of Atlantic City's boardwalk.

Dania, also mentioned in dispatches as having suffered heavy loss, is situated two miles north of Hollywood and within the corporate limits of the latter city. Fort Lauderdale has an estimated population of 25,000. Pompano, Yemato, Lake Worth, Delray and other coastal cities swept by the gale are winter resorts.

At Palm Beach are located the famous Royal Poinciana and Breakers hotels, the latter erected only last year after fire had destroyed the old structure, known to winter visitors for years as one of Florida's premier resort hotels.

Hialeah, where several deaths are reported, is seven miles northwest of Miami and more than ten miles inland, where the racing plant of the Miami Jockey Club is located.

RELIEF TRAINS EN ROUTE TO STRICKEN AREA

LAKELAND (Fla.) Sept. 19—(AP)—Five relief trains are enroute tonight to Moore Haven and vicinity along the shore of Lake Okeechobee in the Everglades where three different reports said 100 had been drowned by floods and intense suffering prevails.

Two relief trains moved from Sebring and Avon Park while Lakeland, Tampa and Orlando sent trains. Each carried physicians, nurses, volunteers, food, clothing and tents for shelter.

Ralph Devore circled Moore Haven in an airplane this afternoon and reported only one block of buildings standing.

The clash of the storm on the little town was described by Dr. J. W. Mitchell, bebring physician, who returned to Avon Park from the area tonight, only to return immediately with a relief expedition.

Sweeping northwestward across Lake Okeechobee the gale struck Moore Haven behind piled-up waves and residents were forced to the top of buildings to escape an eleven-foot water mark. Dr. Mitchell said twenty-three persons were drowned when a two-story frame building collapsed and two others were washed from the roofs of houses.

"At least 100 are dead," Dr. Mitchell said. "The drainage dyke built around the city at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars is wrecked."

Only the brick business blocks and a school-house are on original foundations, Dr. Mitchell said. Shells of houses floated about. Bodies of negroes were washed upon the railroad grade on the outskirts of the city, and loss of life in the colony was considerable.

Relief is being hurried by the surrounding towns of Avon Park, Sebring, De Soto City, Lake Stearns and Venus.

STRICKEN CITIES SEND LIST OF SUPPLIES NEEDED

JACKSONVILLE (Fla.) Sept. 19. (AP) An urgent call for the following supplies for Miami, Hollywood and Fort Lauderdale was received by the Florida Times-Union late tonight from the West Palm Beach Chamber of Commerce:

Bread, ice, drinking water, summer clothing, medicine, supplies, milk, canned heat, candles, butter, matches.

Physicians and nurses are especially needed in Hollywood, the message said.

NORTH PROMISES SUCCOR TO FLORIDA

NEW YORK, Sept. 19. (AP)—Mayor James J. Walker telegraphed to Florida authorities tonight promising that New York will do its share toward aiding the storm-stricken State.

He also issued a public statement saying that New York "should lead the whole country in furnishing immediate succor."

From Springfield, Mass., Gov. Fuller telegraphed Gov. Martin of Florida, expressing the sympathy of Massachusetts citizenry and promising that the Bay State will materially aid in relief and rehabilitation work.

Two Vessels in Distress Off Florida Coast

WEST PALM BEACH (Fla.) Sept. 19. (AP)—Two ships were reported in distress off the Florida coast today, according to dispatches received by the Palm Beach radio station. Shortly after noon a message was received that the schooner Lydia McClellan Baxter, about eighteen miles north of Jupiter, was leaking. Later dispatches indicated that although the crew was remaining on board, the lower sails and gib boom were gone.

At 3 p.m. an S.O.S. call was received from the Hyrcania, reported to be one mile from Cape Biscayne and in need of assistance but not in immediate danger.

LINER DEFEATS GALE'S FURY

After Wallowing in Storm Tossed Seas, Steamer Crawls Into Safety of New York Harbor

NEW YORK, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—After lurching through the beginning of the gulf storm that reached its full fury at Miami Saturday the Ward liner Monterey docked this afternoon at Brooklyn. Officers, their eyes glazed from the strain of duty on a long rolling sea, reported the roughest trip in the twenty-six years of the ship's existence. Passengers rushed to waiting taxicabs, many insisting they were too tired and ill to talk.

"Did we see a storm! Gosh, we wallowed in it," said First Officer Wolfe. "Wireless dispatches told us we escaped the worst of the week's hurricanes, but I've never seen a madder sea and a madder sky than we had on this trip."

The Monterey left Vera Cruz the 11th inst. with 133 passengers and a general cargo of cotton, lead, hides and copper. It docked nine hours behind schedule.

Nearly everyone on board was seasick. Capt. Peterson experienced for the first time in his life. Nobody wanted to talk about the voyage today.

"Give us a few days on land. Maybe then we'll think we had an interesting experience," one officer said. "If anyone on board enjoyed the trip he's kept it dark."

The Monterey got its first lash from the tail of the tornado that swept from Nassau. Opposite the island on Thursday morning the ship began to pitch in black waters. This continued all day Thursday, through Thursday night and well into Friday. The sea was relentless.

Passengers, officers and crew joined in a common envy of the hides, cotton, lead and copper that lay in the hold, insensible to waves that towered higher and higher. Respite for a few hours and then, opposite South Carolina, the Monterey found itself in fresh danger. This was late Friday afternoon and on Saturday morning the storm was still raging.

"Everyone was game," Officer Wolfe reported. "There was no panic. Lifeboats and life preservers were in readiness, of course, but, as far as I know, no one a atny stage put on a life preserver."

MIAMI GREW LIKE BUBBLE

Rose from Sleepy Swamp Town to City of 110,000 Under Spur of Northern Enterprise

Miami, Fla., was asleep in its swamps a quarter of a century ago; before it met the disaster of the hurricane it had awakened not only itself but all the country. Here is the statistical record for the romance of its growth:

1900—1681 population.
1925—110,000.

On this record the bewildering result of a combination of tropical indolence with northern industry, is claimed the title "Wonder City of America" and defended it with a staggering total of buildings, beauty, money, products, climate and sports.

Southernmost of the mainland cities of the United States, it had dreamed along for years, without railroad facilities, with no port to speak of, unattractive, virtually unknown, plagued with mosquitoes and lost in ethargy.

Somehow the North discovered it. Flagler built his railroad, officially called the Florida East Coast Railway, but most commonly dubbed "Flagler's Folly." Steamship companies sent their liners crawling through the narrow channel and gradually the favor of the tourists was bestowed upon it.

Many a swamp was drained to make Miami and the barren key offshore in Biscayne Bay was transformed into an island, which as Miami Beach, separately incorporated, became a national playground, supporting the finest of hotels, casinos, beaches.

It was rich in tropical fruits—oranges, alligator pears, etc., that thrived in its frostless climate—but it was richest of all in real estate development. Land that had been held worthless swamps a few years ago made millionaires of many. Pumps carried the swamp water into the ocea nand sucked out sand to fill them.

The Miami before the hurricane hit it was a city of skyscrapers of steel, coral bungalows, streets lined with royal palms and dense with automobiles.

The growth was so rapid shipping could not supply materials rapidly enough. At the height of the development windjammer ships were pressed into service to carry the enormous amount of building material. Hotels and apartments were overcrowded and rates ran into almost incredible sums.

BRYAN ITS ORATOR

But Miamians staunchly refute the claims so often advanced that the locality was only a playground and had only climate to offer. So zealous was the city to tell the world about itself that Coral Cables, a suburban development, was inspired to hire the late William Jennings Bryan as its official orator, and he divided his addresses between an open-air Sunday-school and eloquent expositions of the solid nature of the Florida realty.

Some of the indisputable facts he and his associates used were the bank clearings — something like $100,000,000—building permits of $60,000,000 a year in greter Miami, and the fact that the tourist season, November to March, swelled the ordinary business only 10 per cent.

"The only American tropics" — a phrase originated in real estate advertising—was substantiated in the fact there was little variation in temperature from summer to winter, where sugar, avocados, royal palms and cocoanuts thrived there as nowhere else in the United States.

The city is 600 miles farther south than San Ysidro, last town in Southern California, and somewhat south of Brownsville, Tex.

In anticipation of its greater destiny, Miami, with government and State aid, had launched a great program of harbor development, providing a wider channel and more wharfage.

PROVIDES MOTOR ACCESS

Also it had provided first-class motor access in the Dixie Highway and was trying to establish easy communication with the Florida west coast.

The State had spent more than $20,000,000 in efforts to drain the Everglades—the great swamps of Southern Florida —and much more was in contemplation.

The wiser of the developers were looking beyond the immediate profits and offering inducements to great business projects—raising of sugar, tobacco, sea cotton, rubber, cattle, fisheries.

With these plans going on apace the city, as purely a playground continued to entertain the wealthiest of American men and women through the winter season, with bathing, golfing, yachting, fishing, hunting and plain loafing at its best.

Its waters were always warm, its breezes always cool. From dawn till dark its strands of silver beaches were alive with bathers, and at night they became lanes of strollers, wandering under the cocoanut trees and gazing upon the southern cross, visible from no other part of the United States.

It was the ideal headquarters for vacationists — some seventy miles south of Palm Beach, the other millionaire colony; within forty miles of the Bahamas; accessible to Key West and Havana.

STORM AREA OFFERED AID BY PULLMAN

Company's Entire Service Put at Disposal of Region Stricken by Hurricane

CHICAGO, Sept. 19. (AP)—The Pullman Company today put at the disposal of the Florida region stricken by storm its entire resources in equipment, supplies and personnel.

Officials here communicated with agents in Atlanta and Jacksonville and before noon a ten-car train was ready to carry medical aid and supplies from Jacksonville.

The company asked the Associated Press to convey to the State of Florida and those in control in the storm-swept area assurance that if "Pullman facilities in the southeastern territory are inadequate, the resources of the whole service are available."

Requests made upon local representatives of the company by relief authorities will be honored, officials said.

FRANCE TAKES ACTION TO DEPORT AMERICAN

PARIS, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Tommy Lyman, an American song-and-dance man, was ordered deported from France because he punched the jaw of Capt. Churchill, who described himself as a nephew of Chancellor Winston Churchill of England, his friends say. The American entertainer disappeared a couple of days ago and the prefecture of police has issued an expulsion order against him.

QUEEN TO VISIT MANSION

Marie of Rumania First Royal Guest at Maryhill; Will Dedicate Is as Unique Museum

PORTLAND, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Severe, yet imposing, in solitary splendor on the north bank of the Columbia River stands Maryhill, the mansion-museum built by Sam Hill, western millionaire. Its dedication as a museum is one of the announced purposes of Queen Marie of Rumania in making her forthcoming visit to America.

Sam Hill, who is a son-in-law of the late James J. Hill, railroad magnate and empire builder, is often referred to as "the friend of kings." He is a tireless globe-trotter and has been a welcome visitor in many homes of royalty. Indeed, his mansion at Maryhill was built for the entertainment of King Albert of Belgium, who had accepted an invitation to be Mr. Hill's guest in this country. Then came the war and King Albert's trip was never made, but the coat of arms of the royal house of Belgium still rests over the main entrance at Maryhill, where it was carved as a sign of welcome to the royal guest.

Like Albert of Belgium, Queen Marie of Rumania has long counted Sam Hill among her friends. When Mr Hill was in Rumania some years ago he told Queen Marie of his mansion in the far-distant State of Washington; told her of his purpose to establish in it a great museum of international art in which Rumania would be well represented. There would be a Rumanian room, Mr. Hill assured Her Majesty, and there would also be an apartment dedicated to Queen Marie personally. The Queen was pleased with the plan and promised Mr. Hill that when she journeyed to the United States on a trip she was even then contemplating she would be his guest at Maryhill and participate in the dedication of the museum.

PURPOSE OF TRIP

The promise is about to be fulfilled. European dispatches announcing the Queen's visit have mentioned the Maryhill ceremony as one of the Queen's objectives in this country. The date has not been set but it is presumed that it will be fixed at the time most convenient for Queen Marie during the two months that she is to spend in the United States and Canada.

And yet Maryhill is far from ready for the Queen's reception. The building was never occupied and it stands just as it did when the war made it impossible for King Albert to be Mr Hill's guest. Many of the exhibits for the museum have been received from all parts of the world, but they have not been installed. Sam Hill has been in the East, but it is expected that work of putting finishing touches on the building and placing the exhibits will be rushed.

The site of Maryhill is the last place in the world that the traveler would expect to come upon a mansion. It is many miles from a town of any size and stands on the sheer cliffs of the Columbia River with an outlook for many miles over that scenic stream. Stretching away from the river are plains flat and barren except for almost limitless wheat fields and an occasional cluster of poplar trees. A few miles from the mansion, just as lived the retainers for the baronial castles of old, nestles the tiny village of Maryhill, formerly known as Columbus, but changed in honor of Mr. Hill and his estate.

SELECTION OF SITE

No one knows how Mr. Hill happened to select this site for his mansion, so far from all centers of population. He established it upon an estate of 7000 acres and the building was erected to withstand the attacks of time. There is not a bit of wood in it. The walls are of concrete and the interior partitions of metal lath and other fireproof materials. More than $100,000 was spent in building it and a similar amount will be required to make it absolutely complete. There are forty-four rooms in the building and the arrangement is said to be well adapted to museum purposes.

It is no wonder that Sam Hill's castle, as it is often referred to, has been a puzzle to the neighbors around about. They wagged their heads when he built it, marveling at its cost and size. They wondered what he was going to do with it and their curiosity was insatiable. There were even reports that it was intended as some sort of fortification should there be an armed invasion of the Pacific Coast.

The puzzle of what he was going to do with it must even at times have bothered Mr. Hill. There is no indication that he ever expected to make it his home. Already he maintains residences in several cities which he sees only occasionally as most of his time is spent in travel. The first indication that the building would be used as a museum came at the time of Marshal Foch's visit to the United States. The celebrated Frenchman was Mr. Hill's guest on a tour of the Pacific Coast and it was at that time that Mr. Hill announced that Maryhill would be used as an international museum of art, an expression of the friendly ties that bind the nations and of the pursuits of peace.

Mr. Hill's wide acquaintance abroad has served him well in collecting material for his museum. From all parts of the world have come marvelous gifts. Rooms wil be dedicated to the various nations and already wonderful collections have been promised for these rooms and many of them assembled, but not installed.

ROBE OF GOLD

Queen Marie, herself, has donated many articles of value and interest. Among them is a long-train robe of gold, worn by her in early years as wife of the heir to the throne at many great court functions. There will also be portraits of King Ferdinand and Queen Marie painted by the celebrated Serbian artist, Paul Yoanovitch. A case of wooden toys made for Princess Eleana by the peasant children of Rumania, when the Princess was a little girl, is also included, as is an autographed collection of the writings of Queen Marie, who is distinguished as an author as well as a ruler.

Although remote from cities, Sam Hill expects that his museum will be visited each year by thousands of tourists. It is across the river from the upper section of the Columbia River highway and ferry service is available. At present the mansion is a constant object of curiosity to the tourists, but caretakers exclude them from the estate. As an international museum it is expected to increase greatly the number of tourists visiting this part of the highway.

Meanwhile, after many years, Sam Hill's dream of entertaining royalty at Maryhill is about to be realized. It will be a proud day for the desolate palace when Queen Marie sets foot in its long-vacant corridors. Maryhill takes its name from a daughter of Sam Hill, but it seems exceedingly fitting that it should be formally opened by a Queen named Marie.

French Throne Claimants' Will Cuts Off Wife

LONDON, Sept. 19. (AP)—A clause cutting his wife off from all right to his estate is included in the will of the Duke of Orleans, pretender to the French Throne, which has been filed here for probate. The royal exile is said to have left some £150,000 in property in England, where he spent much of his time.

The will also says: "It is my wish that my mortal remains, which cannot be committed to earth in France, my beloved fatherland, shall be buried at sea within sight of the Coast of France."

The Duke of Orleans died at Palermo, Sicily, last March and was succeeded in the pretendership by the Duke of Guise. The body was buried provisionally in the cemetery at Palermo.

Actress Held on Charge of Petty Larceny

The insistence of Miss Juanita Montanya, 20 years of age, that she is a Spanish actress, did not prevent her being lodged in the County Jail on charges of petty larceny and burglary.

On complaint of Miss Hazel Christiansen of 4370 Melrose avenue, where Miss Montanya formerly lived, Detective Lieutenants Van Aken and Clark of Hollywood division arrested the actress yesterday. Miss Christiansen asserts that when the supposed Spanish actress left her home a quantity of clothing not her own accompanied her. Miss Montanya was taken into custody at 720 Cahuenga avenue.

Illness will prevent his accepting the invitation.

"Turning On the Light"

If You could "Shop Around"

YOU CAN'T "shop around" for your electric service, to get the best at the lowest price, as you can for most other commodities.

On the other hand, though, you can always be sure of receiving the same standard of service at the same rates as everyone else in your particular district.

The electric utility, under Railroad Commission regulation, cannot discriminate in any way, even if it wanted to, among its consumers as to either service or rates.

We make every reasonable extension of electric lines necessary to give you service.

Very often, too, it costs us more to make such an extension than many businesses would consider justified for the probable return to be realized for some time to come.

Men—Positively the BIGGEST VALUES On the Pacific Coast!

Gentlemen: My offer to you today is not the fortunate fruit of conquered circumstance, like discovering "an overstocked manufacturer pressed for cash and forced to give away his merchandise." You can follow my logical plan without traveling through the fabled land of advertising fiction. Straight facts are eloquent enough for my straight purpose. Tailoring prices are too high! I'll be more specific and say that I consider them 50% too high. But I can bring down the price of a decent, custom-made suit of clothes to a reasonable pre-war level—if YOU are with me. My revolutionary act consists in absolutely cutting out every dollar of OVERHEAD EXPENSE—so far as the price I charge my customer is concerned. I'll charge you exactly what the yardage of woolen, the linings and findings, and the bone-dry cost of the actual making of the suit foots up; not a penny for my selling cost, my office expense or my legitimate profit. These essential items I am boldly undertaking to clear entirely from the special discounts that I enjoy solely and ONLY by reason of my QUANTITY buying on a spot cash basis.

2 Pants Suits

Can YOU afford to discount your ability?

No man who properly appreciates the true value of PERSONALITY will overlook the importance of wearing individualized clothes. Be exclusive in YOUR dress, because you fatally discount YOUR ability by appearing in clothes exactly like you see everywhere in the street.

But don't make the mistake of attempting to make yourself distinguished by being grotesque. Intelligent folks are prejudiced against doing business with a man who looks like a joke.

With me tailoring is more than a business; it's an art—it's my life—it's a calling in which I take infinite pride!

I have never been able to recognize any superior dignity in a man who chiseled marble or painted canvas as compared with the man who succeeds in expressing personality and individuality in clothes for living men to wear.

Let me develop around YOU—to exactly suit your individual taste—a suit of clothes that will make you stand forth at YOUR best.

You'll enjoy the result and you'll appreciate the difference in your presentability more than you now think possible. All at my shop this week WITHOUT PAYING A FANCY PRICE!

Dan Parker

Fashionably Hand Tailored to Your Order—

$35

My UPSTAIRS economy positively saves YOU $15 to $22.50 on each suit and YOUR absolute satisfaction is nailed down by the most sweeping guarantee ever given by a tailor

Do YOU buy tailoring or entertainment?

The price of woolens and labor costs are high enough, but materials and labor are not the REAL factors in high prices. It's the general system of inflation, useless motion and four-flush business methods—all going to the make-up of that hydra-headed monster, OVERHEAD EXPENSE!

My big shop is UPSTAIRS—my rent is comparatively nothing and my ENTIRE overhead expense amounts to only a fraction of the cost of conducting a conventional tailoring establishment.

I tolerate no figurehead handshakers on my payroll; every man in my outfit works—and gets paid only for the WORK.

I suffer no credit losses, because my terms are strictly cash. You pay only for the suit YOU get—nothing towards the suit another fellow got in return for the majestic words "charge it."

And, lastly, this big economic advantage: I now operate the BIGGEST custom tailoring organization on the Pacific Coast!

I'll make for YOU this week at $35, a two-pants suit equal in every quality detail and tailoring particular to any $50 suit ever offered by any tailor in California since August 1st, 1914.

Dan Parker

The explanation of my extraordinary value-giving ability is as clear and certain as the rising sun, but in order to keep it up I must also keep up my QUANTITY buying—I must continue to operate BIG! But in helping me to achieve big volume, you'll also be helping to bring American business back to the bedrock, sane perspective that a world-mad war upset—you'll be getting tailoring of which you may be justly proud WITHOUT BEING PENALIZED FOR EXTRAVAGANT FOL-DE-ROL that means nothing to YOU—and that certainly adds nothing to the merit of the merchandise upon which it levies heavy tribute. You can't get away from cold facts!

Tailoring to YOUR individual order by experts who KNOW how to express YOUR personality in terms of conventional style!

Dan Parker The California Tailor

I can profitably deliver tailoring at a price that would spell ruin for the tailor who commands only an ordinary business!

WEATHER AIDS COTTON CROPS

Eastern and Central Belt Maturity Hastened

Estimates Range Around 15,000,000 Bales

Liverpool Shows Interest in New Staple

MEMPHIS (Tenn.) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—The maturity of the cotton crop has been hastened and improvement noted in the younger bolls over the central and eastern belt during the last week as the result of much more favorable weather. While worms are actively defoliating the cotton in some sections, their depredations have not been extended and each day now that their spread is delayed brings it one closer to the stage where they will be an aid instead of a menace to the crop. Over the southern half of the belt, leaf worms cannot do further injury.

In the nothern half they can injure the young bolls both by exposure and by actual puncturing. About 250,000 bales have been added to the crop by southern statisticians in the last ten days and present estimates range around 15,000,000 to 15,200,000 bales, or approximately the same as previous Census Bureau reports. If the next report, due Thursday, is within this range, the South will become reconciled to the 15,000,000-bale crop idea unless an early frost slashes off hundreds of thousands of bales, or prolonged rains injure the quality of the cotton now opening.

STORM IGNORED

Tropical storm warnings have been so numerous of late that little attention is paid to the one this week-end for the gulf coast. Unless this storm sweeps far inland and brings copious rains as far north as Atlanta, Jackson and Little Rock, it will do little damage as 75 per cent of the cotton below this line is ready for picking and more than 50 per cent is picked. The trade is expecting the Census Bureau's report next Thursday to show about 3,000,000 bales ginned for the season to the 15th inst., or about 2,300,000 during the last two weeks. For the season last year to September 15, total ginnings were 4,282,000 bales and for the two weeks period about 2,400,000 bales. If next week's report reveals ginnings less than 3,000,000 bales, the South will feel that its previous estimates of less than a 15,000,000-bale crop will be confirmed.

During the last week the crop barely held it own in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, due to worms, weevils and root rot mainly. The South is more inclined now however, to credit Texas with production of around 5,000,000 bales as predicted by the bureau. In the central and eastern belts, hot, dry weather was enjoyed in most sections and picking and ginning proceeded rapidly.

SHORTAGE OF PICKERS

The chief concern was a growing shortage of pickers. Offers of $1 to $1.50 per 100 pounds fail to attract pickers in sufficient numbers and in isolated cases planters are paying $1.50 to $2 per 100 pounds which at the present low price of cotton is considered high. Strenuous efforts have failed to attract negroes into the central belt from the West and planters are turning as a last resort to Mexicans who have proven generally unsatisfactory but better than none. Another ten days of clement weather will find far more cotton open than can be picked. Farmers everywhere are dissatisfied with the price of cotton as well as cotton seed, and are holding where possible. Staples in this region are hardly as good as the white cotton of last year and it is averaging strict low middling to middling.

Spot demand continued to run very slack in this particular section although somewhat better in other sections of the interior. At Little Rock holders were inclined to accept the basis of about 100 points easier and sales were comparatively heavy. Cotton is moving freely in Texas and other extreme Southern States. Around Memphis buyers and sellers are 1c to 2c apart on price, and little cotton is moving as a result.

HUNDRED POINTS OFF

Basis here on middling white, seven-eighths inch is about 100 points off of the New York Decembers. Strict low middling is 125 points off December. Buyers are not pushing their inquiries. Memphis spots have been reduced another 100 points this week, or 225 points in less than three weeks, middling being quoted on the exchange at 16 cents. Lower grades such as ordinaries and low middlings have sloughed off only 100 to 125 points during this time, being considerably stronger than middling grades. Spot sales this week at Memphis were 9280 bales, almost double those of last week, but comparatively light in comparison with the volume of cotton available.

The Long Staple Cotton Association says that the weak and declining market with little mill demand and a noticeable lack of inquiry were the chief points of interest this week in that field. The one outstanding optimistic feature was the interest Liverpool displayed in new crop staple cotton. Should this interest continue to develop, it may give domestic mills cause for worry over delay in making new contracts. Little change in premiums is noted since the season opened, says the association.

Receipts of staple cotton of the new crop are only 9900 bales, says the association.

CIGARETTE TAX BUILDS UNIVERSITY BUILDINGS

PIERRE (S. D.) Sept. 19. (AP)—Smoke from cigarettes may help to build air castles elsewhere but in South Dakota it provides actual, man-made buildings of stone and mortar. The reason for this is that in South Dakota the income from a State cigarette tax is devoted solely to the construction of buildings at the State's colleges and university. During the fiscal year ending June 30, last, South Dakota smokers consumed sufficient cigarettes to erect a library for the State Agricultural College at Brookings and a physical education building for Northern Normal College at Aberdeen. The approximate cost of these buildings is $380,000 and it was necessary to smoke better than 7,000,000 cigarettes to provide this amount. The tax ranges from a half of 1 cent on cigarette papers to 8 cents for a package of expensive cigarettes. On the cheaper and more popular brands the tax is 3 cents.

RATS NOW EAT GRAPEFRUIT

Acquire Fondness for Golden State's Luscious Fruit

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 19. (AP) Even rats have acquired the nabit of eating California grapefruit for breakfast, and have taken such a fancy to the luscious oranges and lemons of the Golden State that packing-house managers in the citrus belt have had to adopt protective measures. So avers the State Department of Agriculture.

Rats formerly paid no attention to oranges, lemons and grapefruit, apparently believing them fit only for human consumption. How they were converted is a mystery, but when the packing-house people of the citrus belt began to find oranges and lemons and grapefruit opened and despoiled of their seeds they had to admit the rodents had adapted themselves to a new diet.

GALVESTON TIDAL WAVE RECALLED

Florida Hurricane Comes on Anniversary of Texas Storm Which Killed 6000

GALVESTON (Tex.) Sept. 19. (AP)—The disastrous hurricane which yesterday struck Miami, Fla., causing an undetermined loss in life and property, recalls a similar and probably a far worse catastrophe which visited this port city twenty-six years ago.

With little warning late Saturday afternoon, September 18, 1900, a tremendous tidal wave swept over Galveston Island, demolishing virtually everything in its path and leaving untold death and destruction in its wake. For days Galveston was without communication and succor from the outside world. When the city's plight finally became known, aid was rushed from all parts of the country. Rescue workers toiled for weeks among the ruins. But the exact loss of life was never determined. Estimates have ranged as high as 6000. Many bodies were washed into the Gulf of Mexico and never recovered.

Undaunted by the appalling disaster, Galveston immediately set about building a fined city. A mammoth seawall was constructed along the seaward side of the island to protect the city from future storms. The seawall proved its worth in 1915 when another severe storm struck the island, but because of the wall, little damage was done to the city.

Methodists to Spend Millions on Philanthropy

CHICAGO, Sept. 19. (AP)—A program providing for the expenditure of $18,500,000 for missionary educational and philanthropic work, was announced by officials of the world service commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Representatives of the world service commission will outline the program for 1926-1927 at eighty annual fall conferences which are just beginning throughout the country, according to Dr. R. J. Wade, executive secretary, and O. W. Auman, treasurer.

World service, it was explained, includes the work supported or assisted in this and other countries by the boards of foreign missions, home missions and church extension, education, including the former board of education, the education for negroes, the board of Sunday-schools, the Epworth League, hospitals and homes and deaconess work, pensions and relief, temperance, prohibition and public morals and the American Bible Society.

Farmer Claims English Estate Left in 1858

LONDON, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—An Ontario farmer named William H. Barrett with his wife and two sons, arrived in Liverpool yesterday to claim an estate worth $500,000 left by Quintin Dick, who died in 1858. Dick's will provided that the heir to the estate must adopt the name of Dick and that if he did not do so within a specified time the property should go to the next claimant.

In July, a Chancery Court ruled that Barrett's claim was not barred by this provision, since he was ignorant of the will. Since the testator's death, the estate has been in the hands of trustees.

NOBILE PLANS FLIGHT TO SOUTH AMERICA

ROME, Sept. 19. (AP)—Gen. Nobile plans a nonstop flight to South America, from Rome to Rio Janeiro. Thus he hopes to achieve a greater distance than ever covered by any other dirigible. The Rome to Rio Janeiro route is twice as far as the New York to Berlin route.

HOUSE KEEPING HOBBY

LONDON, Sept. 19. (AP)—Housekeeping is the latest hobby of British girls. Mrs. D. Cottingham-Taylor, director of the Institute of Housekeeping and Domestic Science, says most of this talk about the modern girl caring only for pleasure is rot. "It is true that a conspicuous few women give the impression that modern woman is highly frivolous," she said, "but you may be assured there never was a time when women were more keenly interested in the home and its problems."

SHIP PURCHASE DEMANDS TOLD

Federal Board Advertises Sale Conditions

Vessels May Be Bought by Americans Only

Changes Will Not Interfere With Operations

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19. (AP)—Specifications under which the ships and services of the United States Lines and the American Merchant Lines will be advertised for sale to American citizens only were made public by the Shipping Board. Advertisements will appear on the 20th and 27th inst.

At the same time Commissioner Teller of the board issued a statement asserting that the invitation for bids will in no way affect continu nce of the service and that passages or shipments already arranged for will be carried out.

IMPROVEMENTS

"Any change in the service will be solely by way of improvement, if possible, through private operation, and if not possible, through operation by the board," he said.

The specifications set separate propositions under which bids may be submitted: First: outright purchase of both; second, charter of both; third, purchase of either one and charter of the other, while another proposal includes the liners America, Mount Vernon and Agamemnon, which are awaiting reconditioning in the group of ships to be purchased or chartered. Still another invites bidders to submit their own propositions. If bids include agreements to supplement the present fleets of either line with ships of superior type, speed and condition, such offers will be taken into consideration.

PIERS AND TERMINALS

Bids are also asked for the right to use pier and terminals of the board in New York, England and continental Europe, and a certified check for $100,000 is required with each bid.

The specifications set out the service to be maintained on each line and provision is made for tourist or other special cruises where the regular service will not be interfered with, and the successful bidders also will be required to furnish a performance bond of $2,600,000 for the first two years of the decade which will be reduced gradually to $500,000 for the last two years

CARETAKER OF LISZT'S HOME DYING

Pauline Apel, 88 Years of Age, Friend of Composer, Has Short Time to Live

WEIMER (Thuringia) Sept. 19.—(AP)—Pauline Apel, 88 years of age, one of the few living associates of Franz Liszt, is dying. She now has, physicians say, only a few months to live.

Thousands of German as well as American pilgrims to Weimar know her, the caretaker of the pianist's old home, preserved just as he left it before he died at Bayreuth in 1886. For thirty years Pauline Apel was Liszt's servant and secretary. She knew him as did few others, and among these few is his daughter, Cosima Wagner, also 88, whose life is ebbing at Bayreuth.

Pauline's daughter, Frau Geodora Beck, 63, conducts visitors through th Liszt house, which is filled with gifts which his simple tastes found too costly to use. There are a hundred pipes which he never lighted, though he was an inveterate cigar smoker. There are dozens of batons of rare woods which he spurned for a sliver of pine that he used for fifty years. And there are scores of walking sticks which he disdained to touch even "then a few months before his death his feet were so swollen he could hardly walk. One stick, knobbed with a four-karat diamond, was stolen a few years ago and never recovered.

SALINAS, Sept. 19. (AP)—Cornelius Walker, 21 years of age, of this city, was killed early today when his automobile overturned, pinning him beneath. A milk wagon driver found the wrecked machine and the body on the Blanco Road, about a mile from Salinas. Wheel marks on the road indicated that Walker had attempted to negotiate a sharp turn at too great a speed.

Disabled Ship Under Tow for San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19. (AP)—The freighter Northland, which became disabled yesterday off the coast of Oregon, was taken in tow today by the lumber carrier Brookings and will be brought back to San Francisco for repairs. Advices to this effect were received by the Federal Telegraph Company.

The vessel, bound for Seattle, lost its propellor and drifted for more than six hours. Arrival of the Brookings saved it from running aground.

SCRUBBING EXPENSIVE

CHICAGO, Sept. 19. (AP)—Business men and building owners of Chicago's central business district, known as "the loop" pay $3144 each night to have the office floors scrubbed. The work is done by women. A rate of 42 cents an hour is paid each of 1575 women, who also receive the same pay for overtime, which occasionally runs to two hours a night. They do not have any union, and are among the few workers here who are not organized.

Twenty-one Ton Casting Tests Highway Spans

REDDING, Sept. 19. (AP)—Loaded on two logging wagons and drawn by a caterpillar tractor at the rate of two miles an hour, a single casting weighing twenty-one tons left here today for Trinity, sixty miles away.

It was necessary to strengthen many bridges along the route, but the unusual caravan will have to ford Clear Creek and Trinity River, as the spans crossing them could not be reinforced enough. The huge piece is to be used on a dredger.

Yankees Rally to Clean Up Redskins

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19. (AP)—After losing four straight games to Cleveland, New York rallied today and defeated the Indians, 8 to 3, the Yankees increasing their lead in the American League race to three and a half games. The victory was the result of the batting of First-Baseman Gehrig, who made three doubles and a home run, driving in four runs and scoring one. Ruth made two hits, one a home run, inside the park, his forty-third of the season.

DUTCH REUTHER

Levsen, who defeated the Yankees Thursday, 2 to 1, tried to come back but was not taken out of the box soon enough, the Yankees scoring in four of the seven innings he pitched.

Cleveland bunched three hits with Reuther's passes in the first inning and scored three runs. Reuther settled down then and was not scored upon again. He was taken out, however, after J. Sewell had led off with a single in the eighth, just as a precaution, as he was tiring. Score:

MYSTERY SWIMMER IN NEW ATTEMPT

LONDON, Sept. 19. (AP)—Mona MacLaren, another mystery woman, started with Horace Carey, a swimming trainer, from Cape Gris-Nez at 5:30 this afternoon in an effort to swim the channel. The weather was ideal, but it was thought probable the fog would come on thick in the early morning. Mona MacLaren, accompanied by the same professional, failed in an attempt to cross the channel on the 3rd inst. She is rumored to be a prominent physician of London.

GRANGE'S GRIDDERS WIN GAME

"Bullet" Baker is Star as Yankees Take Tilt at Aurora Field

AURORA (Ills.) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Red Grange's New York Yankee football team whose line-up reads like an all-American roster defeated the Illinois All-Stars here, 20 to 0, today, before a crowd of 18,000, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a gridiron contest in the community.

Red Grange

Grange pulled off a number of his weaving dashes through the field and scored two of his eleven's touchdowns but it was the playing of "Bullet" Baker, the Southern California star, that electrified the crowd. He made no touchdown, but was never thrown for a loss, and made runs of 35, 20, 14 and 11 yards besides a dozen dashes off takle for four and five yards.

Baker appears fully as fast as Grange and has great drive and a beautiful change of pace. He seems tireless, too, and seemed immune to injuries. He literally bounded from the ground after being thrown.

Wesley Fry, the former Iowa fullback who plays the same position for the Yankees was remindful of a charging bull in his terrific drives at the line and Tryon, the Colgate star impressed as a back of great power. Pooley Hubert, the Alabama star, showed the most for the Yankees in the way of forward passing though Grande made two beautiful tosses to Goebel and Tryon, which these players dropped after having the ball in the basket-like grip.

The Yankee line showed powerfully on offense the greater part of the time, but was bent back on several occasions near the goal line.

MULLER'S TEAM OFF TODAY

Los Angeles' Professional Football Club Leaves This Morning to Open Season in Chicago

Bound for a long stay in the midwest and East, where they are booked to play twelve games, Brick Muller and his Los Angeles professional footballers leave this morning at 10:31 from the Union Pacific Station. The local athletes open up in Chicago against the Cardinals next Sunday.

Manager Jack McDonough sent his gridders through their last local workout yesterday afternoon at Palisades Del Rey. A crowd of more than 2000 persons gathered to watch Muller's squad scrimmage the gobs from the U. S. S. California. No score was kept and the rival clubs took as many downs as they wanted, but it was an interesting afternoon of football.

"BRICK" MULLER

"Tut" Imlay, former California captain, shared backfield honors with the redoubtable Mr. Struckus of the California. The ex-Bruin leader tore off some substantial gains around the ends, his last effort, which resulted in a thirty-five-yard run over the goal line, bringing hte workout to a close. Struckus crashed through the opposing line for much yardage and annoyed the pros rather generally.

The men who leave today include Muller, California; Imlay, California; Al Young, California; Elmo Maul, California; Don Newmeyer, California; Harrell Hufford, California; Pete Shaffnit, California; Don Thompson, Redlands; Jack McArthur, Santa Clara; Jack Nolan, Santa Clara; John Thurman, Pennsylvania; Bill Guttercn, Nevada; Ike Boone, New Mexico; "Bull" Finch, Whittier; Arnold Sandberg, Minnesota pros; Benton Bangs, Washington State, and Julian Ash, Oregon Aggies.

WHERE TITLE CHASERS PLAY

If Boston can cause as much trouble for Cincinnati as it did for the Cards in the recent series, St. Louis fans can sit back and count on romping home to a pennant. For the Redlegs open a three-game series in Boston today, and should the Beantown athletes annex a pair of those three tilts Manager Jack Hendricks and company can kiss the pennant good-by.

Fans have been more or less stirred up to a large degree over the question of who plays who and what of it. The appended facts are presented in a laudable attempt to satisfy even the most dopethirsty.

It may be that fandom will sit in on the dramatic situation of finding Cincinnati and St. Louis tied for first place, and meeting on the Redleg field in the last game of the season with the gonfalon at stake. At least, the game is officially scheduled in the National League annals, and should the

CHAMP LOOKS GOOD TO BENNY

Leonard Says Title-holder in Fine Fettle

Expects Left Hook to Damage Gene Tunney

Jack Says He's Not Worried About Injunctions

BY BENNY LEONARD
Undefeated Lightweight Champion of the World

(Copyright, 1926, by North American Newspaper Alliance)

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Jack Dempsey had a snappy workout this afternoon and I could see he has reached the turning point for which I have been waiting. He punched the light bag, shadow-boxed and went at the big bag for two rounds each, after which Gus Wilson called a halt.

Jack Dempsey

Several of my friends warned me that he was crabbed and snappy because of the injunctions and so forth. But when he heard that it was I who wanted to see him, I was promptly admitted to his dressing-room.

It was full of the smell of oil of eucalyptus, the old training-room smell.

"How are you, champ?" I asked.

"Great, Benny," he replied. "How do I look to you?"

"You look wonderful, Jack, I answered," and he did.

Here is a striking example of what kind of a champ Dempsey is. I asked if he was worried about those injunctions and bondings and he laughed.

"Let the other fellows do the worrying, champ," he said. "I'm going to fight. That's our racket, eh, Benny?"

I noticed that Dempsey used a left hook in his work on the bags and his shadow-boxing this afternoon. He also used it while boxing with me the other day. Some of you folks who have seen me in the ring will agree that I can get away from any punch as well as the next one, but I couldn't avoid that one. I'll say without reservation that it is a "killer."

Looking at Dempsey today, I realized the only reason I had gotten off as well as I did was because I'm a little fellow and ducked low. But Tunney stands up straight, a perfect target for this punch and the only way he can avoid it is by blocking and moving his head back very fast.

Tunney is trying hard to perfect that right uppercut. He had it down pretty well when he boxed with me, but not so he could spring it on the spur of the moment. He can execute it perfectly shadow-boxing and tackling a bag. Tunney's right to the heart is also a good punch. While it wasn't used very successfully against me, it may be good on Dempsey. He used it on Jimmy Delaney with great effect yesterday. Gene looked better than I have seen him in a long time.

Gene will box every day until Tuesday and will close his training on that day with a two-round bout with Delaney and a round at each of the bags.

I saw Maxey Hoff in Philadelphia and he has a distinct leaning toward Dempsey. On the other hand, Frank O'Neil is just as sure Tunney will win. Judge Edward P. Carney, the Jimmy Walker of Philadelphia, favors Dempsey.

I met Joe Benjamin in Atlantic City and the Adonis of fisticuffs proposed a little road work on the board walk down to the Ambassador. He is as handsome as ever and soon had a flock of beauties around. I was in a hurry, however, and while Joe was doing the swell I took it on the lam to the hotel.

LOUISVILLE WINS PENANT

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Sept. 19. (AP)—Louisville, 1925 champions, clinched the American Association pennant today by defeating Milwaukee, runner-up, 7 to 2, in the first game of a double-header. Louisville will meet the Toronto International League champions in the "little world series." The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Milwaukee	2	6	2
Louisville	7	13	0

Jonnard, Eddleman and Young; Dawson and Devormer.

STAGE SQUASH FINALS TONIGHT

Dan Jones and Kent Redwine, both of the Hollywood Athletic Club, will meet in the finals at the Movie City Club tonight at 7 o'clock to settle the national squash championship. Jones went into the finals by virtue of his victory over Sandy Wilson yesterday in the semifinal round by scores of 21-12, 21-15, while Redwine eliminated Leslie Klawiter in the other bracket by scores of 8-21, 21-15 and 27-23.

Bambino Adds One More to Home Run List

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19. — George Herman Ruth, the well-known right-fielder, took it upon himself to bolster the slipping Yankees today, and his forty-third homer of the season was something of a considerable aid to the Gothamites, who finally won from Cleveland. The score was 8 to 3. Ruth's homer was the result of some snappy stepping, as the ball did not go out of the park.

NEVERS STARS IN DULUTH PRO CLASH

DULUTH (Minn.) Sept. 19. (AP)—Ernie Nevers, former all-American star of Stanford University, made his debut in the National Pro Football League with his tribe of Eskimos of Duluth, here today against the Kansas City Cowboys, emerging victorious by a 7-to-0 score.

Nevers's playing was the high light of the game, his passing, kicking and defensive play being the center of the Eskimos' performance. The lone touchdown of the contest was realized by Duluth on a recovered Kansas City fumble deep in their own territory. Two Eskimos tackled Fullback Andrews as he was about to pass, Underwood of Duluth recovering to trot 30 yards for the touchdown.

PAOLINO WANTS WINNER

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—The European heavyweight, Paolino Uscudun, who is here seeking bouts—apparently in vain, since Luis Angel Firpo has been deaf to all blandishments for several months—this afternoon cabled a challenge to the winner of the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

STARS CAPTURE TWO WILD ONES

Hollywood Defeats Seattle by 15-3, 11-0 Scores

Jim Elliott and Bob Hasty Bombarded by Locals

Home Guards Nab Series by Count of Five to Two

BY BOB RAY

Oscar Vitt's soaring Stars from Hollywood took two things faintly resembling ball games yesterday at Wrigley Field, massacring the Seattle Indians in both ends of the double bill by convincing, if not interesting scores of 15 to 3 and 11 to 0. The twin win gave the Stars the series, five out of seven, and moved them to within two and a half games of the first-division goal at which they are aiming.

E.C.

For no reason at all the Stars went on a hitting spree that lasted throughout the afternoon, the home guards collecting no less than thirty-two bingles off Jim Elliott, Bob Hasty and Johnny Powers during the two mauling melees. George Hollerson and Hank Hulvey, who did the hurling for the Stars, loafed through to easy victories, but the latter was especially effective, holding the Indians to three scattered hits in the seven-inning nightcap.

The Stars left last night for a two weeks' trip in the Northwest, opening Wednesday against the climbing Portland Beavers. Bill Lane and Oscar Vitt have decided to give all of Hollywood's young hurlers a chance to show their wares from now until the end of the year so the veterans Dick McCabe, Frank Shellenback, Curtis Fullerton and Sheriff Singleton were left at home. Chuck Gooch was also left here, as were Coach Perle Casey and Trainer Bill Bryan. Elmer Phillips, Leo Fitterer and Bill Murphy looked so good against the Indians last week the Hollywood bosses will give them a good chance to develop their talent.

CUSHIONS RAIN AGAIN

Getting back to the lop-sided struggles, the fans finally rebelled at having to witness such terrible tussles and unleashed a shower of soft seats in the fourth inning of the second game. Red Killefer and Red Baldwin were both kicked out of the contest by Umpire Burnside for protesting a play at the plate and the fans, partly because they didn't

Pacific Fleet Football Season Starts Off Tomorrow

SAILORS TO END TRAINING TODAY

West Virginia and Tennessee Elevens in Opener

Nevada and Arizona Teams Hook Up Wednesday

Gobs in Great Form for Hot Gridiron Struggles

This afternoon at Trona Field twelve battleship football squads will top off their training periods, in readiness for the opening of the battle fleet title schedule tomorrow afternoon. The opener will be a tilt between the U.S.S. West Virginia and the U.S.S. Tennessee of Battleship Division Five, while on Wednesday, Division Three's season will start with the clash of the U.S.S. Nevada and U.S.S. Arizona.

Lieut. Charlie Skinner, coach of the Tennessee eleven, promises to put a tough outfit of Rebels on the field tomorrow against Ensign Day and his boys from the West Virginia. On the basis of strength and past experience the game should go easy to the Tennessee.

The Rebels have had two workouts per day since the fleet came home, and they look very good in scrimmage. Coach Skinner will have the following twenty-seven men in action tomorrow: Left end, Lucke and Travelstead; left tackle, Bradford and Davis; left guard, Campbell and Matthews; center, Cloud and Rickley; right guard, Humphreys, Clang and Scott; right tackle, Avery and Sullivan; right guard, Havens and Philley; quarterback, Shugrue and Liebee; backs, Miller, Marchant, McHoran, Redmon, Wardlow, Littlejohn, Smith and Gay. Wardlow, Marchant and Bradford are recalled as the fast veterans of the squad.

On the 28th inst., the U.S.S. Pennsylvania and U.S.S. Oklahoma teams meet at Trona in what is doped as the first tight struggle of the fleet season. Both the Keystoners and Prairie Sailors are putting fast, heavy teams on the field.

Two of the Pennsylvania first-string stand-bys, however, are missing this year. They are Barno, left guard, now on the U.S.S. Nitro, and Dagel, quarter, now on duty at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

None of the coaches is forgetting, either, that the U.S.S. Maryland is coming out with a cracking good eleven. Tex Miller, remembered her as the star of the old-time U.S.S. New York team, is on the Maryland this season, leading a hard-hitting backfield. His henchmen will be Ollie O'Hara, Joe Timmons and Sam Kasafa, all wise at fleet football.

Daily practice runs for short-range battle practice by all ships have retarded boxing and wrestling set-tos this fall. The first of these will be an informal banging-bee held on the quarterback of the U.S.S. Nevada on the evening of the 23rd inst. Bouts are being arranged in which men from all three battleship divisions will participate.

COLD WATER HALTS CHANNEL SWIMMER

DOVER (Eng.) Sept. 19. (AP)—Mercedes Gleitz, the London typist, made a gallant but vain effort to swim the English Channel and win £1000. This afternoon she reached a point two miles off St. Margaret's Bay after swimming ten hours and fifty-one minutes from Cape Gris-Nez.

Her trainer realized it was a hopeless task for the girl because of the coldness of the water and urged her to give up, but she would not. At last her attendants, fearing a collapse, lassoed her arms and removed her half-conscious from the water.

BABY BEARS IN FIRST GRID TILT SATURDAY

BERKELEY, Sept. 19.—Fundamentals will be the principal grid dish for University of California freshman footballers for several days to come. The little Bears will have their first engagement of the season with San Bernardino High School, one of the strong prep teams of the Southland, next Saturday.

The 1926 peagreen aggregation has quite a job in front of it to equal the brilliant record established by its predecessor.

HOME GARDENS WIN

Everybody on the Home Gardens got at least one hit when the squad triumphed over the Meralto A. C. 12 to 5 yesterday. Nickelson led the attack with three singles. The score:

OKLAHOMA GOBS SMOKE OUT FIRE-FIGHTING FOOTBALLERS

Before a crowd of approximately 3000 persons the naval team of U.S.S. Oklahoma tramped over the best of the L. A. fire squad at Maier Hall Park yesterday afternoon by a score of 13 to 3. Contrary to most early season games, there was not a considerable amount of fumbling or time taken out by either team. Lack of previous experience seemed to be the contributing factor in the defeat of the hosemen.

The Seadogs, coached by Lieut. Murphy, semed to have benefited by their game last Sunday against Brick Muller's eleven. The line consistently opened holes in the opposing wall and their backfield men found them without difficulty. Capt. Crawford and Right Halfback Carroll were the outstanding stars of the naval back field. Lowe and Semiona proved to be a sore eye to the opposing team.

The newly organized team of the Firemen coached by Bill Blewett, former California star, opened up in the last quarter to score a touchdown after a long pass had been completed, Dyer to Aufdenspring, for a gain of 35 yards. Dyer and Evans starred for the local team. Evans received Oklahoma's punt at the start on his own goal line, and after a spectacular run placed the ball on the 50-yard line.

The Firemen declare that next Sunday's game will be sung to a different tune, when they meet the U.S.S. Melville on the same field at which yesterday's game was plaeyd.

MITCHELL MAKES WEIGHT

Junior Welter Champ Not Troubled by Poundage in Tomorrow Night's Bout With Callahan

No doubt remained today but what Pinkey Mitchell would be able to make 140 pounds tomorrow at 2 o'clock—eight hours before he defends the junior welterweight championship against Mushy Callahan at Vernon. Mitchell scaled a little over 140 yesterday after his final workout and will be able to lose the excess by drying out.

If Mitchell had failed to make the poundage he would have forfeited both his $3500 belt and the title before getting into the ring.

MUSHY CALLAHAN

"Pinkey has not made the championship weight for a year, but he has kept within hailing distance of it," says Billy Mitchell, his brother-manager. "We have had five fights in the last two months which has put him in real fighting shape. Pinkey would never put up the title if he didn't think he was right."

The Mitchells are good business men. Pinkey would even try to make 135 pounds if the remuneration was large enough for a Mandell championship fight.

Callahan took his final workout yesterday at the Manhattan gymnasium. In the opinion of critics who have been watching him work daily, Mushy is in much better shape than he was for Gans.

"He trained too long for the Gans fight," says Eddie Sears. "After the accident to his eye he was more anxious than ever to keep training and hurt himself."

This match means more to Callahan than any fight he has ever had. Victory will bring him a title and nation-wide recognition.

Mushy will be little more than a lightweight when he meets Mitchell. He could dry out to 137 pounds easily at his present weight.

MYSTERIES ANNEX

The White Mystery Soaps triumphed over Virginia City, 5 to 0 yesterday, thanks to a classy hurling exhibition by Bookland who allowed but two scratch hits. Every member of the Soap nine garnered at least one bingle, Clayetty featuring with a triple, double and single, while Gillespie got a triple and a double. The score:

CALIFORNIA SPECTACULAR VICTOR IN R-BOAT RACE

Nick Potter sailed the veteran California to a spectacular victory yesterday afternoon in the California Yacht Club's fourth race for the fall R-class championship; the California won by a full minute over Alert III sailed by her owner, Charles Wiman, while Ben Weston was third with Debra.

Yesterday's event was the most thrilling affair of the entire season, with the three leading boats less than three seconds apart for the first eight miles of the twelve-mile course; the fleet sarted off Weldt Rock in a fresh, whole sail breeze, which held for the beat to Point Fermin, the long run down to Long Beach and then got flukey for the beat home.

California and Alert III elected to take the offshore course, and won thereby, while Debra and Patricia went in to the Terminal Island Beach and were becalmed. Calliano III, a late starter, nosing Patricia out for fourth place. Tommy Lee's Pirate was late again and did not start.

California yesterday set a new record for the triangular course of two hours, eight minutes and ten seconds. The results leave Debra leading with 18 points, Alert III in second place with 14 markers; California and Patricia third with 12 each; Calliano III, fifth with 4, and Pirate sixth, with 2 points.

PRO GOLFERS CLASH TODAY

GARDEN CITY (L. I.) Sept. 19.—The three-time jinx which pushed Bobby Jones off the amateur's golfing pinnacle has another chining mark to shoot at this week, in the person of the quite skillful divot digger, Walter Hagen. Tomorrow morning, Hagen and sixty-four other professional golfers who have qualified in sectional tournaments will test out drives from the first tee of the Salisbury course in quest of the professional golfers' championship.

OLYMPIC GRIDDERS DROP 12-TO-0 GAME

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19. (AP)—The Ninth Corps Area Army football eleven defeated the Olympic Club team, 12 to 0, before a crowd of 6000 in the Kezar Memorial Stadium here today.

The defeat of the clubmen was an upset, and was taken as an indication that they have a weaker team than was expected, despite the fact that they made an unimpressive showing against St. Ignatius a week ago.

Both the army touchdowns were made by Lieut. Gillman, the last, in the fourth period, after a 35-yard run. The contest was waged almost entirely in Olympic Club territory, and the clubmen at no time were within scoring distance.

Jim Petrie of the Philharmonic Auditorium expects a full house to receive the Dempsey-Tunney fight returns to be flashed over a special leased wire from Philadelphia to the ringside at the Auditorium, when Dan Tobey will read first-minute reports blow by blow. In addition to the fight announcements, Petrie has arranged for some high-class vaudeville acts and other entertainment.

NIXON EXPECTS SNAPPY ELEVEN

Pomona Coach Has Nine Vets Under His Wing

Regulars Have Experience of But One Year

Team Likely to be Strongest on Offensive

BY BRAVEN DYER

(This is the third of a series of seven stories dealing with football teams of the Southern Conference. Tomorrow—Whittier.—Ed. note.)

EUGENE NIXON

Eugene White Nixon, Pomona College football coach, is comforted by the none-too-cheering knowledge that things cannot possibly be any worse than they were last year. The Sagehens almost fell but of the Southern California Conference last season, the experience being a decidedly novel one for the institution which captured seven football titles over a period of but eight years.

Some body remarked the other day that they wouldn't mind being in Nixon's coaching shoes because he had virtually a full team of juniors returning. Just about the time this was said Nixon lost Lincoln Hall, veteran guard of last year, who was declared hors de combat due to injuries received on the field of battle a season ago. He returned to college but is as useless for football as a plugged nickel would be at a crap game between a flock of bank cashiers.

The loss of Hall, however, can be remedied—in fact, has been by the insertion of George Rodecker at the right guard berth. Young Mr. Rodecker is a junior and because of his obesity has been nicknamed "Barrel" by his cronies. His gross tonnage is roughly estimated in the neighborhood of 190 pounds. In this respect he greatly resembles Capt. Bob Burger, the Sagehen skipper, who holds down the other guard berth. Burger is the only two-year letter man on the squad, all of the other veterans having had but one year's actual varsity experience. Capt. Bob stopped growing skyward several years ago, just as Rodecker did, and if you stood them one on top of the other they wouldn't reach much above your own head. That's the way guards are supposed to be constructed, however, so Nixon is well pleased with his two stocky middle-of-the-line athletes.

TACKLES ARE OPPOSITE

The tackles are just the opposite, as they should be. One, Arthur Malach, stands six feet three inches high, minus his nongartered hosiery, while the other, Fritz Heemalhalch, is almost as tall Ma'ach is very loosely thrown together and with all his height weighs only 165 pounds. Heemalhalch has gained much notoriety by being the possessor of the only name which has caused Charles Wesley Kerveen to get his tonsils twisted while wafting his well-known tenor over the Coliseum loud speaker. Any time your cornornem makes Keppen tongue-tied, it will go down in history as something to conjure with.

Nixon is well fixed at the end berths, although his wingmen will be lighter than those on most of the other conference teams. Jack Cowan, who played on the championship 1924 eleven, is back in college, while Manny Natland, a letter man from last year, is also out. Other ends are Willard Rew, Dick Bell, Walt Shannon, Brink, Hagman and Baird. All are light and only Rew and Bell have had any varsity experience.

Malcolm Archibald and Dick Badham are battling for the center berth, this hole being open due to the graduation of Forris Scott. Nixon has been alternating them from night to night. Both are light. Archibald played a lot last year and will probably get the call. Badham is also used at tackle to good advantage.

BACKFIELD LOOKS GOOD

The Sagehen backfield ought to be a pretty good looking outfit. Harold Merritt shapes up on a par with any halfback in the conference, being able to run the ends, buck the line, pass or kick with equal ability. Jack Manildi returns as quarterback and should exceed the form he displayed at the close of the season last year when he began to find himself. "Duke" Neher, 180-pound halfback, has the makings of as good a plunging back as there is in the circuit and Nixon expects great things of him. Clyde Patton, fullback, weighs in at 175 pounds. This being supplemented from time to time by ex-Capt. Ed McCully, who spent most of his final year on the bench due to injuries.

If Merritt, Manildi, Neher and Patton function as they did in the Whittier and Occidental games last year, the Sagehens should have a good season. It must be remembered, however, that the traditional fight which wells up within the breast of Pomonans every time the Oxy tilt rolls around had considerable to do with that 6-to-3 score.

As Nixon himself says the team will be a snappy, little outfit, but just how much power the eleven will have remains to be seen. The Pomona coach likes the spirit his charges are displaying, but will make no predictions as most of the regulars are juniors with but one year of varsity experience to their credit.

Occidental looks much more powerful than the Sagehens, while the southern Branch outfit appears to have more potential push than Nixon's gang, due principally to more weight. Offhand, we'd say Pomona will be stronger offensively than defensively, because of Nixon's success with the forward pass. An almost complete lack of backfield subs may ruin the team if injuries hit the regulars.

TIGERS TAKE GAME FROM LA HABRA NINE

The Lone Tigers journeyed to La Habra and on a scrappy tilt, 11 to 7. The hon e-town nine outhit the visitors, 12 to 10, but three errors at critical mements enabled the Tigers to tally enough runs to win. The score:

Lone Tigers	R.	H.	E.
La Habra	11	10	1

PALMER LEADS AT ARROWHEAD

Southpaw Golfer Scores 159 to Cop Prize

Chet Lyday Finishes With 167 for Second

Duncan and Bell Tangle in Fox Hills Play

BY BILL WISE

LAKE ARROWHEAD, Sept. 19.—Ray Palmer, former La Cumbre southpaw, now a member of the Rancho Club, teamed with Chester Lyday, second heavyweight in the thirty-six-hole medal tourney at the Lake Arrowhead golf club here today, clipped off a 78 and an 81 for a thirty-six-hole aggregate of 159 to cop the main low gross trophy.

Lyday, after breaking a stub on the third hole, continued down the center of all fairways and was rewarded with a score of 167, which was just good enough to win the second low gross prize. Lester Hanson of the Oakmont Club, with 170-30-140, won first low net, and Willard George of Rancho scored a 187-36-151 to tie C. S. McMahon's medal, handicap and net, for the second low net cup. The tie will be played off in Los Angeles this week.

Ray Palmer.

More than fifty golfers competed in the first annual invitational tournament of the local club and Arrowhead authorities, functioning in the hospitable wake of J. B. Van Nuys, president of just about all that is Arrowhead, entertained visiting golfers in great shape.

Norma Shearer, motion-picture celebrity, a guest at the Lake Arrowhead Lodge, presented all winners with trophies, before an appreciative audience of more than 200 visitors here late this afternoon. H. N. Briggs, Arrowhead official, was awarded a rousing, but very complete, vote of thanks for the splendid competition held under the direct supervision of Aaron Vice, Lake Arrowhead professional.

BRUIN SENIORS WIN

BERKELEY, Sept. 19.—Seniors overpowered juniors three-to-one at the University of California in the first match of the annual interclass soccer series.

OBSERVATIONS

THERE doesn't seem to be any reason to believe that M. Rene La Coste is anything but a darn good tennis player. So far this year he has managed to capture the America indoor and outdoor ...les and the Wimbledon championship, which is more than a good shar... for anybody. From all accounts M. La Coste is the Helen Wills of male tennis. He is steady, methodical and well conditioned and, in the course of fi... sets, wears down more brilliant players by his consistency. Of the Frenchmen who have made their bid for fame this year Cochet, from all accounts, is by far the most brilliant as was shown by his defeat of Tilden but after outplaying La Coste for two sets he weakened and was worn down by the merciless hammering of the new titleholder.

• • •

Another big championship comes to Southern California with the victory of George Von Elm over Bobby Jones. We have had more than our share of laurels so far this year. Von Elm's victory, however, will b a popular one for the blond from Rancho has a big following out here and his uphill battle t... the title probably has made him a lot of new friends. While Jones was playing in top form from the first round of the tournament, Von Elm was having a bitter battle to eliminate every man he met. Apparently this wicked competition was exactly what he needed to put his game right up where it belonged and led him to ultimate triumph.

• • •

It's a little early to begin worrying about it but soones or later the Trojans, who have been undisputed cock of the football walk in Southern California, are going to find themselves with some competition. It isn't natural that one institution should stand out all by itself ... the midst of a huge community like ours and with the rapidly increasing registration at U.C. at L.A. it is natural to believe that the Grizzlies are the boys who are going to do it. Three or four years from now the battle between the Trojans and Grizzlies is going to be looked forward to annually with tremendous interest by all the fans.

• • •

In the meantime it looks very much as though our local hopes which are almost exclusively centered in the Trojans, might be rewarded with better than the customary success. Howard Jones has excellent material to work with and if the boys take his stuff and use it the way it is meant to be used they have a mighty good chance not only with any team on the Coast but with any team in the country.

SERAPHS SPLIT WITH SENATORS

Angels Capture Opening Tilt by 5-to-2 Score

Solons Grab Closing Number to Tune of 1 to 0

Los Angeles Annexes Series, Five Games to Two

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 19. (AP)—Sacramento and Los Angeles divided a twin bill today, the league-leaders grabbing the morning game at Stockton, 5 to 2, and the Senators capping the week with a sparkling 1-to-0 victory in the afternoon. The Seraphs took the series, five games to two.

The Angels overcame an early lead in the morning game. The Sacs drove Yarrison to the bench in the first frame when their two runs were counted on Rohwer's triple. Glazner replaced Yarrison and held the Solons scoreless for the balance of the game. Vinci was touched for eight hits.

Ray Keating mastered the leaders in the afternoon, doling out four well-scattered singles to earn a shutout. He whiffed nine batsmen.

The only tally of the game was scored in the fourth when singles by Cunningham and Osborn sent Koehler, who had walked, over the rubber. The score:

Portland Wins From Seals in Close Tussles

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19. (AP)—Portland won both games from San Francisco today, taking the morning contest, 6 to 5, and the afternoon affair, 4 to 3, in ten innings.

The Beavers had the luck in the morning, the winning run scoring on a fly into the sun which Suhr lost and King could not reach. The Beavers' big inning was in the third when they found three hurlers for three runs.

Oaks Divide With Monks; Annex Series

OAKLAND, Sept. 19. (AP)—After dropping the morning game and the series to Oakland, 6 to 4, the Missions came back in the afternoon contest today to win, 7 to 4.

The Missions lost the services of their star batter, Ike Boone, when a throw by Jimmy Reese, who was trying to complete a double play, struck the outfielder in the face. It is believed he suffered a fractured jawbone.

Buzz Arlett, Oakland's leading slugger, also was injured when, in the sixth inning of the afternoon game, he stumbled headlong against the concrete base of the right-field grand stand while making a catch. He suffered a bad injury to his hand.

ATTORNEY SILENT

After a lengthy conference at Mrs. Pierson's home, Saturday night, at which time it was said that did not break up until shortly before midnight, W. J. Hunt, recently retained as chief counsel for the Angelus Temple leader and her mother, declared that he could not make a statement of any kind until he has had ample time to go over the facts in the case. "I had my first real talk with Attorney McPherson regarding the facts in the case Saturday night," Mr. Hunt said, "and I am not prepared to issue a statement until I have studied them thoroughly."

The gray-haired lawyer who now handles the legal destinies of the temple officials said that he might possibly be able to make a statement to the press sometime Tues-

...RMER INNKEEPER TO BE QUESTIONED BY KEYES

Capt. C. A. Brink, former proprietor of Captain's Inn at Seal Beach will be questioned today by District Attorney Keyes in connection with his investigation of the Long Beach "kidnaping" phase of the McPherson case. Captain Brink was a life-long friend of the late William McKinley, blind attorney of Seal Beach, through whom Angelus temple leaders were negotiating with what have now been confessed to have been fake kidnapers, whose appearance in Mexico is to have verified Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson's story of having been kidnaped.

Miss Bernice Morris, who has admitted to the authorities her part in the scheme to produce faked evidence, yesterday declared Capt. Brink had promised to tell all he knows about the plan as related by Mr. McPherson. He will be the third witness giving testimony in support of the statement made by Miss Morris, who is secretary of the attorney.

...ERS DISCUSS ...PHERSON CASE

The McPherson case was discussed from the pulpit last night by Rev. ...A. Brieglieb at the Westlake ...rian Church and by Rev. ... F. Shuler at the Trinity ... Church.

Brieglieb assured his hearers he did not intend to pass upon matters of guilt or innocence. His mind, he said, is open as to the court evidence to come.

"I don't know whether Mrs. McPherson is guilty or innocent, but God only knows what she's going through tonight," he stated.

Concerning Mrs. McPherson for not having "stopped talking after she was kidnaping story," and for the sport of the District Attorney, Dr. Brieglieb asserted that Mrs. McPherson has the facts he ought to have recorded." He added, "It is not the business of the Christian ministry to pass upon the authorities that are sworn to enforce the law."

Shuler in his address was highly critical of Mrs. McPherson and a number of public officials.

Irrelevant

The teacher was giving a lesson on the Creation, but was finding it hard to hold the attention of the class.

Suddenly Thompson, the least attentive of all, interrupted with the question:

"My father says we are descended from apes, sir."

"Well," said the teacher, sharply, "private family matters have no place here for the class."—[Tit-Bits.

MRS. KENNEDY GIVES DETAILS OF WISEMAN EPISODE AND DEFENDS SISTER M'PHERSON

Following is a formal statement issued yesterday by Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, giving in detail her explanation of her dealings with Mrs. "Lorraine Wiseman" who was exposed as an impostor while offering false affidavits regarding the identity of Kenneth G. Ormiston's companion at Carmel:

STATEMENT OF MRS. KENNEDY

At the behest of our many friends I have prepared this statement:

They have told me that in all the mass of stories, rumors and reports that have been spread there seems to be no clear understanding of how and why we negotiated with Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman or did other things.

Our part in this affair we are very glad to tell at any time, and will now if our friends think it may be worth while.

Anyone can understand our motives in dealing with Mrs. Wiseman at that time. When she came to us we were in an hour of trial; so many untruths had been told about sister and we were afraid the public might be unjustly influenced. No one wants to be seen in an untrue and false light.

So, naturally we would grasp any opportunity which seemed to us to be a way to the truth.

Mrs. Wiseman came to Angelus Temple a mystery stranger and so she remained until the exposure of her life a few days ago.

Since the tragic events of the past few months have plunged us into so much sorrow we have been exerting every means in our power to clear up the case. To that end, we have met and interviewed many persons. Some who seemed to think they had information which should be traced up, we have employed or furnished expenses.

The facts are that we have felt from the very beginning that it has not been the purpose of the officials to aid us in the least, but rather to obtain from us very ounce of evidence, letter or statement, and having them in their possession, to leave us under the cloud.

PITIFUL SITUATION

All through the terrible days of May and June when we believed that Sister McPherson had been taken from this world, I worked faithfully and honestly with whatever officials came to me. I turned over to them evidence which I considered extremely valuable, and as far as I could learn, not one trail has really been followed. Without giving a reason therefor, the great purpose seemed to be to poison the public mind with the thought that Mrs. McPherson's story was unture. No one outside of ourselves could realize what a terrible and pitiful situation this has been.

Sister McPherson has been for seventeen years an evangelist, now foremost in her calling, the builder and founder of beautiful Angelus Temple, largest class A church in America, the spirit of radio KFSO, president of the International Institute of Foursquare Evangelism, the "Sister of the World," whose friends are in every land, city, town and hamlet.

Sister McPherson, after her three years of marvelous ministry in Angelus Temple, wherein she had never vacated her pulpit over a week-end, had been given a trip to the Holy Land by hr loving congregation. She had taken with her her 15-year-old, sunny-haired daughter, Roberta. She returned in late April. Her welcome crowd, it was estimated, was between 25,000 and 50,000 persons.

So straight had been her life that, try as they would, enemies of her Foursquare Gospel had been unable to compromise her, although many tried.

After her return from Palestine and London, where she spoke in the Royal Albert Hall, she ministered for three weeks in her church. Then, surrounded by all that could make life happy and hopeful, the blow fell.

Her story is a very simple one, and can be told in a short paragraph, as below:

STORY OF KIDNAPING

While resting, preparing her sermon and having a dip in the sea, Sister McPherson was enveigled to a car on the pretense of praying for a sick child, pushed in and taken away. Her faith in God sustained her and in due time she escaped. Her indomitable spirit, her well-known and marvelous vitality brought her over the weary miles and she was home again among her beloved people.

Do you think that a woman whose word has been good throughout her life, should be doubted without the slightest effort to verify it? Should public officials say, "Now we have her" and turn earth upside down for means to destroy her?

Detectives were sent asking her to tell her story in minutest detail. She did freely. Then, without her ever even having seen or signed the story, they broadcast it to the world with the doubts that it was true, and this message:

"The cold eye of official investigation is being turned upon her."

When we finally realized that we were not to receive help, but to be accused by the officials, we set to work as best we could through attorneys, detectives, friends and anyone who came stating that they had information they thought we should have.

At our own expense we cared for these matters. Interview after interview, trip after trip, expense after expense. Could we have had the aid instead of the "cold eye," I believe as there is a God in Heaven, justice would have revealed to the world the truth of Mrs. McPherson's story.

Carmel? The cottage by the sea? Anyone who knew Mrs McPherson could never in a thousand years be made to believe that she was there.

ENTER MRS. WISEMAN

Somebody was there and we hoped they would come forward and declare themselves. It didn't appeal to me at first that it was an immoral situation. The fact of the grocery slips indicated a good, steady home body. Apples, prunes, rice, tapioca and bran—none of these things are ever on Mrs. McPherson's diet, incidentally. And so we were looking for the woman.

One day while about my work, Mrs. Wiseman was introduced by one of our workers as the woman we had been looking for. I welcomed her. She acted strange and stealthy at first and I thought this was but natural with the kind of a story she told. We had never seen her before. She was a fine talker, and acted very helpful and sweet. She told of her burdened conscience, stating that she was "not Mr. McIntire's companion," but another woman was, whom finally she said was her sister. This sister, she said, was young, unmarried, delicate, not any too anxious to be revealed, but still would do so if necessary. That was the summary of her story.

I had Attorney Veitch interview her, and she stuck to her story. At first we took no action, even though she said she could bring her sister, stating that she had gone east.

Mrs. Wiseman's movements were cloaked in mystery. She came dashing up in a taxi and away again. We never watched or followed her, believing that if she were telling the truth she had a right to be protected. She stated that on account of her family and children she must conceal her address and position.

When she went away she told me if messages were sent she would sign herself "naughter" and refer to her sister as the "party." The Young Women's Christian Association, San Francisco, was the address she gave. That looked all right. Finally, when further accusations were being hurled at Mrs. McPherson, I telegraphed to Mrs. Wiseman: "Please communicate with me at once; need party's assistance immediately. —Mother."

GAVE AFFIDAVITS

I received a reply and presently Mrs. Wiseman again appeared, stating that the "party" was on her way from the East and would be here soon.

Mrs. Wiseman gave in detail an account of having been at Carmel dressed in her son's clothing during the "official search" for clues.

We tried to think how to prove the truth of Mrs. Wiseman's story and suggested the test of her going to Carmel to be identified by the persons who had seen the woman who was there. Mrs. Wiseman was eager and ready for this and every other test. She went, stating that she took with her her sister. Instead, however, of bringing back the testimonies of the witnesses, for some unexplained reason, she had given affidavits. But then, she had "Miss X," I reasoned, so it might be all right.

Mrs. Wiseman stated that she was bringing witnesses and going before the grand jury to clear up the entire matter. She always talked of big people and quoted high family connections. Among he witnesses were to be:

(1.) A dental surgeon of San Francisco.

(2.) The head man of the Equitable Life Insurance Company.

(3.) The owner of a taxicab company in Del Monte.

(4.) Her 19-year-old son.

When doubt of Mrs. Wiseman crept in strongest, she brought her son and as he looked such a fine, clean-cut young fellow, our fears were somewhat allayed.

"Look at him!" Mrs. Wiseman would cry. "Any one looking into his face would know that he was telling the truth."

We could not conceive of any one telling such a story as hers, except for the highest and most honorable purpose, to help an innocent person.

Many stories she told us during the time that she came and went—visits to Mr. Keyes, visits to Judge Keetch, visits to Dr. Gordon and to Mr. Benedict. It seemed she was so sure of her story!

FURTHER TESTS

When her handwriting and that on the Carmel cottage grocery slips were published, I suggested another test, that she go to an expert. This she did. Day after day she assured us that it was proving a satisfactory test, and only later did I learn the contrary.

Finally, as she talked about "Mr. McIntire" as she said she had known the mystery man of Carmel, we decided on another test. Mrs. Wiseman said if I would give her a letter of introduction she would go to the Chicago attorney, who said he was in touch with Mr. Ormiston, or "McIntire," and thus reach "Mr. McIntire," and that if he knew it was her he would be more than willing to see her. Most anxious to clear up and prove, right or wrong of the story, I scribbled a note on Attorney Martin's letter to us, and gave it to her, this later being found among her effects.

Another test, a severe one, it seemed to us, was—would she be photographed? There had been a number of doubles who had appeared, and in several cases I had had photographs taken with Sister McPherson. In fact the papers printed the photograph of one such double some time ago. Mrs. Wiseman suggested that sister arrange her hair lower than her customary mode. I arranged the first photographs and must admit that these untouched prints showed a resemblance of contour. We did not intend these pictures for publication, and when Mrs. Wiseman's picture was published and unchallenged for weeks, it seemed that she must be telling the truth!

ALWAYS CONVINCING

As another test—I asked if she was willing to face Mr. Benedict. "Indeed I am, and he will recognize me instantly," she replied. She returned in apparent jubilation, stating that Mr. Benedict felt that she was the woman, but that he was too much of a gentleman to say so. Next day she stated she would like to see Mr. Benedict again, and persuaded Mrs. McPherson to drive her to the Glendale Sanitarium. Returning to the automobile she stated that Mr. Benedict felt sure that she was the woman that was there.

Even in the matter of glasses and hat, she gave specific directions how she was dressed and what they were like when she was at Carmel. In all these efforts she was convincing and dominating. Each day some new story or detail to add.

Finally she decided to give out one more story to the press, she said, before returning with her son to San Francisco, using the story published from her interviews with the reporters, and insisted that our stenographer write it for her. While Mrs. Wiseman dictated this statement, she and the stenographer were alone. Later, after the statement was typed, she asked me if I would not go over it before it was submitted to the press. She also tried in various ways to persuade Sister McPherson to do this also, but failed. Beyond a few trifling words, whose the meaning was in no wise changed, there were no alterations made or suggested by myself.

Mrs. Wiseman seemed relieved and stated that she was going to have another of her famous interviews with the press and was then returning to San Francisco. She bade me good-by with the significant words. "I may not see you again; but this statement will clear up everything."

ASKED NO MONEY

One of the strongest appeals, out of her personal attributes, was the fact that at no time did she ask or suggest remuneration for her time or work. I, myself, volunteered the offer to care for her expenses to and from San Francisco and other points while seeking evidence. This is what we have done with everyone, and it seemed the only way by which we could ever hope for investigation.

Mrs. Wiseman expressed herself clearly to the fact that all she did would be at her own expense and even insisted upon giving notes for the major portion of the money supplied for current expenses. Never, at any time or in any way, shape or manner, did Mrs. Wiseman suggest remuneration of any kind, always declaring that every penny advanced should be returned. Her statement was that it was their fault and had gotten Sister McPherson into trouble; that she would never rest until it was all cleared up. She told me she had drawn seven hundred dollars from her account to use.

The public may recall that on each occasion when Mrs. Wiseman's story appeared in the press we sent out a statement declaiming all responsibility for her and her story.

All of our actions have been honorable, open and above board. The position in which we now find ourselves is beyond our understanding. The only fault of ours has been credulity of persons coming to us in apparently good faith, but who have victimized us.

And yet, what would you do if you were in our place? Would you have done other than we did? We have employed detectives and by every means known to us, done our part without expense to State or county.

We are suffering now the indignities, humiliations and tortures which should not be given a convicted criminal. Whether or not it will be in God's will to bring to justice or knowledge the persons responsible, we may never know; but we rest assured that the great searchlight of God will be turned on when we all stand before His bar. Meantime, there are countless thousands of precious men and women throughout the world whole lives have been redeemed from destruction and made happy and holy through the ministry of Aimee Semple McPherson.

I am her mother. She is my beloved daughter. No untruth could touch her lips.

MRS. MINNIE KENNEDY.

LIGHTS BOON TO ATHLETIC FISH

DELTA (Wis.) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—The artificial light which fools the hen into laying more eggs than nature intended, is now being used by Charles R. Wolf, owner of the Springbrook Trout Reserve, to lure succulent bugs to the dinner table of his charges. Believing that trout get logey from too much liver and too little exercise, Wolf evolved a scheme which not only "brings down the overhead," but also serves to give his fish the athletic and streamline bodies so admired by the anglers. By the simple procedure of stringing electric light bulbs across his trout pond, Wolf lures unsuspecting bugs close enough to the water as to be easy prey to the trout. The lights are switched on in the early morning darkness and at dusk, natural feeding time of the fish.

Thousands See Jackie Coogan's Bay City Circus

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19. (AP)—Ten thousand persons thronged the Tanforan race track today at a circus given by Jackie Coogan, juvenile film actor, to raise funds to build a memorial lake for John McLaren in Golden Gate Park.

McLaren is superintendent of the park and is given credit for developing the park to its present state of beauty.

LEGION RANK IS REFUSED BY PERSHING

Declines Commandership Nomination and Chance to Lead Hosts to Paris

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Hopes, shared in by scores of posts throughout the country, that Gen. Pershing would lead the American Legion to its convention in Paris next summer, were dissipated today when his refusal to stand for national commander of the organization was announced through the War Department.

Writing to George Washington post of the Legion in this city, which first proposed his name for national commander, the general pleads other important duties as justification for declining "an honor that might well crown the career of any soldier," and asserts that while he is in hearty accord with "the noble aims and purposes of the Legion," he is not seeking any of its offices and is "content to serve in the ranks."

The general makes no reference in the letter, which is published by the War Department, to the present controversy in the Legion over plans for the 1927 convention, and offers no advice to his comrades on the wisdom of holding the reunion in Paris in the face of a growing antagonism on the part of the French people toward the United States, as reported in press dispatches and the stories of travelers returning from abroad.

POLAND TO RECALL ENVOY TO AMERICA

WARSAW, Sept. 19. (Exclusive) Jan Ciechanowski, the Polish Minister at Washington, will be recalled, it is declared. M. Kletrzynski, Polish Minister to Russia, also will be recalled and the Minister to Japan, M. Patek, will be transferred to Russia.

MORE BANKERS ON WAY HERE

Delegates to Convention on Special Trains

Trip to Los Angeles Includes Visit to Canada

Party Made Up of Wives and Financiers' Friends

NEW YORK, Sept. 19. (Exclusive) Two special trains designated the "Red and Blue Bankers' Specials" left the Pennsylvania station at 7:10 tonight carrying between 300 and 500 members of the American Bankers' Association, their wives, friends and newspaper men, who will attend the fifty-second annual convention of the association in Los Angeles, October 4 to 7.

This contingent is the third to leave for the transcontinental trip, the first group having sailed Thursday on the Finland and the second having left here Friday on a tour arranged by the New York Central Railroad.

In all approximately 1000 bankers, their wives and friends, have started for the convention, at which there are expected between 7000 and 8000 persons. Those who departed on the "Red and Blue Specials" will receive all conveniences a modern railroad can give. Each train is equipped with the latest type combination sleeper and parlor coach, club, dining and observation cars, shower baths, barbers, valets and ladies' maids.

Officials of the general passenger department of the Pennsylvania are on both trains to aid W. E. Eastman, Jr., and John S. MacWilliams, who are in charge of the "Blue" and the "Red" specials, respectively, in the general supervision of the trip. The tour will include stops at Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis; then will cross the border into Canada, stopping at Banff, Lake Louise, Jasper National Park and Vancouver. It will pass through the most beautiful sections of the Canadian Rockies. Entering the United States again, the train will halt at Portland, Seattle and San Francisco and thence by boat to Los Angeles.

Among the side trips that have been arranged are those to the Roosevelt dam, a ride over the Apache Trail, tour of the Grand Canyon and motor trips through the various cities where the specials will stop.

CROP LOSS CAUSES RANCHER'S SUICIDE

MODESTO, Sept. 19. (AP)—John Balsa, 40 years of age, a rancher living near here, committed suicide today, his widow reported to the Sheriff's office. Mrs. Balsa expressed a belief that worry over the failure of his crops caused her husband to kill himself.

EXPANSION DUE IN AIR SERVICE

Extension Into Foreign Fields Forecast

Plane Mail to Havana Will Begin in January

Army Maps Flight Cruise of South America

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—That the United States is on the verge of important forward steps in the field of commercial aviation and that this development later will extend to foreign fields, is the opinion of officials in various departments which are interested in the growth of this branch of industry and science. The progress which is being made in different directions and the increasing and widespread interest which is being taken in aviation, leads them to believe that the day is not far distant when commercial air service routes will cover the United States.

How far and how rapidly it will be possible to extend air communication, either by airplane or dirigible, to foreign countries on this continent or in Europe, will depend on future progress in the art of flying and in the size and safety of the machines. Government officials were not willing today to go so far as to predict that regular trans-Atlantic passenger and commercial service was in sight, although to some of the nearer American republics it is believed to be a matter of the near future.

Mail service to Havana is expected to start about January 1, next, when a new airplane service to Cuba is opened, and it is believed this will be extended to Central America and Panama within the next year. Airplane-mail service across the Atlantic, in the opinion of some officials, will also be established in the not distant future.

While the United States has not been developing its commercial aviation as rapidly as have many of the European countries, it is pointed out that in airplane-mail service this country is leading all others and that it is doing this without government subsidy to help maintain the operating companies. With this as a basis, it is believed that commercial aviation in this country will develop rapidly once the industry has reached a point which shows it can be made a permanent success.

ARMY FLIGHT MAPPED

The coming flight of five army airplanes around Latin America, covering a distance of 18,000 miles in visits to the capitals and other important cities of the South and Central American republics, Mexico and the West Indies, will be a great incentive, it is believed, to the promotion of commercial aviation, not only between the various republics to the south, but also between those countries and the United States. The army flyers are expected to start from Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex., early next December and, without any attempt to make speed records, visit the capitals of the nations along the route and give opportunity for the examination of the airplanes by all observers who are interested in the development of commercial aviation

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

MISSION BELLS RING NO MORE

Metal Messengers Stilled by Fall of Tower

Campanile of San Luis Rey Near Ruin

Fathers Plea for Funds for Repairs

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 19.—Unless the citizens of San Diego come to the rescue, the famous old bells of San Luis Rey, which toppled July 22, last, never will ring again from the historic campanile of the mission, it was announced here today by the Franciscan fathers. The campanile can be saved by an outlay of $6000, and if this money is not forthcoming, the winter rains will destroy it, as the outer covering was cracked when the bells fell.

"The historic old bells that for more than a century have rung out over San Luis Rey Valley are at last silent," says a statement from the Franciscans.

"The old campanile of Mission San Luis Rey has split and a large part of the base and the belfry has crumbled to the ground. For some time the tile shell encasing the adobe base of the tower has cracked and attempts to repair the damage were unsuccessful. The ruins of Southern California ate into the heart of the old monument and early in the morning on July 22 it collapsed. The bells were hurled to the ground, and the belfry, perhaps one of the most perfect examples of old mission architecture in California, was left a shattered ruin. Engineers who have gone over the damage say that the part of the tower which still remains standing cannot withstand the rainy season. If immediate repairs are not made the fine old campanile of San Luis Rey is doomed to sink into the dust, as have so many of the other mission structures along the Camino Real.

"The old bell tower was raised in 1812 by the famous fray, Antonio Peyri. Its unique grace and proportion stood as a monument to the genius of the clever padre-architect. To the weary wanderer up and down the Kings highway in the days of Spanish California, this landmark was ever a haven of rest and hospitality. To the American pioneers who came into the land and found the mission in ruins it was an inspiration. Today it is a place of pilgrimage where the tourist comes to catch a glimpse of the colorful past.

"According to a number of architects and engineers, headed by R. Benton of the California Landmarks Club, the tower can be saved by binding it with steel beams and encasing the adobe base in a shell of concrete. In this way the part of the superstructure which still remains intact can be preserved. The costs for carrying out this plan, according to these experts, will approximate $6000."

Ship Fined for Entering Harbor Without Rights

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 19. (AP)—A fine of $220 for entering San Diego Harbor without proper customs papers has been levied against the salvaged Canadian rum-running schooner Marion G. Douglas by the San Diego customshouse.

The Douglas was towed into port by the Bergen yesterday after having been picked up practically abandoned on the high seas.

In addition to the customs fine, Al Jewel, who claims he was shanghaied aboard the mystery ship as caretaker prior to its salvage by the Bergen, has a claim against the schooner for $450 in wages. The crew of the Bergen also will file a claim against the hapless rum-runner while M. Kondo, charterer of the Bergen, is to institute a libel suit in the United States Federal Court for towage and salvage.

The Douglas was found abandoned by officials and crew recently off the West Coast of Mexico.

ODD FELLOWS LAY STONE AT VAN NUYS

VAN NUYS, Sept. 19.—An assembly of about 500 persons this afternoon at 3 o'clock witnessed the laying of the corner-stone of the new Odd Fellows' Building in Friar street. Past Grand Master Longley and District Deputy Grand Master May were in charge of the ceremonies, being assisted by local officers and other prominent Odd Fellows who had been invited from the various lodges in District No. 42. Preceding the corner-stone laying there was a parade from the present quarters of the lodge to the new site. After the ceremony the large crowd went to the second floor of the new building, where an address on "Odd Fellowship" was made by Rev. Bruce Brown, pastor of the South Park Christian Church, Los Angeles, and a music program given.

INVITE EVERY ELK TO STATE MEETING

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 19.—Every Elk in California has been invited to attend the State convention in Santa Monica October 6 to 9, according to John F. Morton, City Commissioner and chairman of the Santa Monica Elks' lodge invitation committee. Arrangements are being made to care for and entertain all families and friends of Elks in attendance. Santa Monica's 1600 Elks, aided by the entire herd of 2500 from Southland cities, are preparing for the big conclave. Bands, drill teams and members will attend from Pasadena, Glendale, Alhambra, Whittier, Anaheim, San Bernardino, Riverside, Santa Ana, Huntington Beach, Redondo, Long Beach, San Diego and other cities, all planning to send large delegations.

GIVEN NEW POSITION

ALHAMBRA, Sept. 19.—N. L. DeVoe, Deputy City Treasurer and candidate for City Treasurer at the last municipal election, has been appointed accountant in the office of R. B. Wallace, City Clerk. He is at present on his vacation and his new position, at an increase in salary, will be waiting him on his return.

AWAIT WORD FROM WOMAN

Fate of Proposed Through Boulevard Depends Upon Decision of Mrs. Baldwin

ARCADIA, Sept. 19.—The three-year-old battle to connect Colorado avenue in Pasadena with Orange avenue in Arcadia and Monrovia through the E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin estate today faces immediate success or probably failure, and its fate will be decided by one word from a woman, Mrs. Anita Baldwin, who is now in Paris.

The deciding factor is Mrs. Baldwin's approval or rejection of the opening of Baldwin avenue, north and south across the estate from Foothill Boulevard to Huntington Drive.

Several months ago, she agreed to offer rights of way across the ranch for the Colorado extension project, with the condition that no more roads should be cut through the property for fifty years.

The fifty-year clause immediately aroused a storm of protest from Baldwin-avenue sponsors, who sought to connect that road north from Huntington Drive into the Sierra Madre foothill section and open a new direct route from the mountains to the sea. Their position has been supported by the County Planning Commission and the City Trustees of Arcadia have changed their original plan to accept the fifty-year clause agreement without considering Baldwin avenue.

At a meeting in Lamanda Park last night, County Supervisor Cogswell stated that the county was ready to assist in improving a highway across the estate but that all action to obtain rights of way must be initiated by Arcadia. Mayor A. N. Muiter or Arcadia, added that this could be done only by agreement with Mrs. Baldwin, with whom the city of Arcadia has always maintained friendly relations. A suggestion to force through the highway under the Martoon Act would not be approved by the Arcadia Council, Muiter said.

An agreement, embodying the fifty year clause, but permitting the opening of Baldwin avenue as well as Colorado through the estate, has been approved by Mrs. Baldwin's attorneys and is now in the hands of Arcadia trustees, lacking only a cable from Mrs. Baldwin approving her signature. This cabled "yes" or "no" has been expected for several days and doubtless will be received this week, local officials declared.

CHURCHES INJURED BY ANTS

Pasadena Continues Battle Against Insect Pests in Effort to Stop Damage

PASADENA, Sept. 19.—Seven stores and two churches are among local buildings which the municipal inspection department has found in its present survey to be damaged by white ants, or termites, but the danger from the insect attack recently discovered here is not as great as it was believed at first and Chief Building Inspector Walter Putnam declared today that he is confident of complete victory over the invading army.

The survey which the building department has been conducting for the last few weeks has revealed that no school buildings have been damaged by the termites, and that the damage so far discovered in other public or semipublic structures is not serious enough to cause any grave alarm.

The schools are examined first in the course of the general survey to determine the exact status of the "ant situation," and inspectors are now engaged in going over the churches and the store and office buildings in the downtown business section.

The chief damage discovered has been in old structures. In many of these, the ants have formed large colonies, eating away joists, supports and flooring. Dangerous conditions have been repaired as soon as discovered, while further investigation and examination of buildings continue.

Putnam is co-operating with building departments of other cities where the same insects have attacked buildings, and as soon as the definite status of conditions here is determined, is confident that a thorough campaign of extermination and control can be carried out successfully.

GET QUICK SERVICE

Mexican Youth Pulls Fire Alarm Instead of Telephone

ALHAMBRA, Sept. 19. — The education of Dario Marcias, a Mexican youth, has progressed rapidly in the last twelve hours. And during the next five days, while he is a prisoner in the City Jail, he will have leisure time to think of his newfound information and of the wonders of modern appliances.

Marcias, who said he came from Santa Barbara but that he had no home, alighted from a Pacific Electric car in Alhambra, near Palm avenue and Chestnut street. He was not quite clear as to his bearings, it appeared, and looked around for something or some one to give him directions.

Not sighting any persons of whom he could inquire, he thought of a telephone. There on the corner was a bright red box and with Marcias action followed on the heels of his inspiration. As he explained to Police Judge H. S. Farrell later, he intended to call up the telephone company to ask where he was.

Marcias got the right number and he got quick service. For almost before he could turn around two fire engines were steaming around the corner. He was in jail before the clanging of the fire department apparatus had died down.

SERVICE CLUBS IN FAVOR OF BONDS

REDONDO BEACH, Sept. 19.—Rotary and Lions clubs of Redondo Beach have indorsed the $25,000 bond project to build a public library, introduced by City Trustee Robert McMasters, former city engineer of Monrovia and Arcadia. The proposition will call for an early election on the issue. The library, if built, to be situated in the municipally owned park at the foot of Opal street and adjoining the south beach. The rooms occupied by the library in the City Hall at present, are declared to be inadequate by those sponsoring the issue.

MEETING TUESDAY ON SEWER TRUNK PLANS

VAN NUYS, Sept. 19.—Members of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of San Fernando Valley will meet in Los Angeles on Tuesday with a subcommittee of the City Council's Health and Sanitation Committee to discuss the valley sewer project. W. T. Knowlton, sanitary engineer of the Board of Public Works, has stated to the board that the cost of the valley's trunk project would be about $2,500,000. The valley representatives are expected to show an averseness to any part of the work being done by a special district bond issue. They have previously contended that all cost should be met by a general bond issue.

WATER DEPARTMENT EMPLOYEES' PICNIC

ENCINO, Sept. 19.—Between 2000 and 3000 employees of the Los Angeles Water and Power Department yesterday enjoyed their annual picnic in a large oak grove here. Those in attendance were employees from the Los Angeles headquarters office and from the various offices in the metropolitan district. Dinner was served under the trees at 1:30 p.m. The feature of the entertainment program consisted of addresses by various officials of the department and a long series of athletic events that kept up until nearly dark. The picnic as a whole was one of the largest affairs in point of numbers ever held in this vicinity.

How Much Time Does a Woman Need to Shop?

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 19. — How much times does the average woman shopper require for parking the family automobile in the shopping district? The question may be settled by the ladies themselves, so far as Santa Monica is concerned, through a plan submitted by T. A. Johnson, chairman of the Santa Monica-Ocean Park Chamber of Commerce committee appointed to study downtown parking conditions here.

At a meeting in the Miramar Hotel yesterday, Johnson reported that a woman requires anywhere from one to five hours to complete her shopping, and that the forty-five-minute parking ordinance in the downtown district works a real hardship on women shoppers. Merchants on Santa Monica Boulevard, Third, Fourth and Fifth streets are said to be about unanimous in approval of the chamber expert's opinion. As for merchants in less congested sections of the city, opinion is said to differ.

A conference of all merchants in the forty-five-minute parking zone is scheduled for the near future. And in the meanwhile, shoppers declare, the frantic rush from bargain to bargain and from parking-place to parking-place, will continue with feverish zest.

California Hens Go on Double Duty

GLENDALE, Sept. 19.—The hens of California have caught the idea of trying to impress the tourist and advertise their native State, according to Frederick C. Wolter, 315 North Orange street.

Wolter, a few days ago, purchased a dozen eggs from a Zelzah poultry farm, and when he came to prepare the morning bacon and eggs the first two eggs that were cracked in the pan proved to have double yolks. This might have been a mere coincidence, but the Wolter family kept watch of the eggs as they were used, and the entire family is ready to take oath, individually and collectively, that every egg in the dozen had a double yolk, which raises the incident, he says, from the realm of the coincidental to that of the phenomenal. Wolter says that the hens that have been laying off during the molting season have realized their duty and are now going on double production schedules.

SHERIFF SUGGESTS ADDED EQUIPMENT

TEMPLE, Sept. 19.—Recommendation that all substations of the Sheriff's office be furnished with pulmotors has been made by Deputy Sheriff C. L. Dice of the Temple substation. The suggestion was made by Acting Assistant Chief Deputy R. S. Conly, in charge of all substations in the county.

The need for pulmotors installed in places where they are available without loss of time was brought forcibly to the attention of the local deputies last week when a 6-year-old boy was drowned in a Rosemead reservoir. The body was found a few minutes after the accident and a call was sent to the Los Angeles Fire Department for the pulmotor squad. The firemen arrived too late to save the child's life.

TOO MANY AUTOMOBILES

VISALIA, Sept. 19.—With workmen tearing out the steel trolley poles through the yards here, old-timers recall the heydey of the old Visalia Electric Railroad.

This work will continue until this last semblance of an electric line is no more.

The Visalia Electric Railroad suspended operations as an electric line several years ago, when advent of the automobiles drove business from the rails to the highways.

RIVERSIDE READY FOR FAIR

Fourteenth Annual Southern California Event to Open Tomorrow Morning at 10 o'Clock

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 19.—This is fair week in Riverside. Merchants already have started to decorate their stores, and by the opening at 10 a.m. Tuesday the city will be in gala array.

Thursday has been designated as Riverside day, and all stores will close at noon to give employees an opportunity to visit the fair. A special program has been arranged for that afternoon.

Many exhibits are already in place in the hugh agricultural and educational tents, and Mrs. C. G. Cravens, secretary, announces that everything will be in readiness when the gates are swung open.

As an added attraction, arrangements are being made for the appearance of Miss Rachel Rojas Lecouna, famous Mexican prima donna, who is a house guest of Col. C. J. Velarde of Los Angeles. It was through Col. Velarde's co-operation that the exhibit from Mexico was obtained, and he will be honored by the fair directors during fair week. This exhibit, the most comprehensive ever shown by the sister republic of the south, is one of the finest at the fair grounds.

It was announced today that the World War Veterans' Pipe Band will lead the parade of prize-winning cattle and horses on Sunday afternoon, the closing day. The parade will be followed by the appearance of the Russian Balalaika Orchestra and the Los Angeles Welsh Male Chorus of forty voices under the direction of William Rees.

J. E. Wherrell, president, announced that he contracted for the appearance each afternoon of Tip and Top, child acrobatic dancers, aged 10 and 12 years. Their act has been one of the sensations of western vaudeville circuits.

The natural forest setting given the production in pageant form of Longfellow's poem, "Hiawatha" by 150 Indian students from the Sherman Institute, is declared by those who have visited the fair grounds to be the finest ever presented in Southern California. The caste has been rehearsing every night, and with the lighting effects obtained by the mammoth varicolored flood lights from Los Angeles, the spectacle, which will be given every evening during the fair, promises to be the finest ever offered by the fair association, noted for its pageants.

The opening day, Tuesday, will be Southern California Children's Day. All children will be admitted free. The junior fair, with boy and girl agricultural students acting as directors under the supervision of Richard J. Werner, State superintendent of agricultural instruction, is expected to be a big feature for the young visitors.

"We have undoubtedly the finest fair ever presented in Southern California," said President Wherrell today. "Fifty per cent of the appropriation has been spent in educational features, and we believe that we have something that will amaze visitors.

"Our exhibits give a true picture of the activities in the Southland. Especially is this true of the cotton and date shows. The cotton exhibit is especially fine. It is sure to be one of the main attractions."

SWAPPING HUSBANDS, SUIT PLAINT

Wife Charged With Asking Friend to Exchange Males With Her

An asserted proposal on the part of his wife to swap husbands with another woman was charged by Russell William Crook on a cross-complaint for divorce he filed to a suit instituted by his wife, Mrs. Florence W. Crook.

Crook declared his wife was infatuated with Carl Passow and that she suggested to Mrs. Passow they trade husbands.

"You live with Crook and I'll live with Passow," Crook quoted his wife as suggesting to Mrs. Passow. The cross-complaint did not reveal Mrs. Passow's attitude to the asserted suggestion.

Crook also asserted his wife was seen hugging and kissing Passow and he declared she dressed in an unladylike manner and neglected her home and children.

Mrs. Crook started the divorce proceedings by filing a complaint in which she charged her husband with cruelty. She asserted Crook threatened to kill her.

The couple were married November 19, 1921, and separated June 23, last, according to the complaint.

NEAR END OF SONG CONTEST

Best Written Poems Submitted to Song Writer for Pasadena Prize

PASADENA, Sept. 19.—Decision as to the winner of the Tournament of Roses Association's international contest to obtain a poem in tribute to the rose, which will be set to music by Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond, widely-known composer, now rests with Mrs. Bond, who is shortly to return from Europe.

Of the thousands of poems entered in the contest, the six which the judges believe to be the best have been forwarded to Mrs. Bond, and the one which she chooses will receive the tournament association's $500 prize.

If Mrs. Bond receives the lyrics in time to make her selection before leaving Europe, she will write the music in Vienna and immediately mail the completed song to the tournament offices here. If she returns before the poems reach her, she will write the music as soon as she arrives in Southern California. In either case, the finished composition will become the official song of the Tournament of Roses and will be used in this New Year's Day's floral pageant.

Of the six poets who still remain in the competition, one lives in Boston, one in Chicago, one in Florida and three live in California. Entries were received from every State in the Union and from many foreign countries.

By its stipulation forbidding any reference to Pasadena or the Tournament of Roses, the association hopes that the ultimate song will have a universal appeal. Mrs. Bond's voluntary offering of her services made the contest possible.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS IN PROFUSION

Blossoms at Montebello Show Will Make Exhibit a Fairyland

MONTEBELLO, Sept. 19.—Bringing to a climax a year of unusual horticultural progress the State Flower Show will attract thousands of visitors to Montebello this week.

The show, sponsored by the California Association of Nurserymen opens to the public at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night with what is expected to be one of the finest displays of rare and beautiful plants, shrubs and blossoms ever gathered together in the Southland.

Montebello has taken this occasion to stage a double celebration and in addition to opening the flower show the new municipal park, where the exhibition will be held, is to be dedicated. Addressed by J. D. Meriwether of Ontario, president of the State association, and by Milo V. Chapin, president of the Montebello Chamber of Commerce, are scheduled for the formal ceremony.

Not only are professional growers competing for silver cups valued at thousands of dollars, but amateur gardeners and leading florists of all parts of the State have entered exhibits in their divisions, assuring a wide variety of every rare and beautiful plant grown in California.

Greatest interest is perhaps centered in the rivalry among the nurserymen to prevent Howard & Smith of Montebello from repeating their victory of last year in the sweepstakes. Another win this year will give this company permanent possession of the coveted trophy and among the growers who have entered exhibits are the Los Angeles park department, Paul Howard, Herbert Bateman, F. R. Hills, Amaling Brothers, Morris & Snow, Azgeler & Musser, and Blaksley nurseries of Los Angeles; the Coolidge Rare Plant, Southern California and Rust Nurseries, Pasadena; the Armstrong Nursery, Ontario; the San Pedro Ranch Nursery; Merrick Nursery, Whittier; Mrs. W. G. McDonald and John Ireman, Bellflower; the Cage, Roy F. Wilcox, Star and Gerlinger organizations, Montebello; J. P. Cordes, Monterey Park, and the Beverly Hills Nursery.

Some indication of the variety and beauty of the cut-flower exhibits is given by the list of entries in this division announced yesterday by the show committee. The following prominent florists of Southern California will compete: The Athletic Club, Biltmore, Alexandria, Ambassador, Darling, Jonathan Club, Broadway, Wilshire, Destals, Wrights, Goldensons, Benafels, H. C. Morgan and Harry Hansen shops of Los Angeles, and F. M. Felt of Hollywood. Cut flowers from some of the beautiful Pasadena estates will also be shown.

Roy S. Walker, secretary of the Pasadena Horticultural Association, is show manager and Carl H. Kleselhorst, John L. Wyer and Fred Howard of Montebello and Mr. Meriwether of Ontario are on the executive committee which will announce judges, entertainment and other features of the exposition early this week.

Start Move for Monument for Great Actress

SANTA ANA, Sept. 19.—Orange county should take steps to commemorate the career of Mme. Helena Modjeska, famous Polish tragedienne, who, with her husband, Count Charles Bozenta Chalapowski, made her home in Orange county for many years, in the opinion of Louis Dana of Anaheim and other citizens of the mother colony who are eager to have a monument to the woman's memory erected in that city.

Modjeska, whom Dana described as being without a doubt one of the greatest players who ever walked a stage, loved Orange county and Anaheim in particular, Dana said, and it would be fitting for a statue to her memory to be erected in Anaheim. He also believes that the name of the City Park in Anaheim should be officially listed as Modjeska Park.

In Santa Ana today the suggestion of Dana was received with some difference of opinion as regards the proper place for the monument. It was pointed out here that Mme. Modjeska selected a sylvan retreat in the hills back of Orange County Park as her real Orange county home and that her residence in Anaheim was only maintained during the sparser years of her career on the American stage. However, especially among the older persons who came to know and love Modjeska, there was a unanimity of opinion that the people of the county, as a whole, could well afford to erect a suitable monument to her.

MAY CALL FOR BIDS FOR NEW HOSPITAL

VISALIA, Sept. 19.—It is believed that a call for bids for construction of the first unit of the new Tulare County Hospital, to be erected in the city of Tulare, may be issued by the Tulare County Board of Supervisors at their regular meeting tomorrow. However, Supervisor F. M. Pfrimmer of Porterville will be in Los Angeles at a meeting of officials to consider financing of the proposed trans-Sierra highway through the Mt. Whitney region to Inyo county, and it may be action on the new hospital will be deferred until his return.

A tax rate was fixed by the Supervisors last year to raise some $200,000 in two years for construction of the first unit of the new County Hospital. Part of this fund is now available, and the board is prepared to issue call for bids.

Pasadena Policies Come to White Heat

Effort to Change Form of Government

Forecast Climax at Hands of City Directors

PASADENA, Sept. 19.—Political unrest, long-existent among the members of the Board of City Directors, in which Pasadena is being governed, are expected to reach a climax at a crisis Tuesday when the directors meet to decide whether or not they will call a special election on the question of changing the form of municipal government from the present City Manager to the Mayor and Council plan.

The question is one that has been growing in intensity for months and is causing in general interest at present. For two years and has been the subject of many in numerous letter to the editor and meetings of the City Board.

Tuesday is the day upon which for a final decision, following presentation two weeks ago by a committee of citizens headed by John S. Gray of a petition asking that the directors call the special election.

The petition is reported to bear as that presented to the board two years ago, at which more than 3000 voters signed. Pasadena has since that time increased in population and business have come out for the change or and there are those of opposition and many believe that if the question is held the proposal will be adopted.

Three of the City Directors, Cole, William Thorpe and Newcomer, favor calling the election and have attempted to have the board meetings to put the election members to give their support, four, while holding out for dignantly denied accusations that they are "little emperors" and declared that they will not be forced to give their decision Tuesday.

Road District May be Way to Solve Problem

ANAHEIM, Sept. 19.—Organization of a road improvement district comprising the entire production of Tonopah mills and the street from La Palma and to Fullerton city limits to meet that point with the extension of Harbor avenue, Fullerton, may be the solution of this street-paving problem, George W. Reid, secretary of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce, declared today.

The city extension committee of the chamber has been working for more than a year on the project and has only recently secured the deed of right of way. Reid said.

Harvard street in Fullerton has been opened through to Harbor, where it would connect with Lemon street, and the next move is to have Anaheim and the Brea district sponsor a bond election. The improvement is planned as an additional traffic artery and is advocated as an important step in solving the traffic congestion problems through the city.

UTAH OIL AREA WILL BE TESTED

California Money Back of Elk Ridge Well

Heavy Production Expected to be Found

Development Cost Excessive, Operators Say

Word that oil exploration in Southeastern Utah is to be vigorously prosecuted with large financial backing from California has just been brought back by C. Ray Gilliland, trustee of the Gilliland oil estates, on his return from the visit to the Elk Ridge district of Utah.

Resulting from the recent visit to California of John C. Howard, president of the Utah Refining Company, according to Mr. Gilliland, large oil companies here have signed operating agreements and agreed to contribute to the cost of the test now being put down by the Utah company on the Elk Ridge structure, on the west half of Sec. 30, 34-19.

Included in the organizations contributing to the test are said to be the Union Oil Company, on the L. W. Terrill permit; Associated Oil Company, on the Harold R. Smoot permit; Gilmore Oil Company, on the J. I. Free permit; Julian Petroleum Corporation, on the J. S. Whitmore permit; Snowden & McSweeney, or the B. Hughes permit; Wyoming Associated, on the L. M. Hughes permit; Mountain States Oil Company, on the Ruth Sutton permit; Equity Oil Company, on the J. D. Campbell permit; Indian Oil Company, on the A. L. Jensen permit; Tristate Oil Company on the Searle permit.

All of these organizations, Mr. Howard assured Mr. Gilliland, have bound themselves to put down well on their holdings situated on the Elk Ridge structure, just as soon as commercial well has been brought in.

Mr. Gilliland says that "the Elk Ridge structure is either one of the biggest fields in the world or it is nothing. Within its closing contour it embraces 150,000 acres. Geologists estimate that the Elk Ridge structure has 6000 miles of drainage, or one-tenth the area of Utah.

"The cost of developing the area has been immense. Construction of roads, equipment and casing and trucking have brought the preliminary cost up to $130,000, and it is estimated that drilling the test well will cost from $80,000 to $125,000. The Elk Ridge test, which should have been spudded in a few days ago, should reach the horizon productive in the Cane Creek test well at 3035 feet at a depth of not exceeding 2500 feet."

It is reported that the Empire Gas and Fuel Company and the Texas Oil Company have just obtained permits on the Elk Ridge structure.

Deeper Drilling Barnsdall Plan at Poso Creek

FAMOSA, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Because the Barnsdall Oil Company, having drilled to about 2400 feet without production in its Leutholtz No. 1 on Sec. 28, 27-27, just south of Poso Creek, has obtained a permit to drill deeper, it is assumed that the upper horizon failed. At about 2300 feet twenty-five feet of fair oil formation was reported and a production test was made.

No late official reports have been received about the Carissa Oil Company's test north of Poso Creek, just north of the Barnsdall location, but it is known to be deep enough to have found the upper producing horizon in that area. Farther north, on the south half of Sec. 10, 27-27, the John Lucas and associates test is also deep enough to find the 1900-to-2100-foot horizon from which production is expected, but no official report is available.

The Marland test for George F. Getty, Inc., on Sec. 30, 27-27, drilled to below 4400 feet without showings, backed up to forty feet of saturated oil sand found at about 2100 feet and is making a production test. Oil scouts have reported that this well looked better than the Shell Company's discovery well, six miles to the east. Other reports obtained at the well, and carefully correlated by practical men, indicate that only a careful production test will furnish dependable information as to whether it may become a commercial producer.

Well Cemented for Deep Drill on Signal Hill

The Western Drilling and Producing Company, one of the most recent entries into oil development work in the Los Angeles basin, has cemented for a water shut-off in its well at Atlantic and Wardlow streets in the Signal Hill field. This was done at 4240 feet. The company announces its intention to continue drilling into the deep sand known to exist in that part of the field.

This organization is a subsidiary of the Western Oil and Refining Company. It has obtained properties and leases in a number of choice locations in the Los Angeles basin and will be active in drilling wells to secure production for the refining company's plant, located at Wilmington, company officials say.

PROPOSAL FAVORED

Mines Chamber Votes to Support Daylight-Saving Move

The Chamber of Mines and Oils has voted to support daylight saving as a measure for "the best interests of the State, and the public welfare." Its resolution calls upon members of the next State Legislature to pass a bill giving daylight saving by next summer.

According to Chester W. Brown, president of the chamber, "consideration of the welfare of workers in the mining and oil industries, as well as the State as a whole" entered into the decision of the chamber of work for daylight saving.

RAND SILVER PROFITS HIT

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 21. (Exclusive)—Because of the low price of silver, the depletion of ore bodies and the low grade of ore, making operation of the mine, somewhat unprofitable, stockholders of California Rand Silver, Inc., which has produced more than $12,000,000, and paid more than $4,000,000, in dividends, have been notified by the president, Alfred Harrell, that he will recommend to the board of directors at their next meeting that payment of dividends cease with the dividend of October 4.

It will be the policy of the company to continue its development work on the nineteenth, or depth level, and any other development that seems to offer prospect of uncovering new ore bodies, company officials say.

According to the annual report submitted to the stockholders the company has $330,000 surplus. The government is demanding $80,000 additional income taxes for past years, and that, with the known tax obligation for 1926, income, county and corporation taxes, aggregating over $100,000 renders it inadvisable to reduce the surplus below its present figure, it is asserted. A surplus, it is announced, must be available for the development work project.

California Rand Silver began operation in July 1919 and during the seven years of its existence it has developed underground workings in excess of eighteen miles. It has produced, exclusive of the Grady lease, 384,749 tons of ore, with a gross value of $11,241,000 and a gross value including the Grady lease of $12,841,000.

Net value of smelter returns during the seven years of operation aggregate $9,231,000. The company has paid in dividends $4,041,000, a large part of which has been distributed to about 100 stockholders in this city and county.

The company has a 400-ton mill and modern mining equipment of the best type. Its pay roll has included as high as 300 men with a monthly expenditure of about $40,000. At present about 125 men are employed in the mine and mill.

ACTIVITY AT ARGENTUM MINE TOLD

Work of Opening Latest Lead-Silver-Gold Camp in Nevada Progresses

Word has been received in Los Angeles that work is progressing most satisfactorily in the development of the property of the Quartz Mountain Argentum Mines Company at Quartz Mountain, one of Nevada's latest popular lead-silver-gold camps, in which George Wingfield and other Nevada mining operators have become heavily interested.

At the Argentum a headframe and hoisting works have been installed at the collar of the sixty-foot, two-compartment shaft, which is being sunk to the 100-foot level, the expectation being that the contact will be reached at a depth of ninety feet.

At the 100-foot level a station will be cut, and a drift run to the confluence of three ore-bearing veins strongly in evidence on the surface. The main vein, it is stated, was superficially prospected through a shallow incline shaft, which was abandoned in order to start the big vertical shaft, through which avenue the main ore bodies of the mine will be systematically developed and worked.

The company owns a group of sixteen claims surrounding the old Lodi mine, said to have been highly productive during its early history, and which was ultimately taken over by Illinois-Nevada Mines Corporation.

In addition to its mining activities the Quartz Mountain Argentum is a holding company, and is said to have taken over a controlling interest in the Apex Mines Company, in the same district.

GOLD MINE AT KINGMAN PROMISING

United Republic Said to be Considering Plan for Reduction Works

Results obtained in the development of the Century mine out of Kingman, Ariz., have been so satisfactory, it is said, that the United Republic Gold Mining Company of Oatman is now contemplating the construction of reduction works in the near future, according to President P. L. "Paddy" Mullen.

The tunnel on the upper vein of the Century mine, Mr. Mullen says, has disclosed continuous ore for a distance of 125 feet, with four feet of ore now showing in the face that is of good shipping grade.

In the performance of additional development work a contract has been let to drive a cross-cut from the 100-foot level on the lower vein, which is planned to cut the upper vein at a depth of 300 feet. It is estimated this work will be completed within thirty days.

With this cross-cut connecting with the upper vein, it is claimed, the Century mine will be sufficiently developed to justify the building of a mill of good size to handle the lower grade ores, while the first-class will be consigned direct to some smelting plant.

Both of the company's Mohave county mines, Mr. Mullen says, are expected to be on a regular producing and paying basis within the next few months, and he states that ore gold of good commercial grade is being broken in three different drifts in the company's Oatman mine, and further sinking is to be undertaken, at once, from the bottom of the 500-foot shaft, in the endeavor to get below water level.

RIG UP FOR TEST

Derrick has just been completed for the 3000-foot test well to be drilled by Gilmore & Sheldon, Los Angeles drilling contractors, on their 7000-acre Tome Land Grant in southeastern Valencia county, New Mexico, according to W. E. McBride, rig builder, who had the contract.

PERMISSION GRANTED TO TEST FOR OIL

George B. Mon to Prospect in Poso Creek Field Near Bakersfield Formation

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—George B. Mon has obtained a government permit to prospect for oil on 320 acres comprising the east half of Sec. 34, 27-28, in the Poso Creek field. The permit was sublet to J. R. Dorsey and Allan Campbell, local attorneys, and they in turn assigned the right to drill on half the property to the Julian Petroleum Corporation.

The Julian contract covers the east halves of the northeast and southeast quarters of the section, and calls for drilling before April of next year. Dorsey and Campbell will receive 11 2-3 per cent overriding royalty.

Two quitclaims covering oil property in the Kern River fields, and a tract east of Devil's Den have been filed with the County Recorder. In the first agreement, C. A. Fleming quitclaimed to Charity P. Coffee and Dorothy Hill the northerly 320 acres of Sec. 1, 28-28, in the Kern River field. The second instrument covers the south half of Sec. 17, 25-20. Joe Crail of Los Angeles filed a quitclaim to an oil and gas prospecting permit in favor of H. M. Hawkins of Taft.

The Gilmore Oil Company is reported to have leased 200 acres in the Poso Creek field, on the northwest quarter of Sec. 27, 27-28, and is to begin drilling within sixty days. The property is part of the Lizzie H. Olide holdings, and was acquired by sublease through Dorsey & Campbell of Bakersfield.

NEW MILL INSTALLED AT OATMAN

Plant of Stemwinder in Place After Two Months of Active Effort

OATMAN (Ariz.) Sept. 19.—The mill of the Stemwinder Company, now being started at the head of the canyon, is a combination of units of the old Gold Roads mill and of the later crushing mill. The work of assembling and installation has taken two months of active effort, supervised by J. E. Shank, who also has been operating a number of very profitable leases on property that had failed to realize profit in the hands of their owners. Under his direction, the Tom Reed mill has been producing large quantities of bullion and he also is turning his attention toward the old bonanza at White Hills. Another mill has been added at the Gold Dust property, from which President A. G. Keating has taken what he calls a sample bar of gold to Los Angeles. It is not intended to melt the precipitates, but to ship them direct to the Selby smelter, saving much expense. The Gold Dust property now is being put in shape for large production. Six drills are busy.

Western Apex is a very popular stock in Oatman, based upon common knowledge of what has been found in the 700-level drifting. The same ore body soon is to be cut in a winze, at about seventy feet below the 700 and there is keen speculation concerning the character of the ore then found.

Boundary Cone has taken over the Treasure Key claims, to the west, carrying an extension of the Boundary Cone vein. Work toward the new ground now is being pushed on the 250 level. The company's main shaft now is down to 500 feet.

"Slasher" Jack Harrington of Mizani, who sunk the 700-foot shaft of the Western Apex in record time, has taken a similar contract for 700 feet of sinking on the Sunnyside, which now is under charge of Jack McIver.

WILDCATS FEWER

Fewer wildcat wells are now drilling in Kern county—excepting the new Poso Creek district—than at any previous time in three years, also there are fewer wells drilling for production in proven territory than for several years.

STEEL DERRICK TOWERS TO SKY

Structure Believed to be Tallest in State

Test of Simi Formation Due to Start Shortly

Tract Held by Lloyd Group Site of Project

Aside from the Whiston well's derrick in the Montebello Hills—a tower which extended about 140 feet into the air and had an observation platform on it—the tallest oil-well derrick in the State is believed to be a steel tower which E. A. Parkford has just erected on the Simi structure for the purpose of drilling his first well on lands controlled by the Lloyd interests. This derrick is 135 feet high.

The derrick was finished during the past week, and it is expected that Mr Parkford soon will spud in his first test on a 320-acre lease which lies just south of leases held by the Union Oil Company and the Doheny interests, and northeast of Strathern Station.

The district is known as the Santa Suzanna field. The nearest producing wells are those of Doheny and the Union, one to two miles to the north, but Ralph Lloyd, who controls the Parkford leases, declares that there is a dome there, with a structure separate from that on which the producing wells are situated, although it is on the same anticline, he thinks.

In 1912 Dabney and Lloyd drilled one well on the Simi Dome and got indications of a fifty-barrel pumper at about 1500 feet. It is considered a "sure shot" field, but perhaps of rather limited area. It is reported tha the Parkford test expects to go away down in search of large production.

TUNNEL OF PAY DIVIDE PUSHES ON

General Superintendent of Company in City to Consult Officials

H. W. Stoutesbury, general superintendent of the Pay Divide Mini Company, working an ancient river channel in Sierra county for its gold content, is in Los Angeles consulting with company officials. He states that in the driving of the big working tunnel, the face is now in a distance of 1360 feet, leaving 1040 feet yet to drive before getting under bedrock, on which the rich auriferous gravel exists.

It is expected this tunnel work will be completed some time in December, this work being hastened by the recent installation of a modern power-generating plant to assist drilling operations. Upon completion of the tunnel a twenty-four foot upraise will connect with bedrock, when regular gold production will begin, a mill having already been purchased for the washing of the gravel.

Mr Stoutesbury says that bunk and boarding houses, and other necessary surface buildings have been completed, provisions and supplies taken in, and that arrangements have been perfected for continuous operations all winter. Forty men are employed.

The board of directors of the company has under consideration an important business matter, which will soon be decided upon, when a definite proposition will be submitted to shareholders for their consideration and approval.

Gore Newest Oil Company to Organize

Capitalized at $1,000,000, the Gore Oil Company has been chartered in Delaware to operate in California. King G. Gillette is president, Frank D. Gore is vice-president, L. E. Lounsbery is treasurer and F. A. Winchester is secretary, the officers forming the board of directors.

Operating as King G. Gillette, a number of shallow wells have been completed on 120 cres of Section 31, 31-22 at the western edge of the Midway district, near Fellows, and two rigs are running there until the tract is drilled up.

Boundary Cone has taken over the Treasure Key claims, to the west, carrying an extension of the Boundary Cone vein. Work toward the new ground now is being pushed on the 250 level. The company's main shaft now is down to 500 feet.

"Slasher" Jack Harrington of Mizani, who sunk the 700-foot shaft of the Western Apex in record time, has taken a similar contract for 700 feet of sinking on the Sunnyside, which now is under charge of Jack McIver.

WILDCATS FEWER

Fewer wildcat wells are now drilling in Kern county—excepting the new Poso Creek district—than at any previous time in three years, also there are fewer wells drilling for production in proven territory than for several years.

BONANZA CAMP STAGES REVIVAL

Chloride Coming Back With Rush in Arizona

Base Ores Found at Depth Prove of Value

Old Buildings Repaired as Business Returns

CHLORIDE (Ariz.) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—The historic bonanza camp of Chloride is "coming back," not from the digging of rich surface silver ores, but from the operations of modern metallurgists who have found processes for economical separation of the values in the base ores found at depth. The old buildings of the camp are being repaired and are being filled with a business element drawn by the added population. Estimate has been made that the camp has produced about $50,000,000 in bullion, with two-fifths of the sum taken from the single Tennessee mine in thirty years of operation. Ten years ago the camp had seventy-four producing mines, some of them dating back to the time of their discovery by miner-soldiers of the California Column, about 1863. Early ores were so rich in silver that they repaid the cost of hauling to the Colorado River, with following transportation by river steamboats from Fort Mohave to the Gulf of California, by steamers to San Francisco and by sailing vessels to Swansea, Wales.

The mill of the Chloride Mining Company is close to completion. It is planned for full separation of all the diverse metals and will afford a market for refractory ores from the near-by mines. One of the old mines, the Diana, is being unwatered on its lower levels and is preparing to ship to the Kingman sampler. The ore is typical local sulphide, carrying zinc, lead and copper.

In the Banner vein of Comstock Silver, in the Stockton Hill section, about fifty feet of a new vein has been opened up, with values declared to be above $35. On two faces the drift is fully faced in ore. This strike was in a crosscut from the company's Premier workings. The old Banner shaft is being pumped and a compressor has been installed, while a crosscut is being run on the Prince George claim, one of fifteen acquired by the company. A concentrating mill is planned for the property. About a carload a day of ore is being shipped to the Kingman sampler.

RUMORS OF COALINGA DEAL IN OIL

Sale of Four Properties Valued at $500,000 Said to be Pending

COALINGA, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—It is currently reported that the Concordia Virginia Mining Company of San Francisco holds options to purchase the Coalinga oil properties of the Mercantile Crude Oil Company, the New San Francisco Crude Oil Company and the S. W. & H. Oil Company. The four properties comprise 160 acres said to be valued at about $500,000.

The proposed sale of the properties appears to be contingent upon the Associated Oil Company buying them after it has examined the properties. Associated has been the most consistent buyer of developed oil properties in the Kern county and Coalinga fields for several years and is reported to be still in the market for any production that has held consistently.

Associated has acquired in fee and by lease a big block of acreage in the Huron neighborhood, on the broad valley east of Coalinga, where it completed not long since a shallow test at 2500 feet, on Sec. 29, 19-16, and is drilling a second hole on Sec. 30, to the southwest, the death being reported at about 1000 feet.

After these upper-formation tests have been correlated a deep test will be drilled to 6000 feet if necessary, reports say. Northeast of the Huron area Associated, beginning more than two years ago, drilled four deep tests in the Raisin City and Kerman areas southwest and west of Fresno, the deepest one to 6800 feet and all of them below 5400 feet, finding nothing encouraging.

COCHISE DRILL USED

Machine Aids Tournament Team to Win Annual Contest

At Pioche, Nev., an annual rock-drilling tournament has been held for years, employees from every mine in the district competing. On the 9th inst. this year, the first honors were taken by Theodore Johnson and Ernest Bubbler, who drilled six feet, nine and an eighth inch in fifteen minutes, hard rock. They used a Cochise machine manufactured in Los Angeles by the Cochise Rock Drill Manufacturing Company.

This company has been in business in Los Angeles fourteen years and its equipment has won first and second money at Pioche for ten years. T. H. Lindsay is one of the officials of the corporation, the shops being just west of Main street near One Hundred and Fourth street.

BUILDING OFFICIALS GATHER IN SAN JOSE

SAN JOSE, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—The Pacific Coast building officials will meet in San Jose tomorrow for a five-day convention at the Hotel Montgomery. It is expected that approximately 200 delegates will attend. A banquet, a tour of the Santa Clara Valley and a visit to the Winchester "mystery" house sponsored by the San Jose branch of the Electrical Development League, are among the features of the conference.

M'KEON WELL MAY BE GUIDE

Completion to Determine Wilshire Depths

Policy of Secretiveness Adopted at New Shaft

Huntington Beach Field Closely Watched

While the Wilshire Oil Company's completion of a well rated all the way from 800 to 1800 barrels a day undoubtedly was the most interesting and in some respects the most important development in the West Huntington Beach field last week, other operators in that area are paying considerably more attention to the McKeon Oil Company's No. 1 well, which is expected to be the next completion in the lower zone.

Due to the policy of secretiveness which the Wilshire adopted in connection with its Huntington Beach operations, oil operators have but little actual knowledge of depths and conditions as found by Wilshire, and consequently are depending upon the McKeon well for the information which may enable them to set their pipe at the most favorable point.

The McKeon well is down 3652 feet, where ten-inch casing was set. A test is due early this week.

In the meantime the producing wells of the field in the upper zone are declining almost to the vanishing point. The five completions in the upper zone have been reduced to four actual producing wells by the action of the Miley Petroleum Corporation in deepening its Pacific Electric No. 1 to the lower sand, and the four wells now producing are not averaging much more than 100 barrels per day each, according to field reports.

Bolsa Chica Oil Making Pumping Test of Wildcat

The Bolsa Chica Oil Company is making a pumping test for production in its Kettleman Hills No. 1, a wildcat well, which it drilled in the Kettleman Hills district during the early summer.

Hole is down 2360 feet, and field reports say that there is a fair prospect for production showing 18 deg gravity, although it is said that the hole still shows a little water.

ASSOCIATED OIL HITS DEEP SAND

Completion of Lloyd No. 3 Expected Soon

Project Reported at Depth of 6300 Feet

General Petroleum Setting Lively Pace

The Associated Oil Company has found the deep-sand zone in its McGonigle No. 1, north of the Associated No. 101, a fact which gives the north end of the field a good prospect at that point. The next completion in the Ventura-avenue field is expected to be the Associated's Lloyd No. 33, which is now down about 6300 feet, but not quite so deep stratigraphically as one of the wells recently completed by the Shell Company.

The General Petroleum Corporation is hitting a lively clip in field development just now. It has six wells drilling and three getting ready to start. Activity of the Shell Company in its neighborhood has stimulated the G. P., to unusual action. Its Barnard No. 1-A is drilling at 4163 feet, Barnard No. 2 is drilling at 5162 feet; Barnard No. 4-A is drilling at 4038 feet; Barnard No. 5-A is drilling at 3629 feet; Barnard No. 6 is drilling at 3343 feet; Barnard No. 8 is drilling at 2330 feet, rigs are already up for Barnard No. 9 and Barnard No 12, and rig is being built for Notten No. 11.

The Bolsa Chica Oil Company's No. 1 producer, on the north dip of the field, will be deepened this week, from 5434 feet, where it yielded upward of 750 barrels daily for several weeks after completion. Tools are being moved over from the No. 2 hole to do the deepening, and the old producer will be carried down for a considerable distance in the expectation of better output. The Bolsa Chica No. 2 is standing with the eleven-inch casing cemented at 3605 feet, and will not be drilled out until the No. 1 deepening job has been completed.

The Petroleum Securities wells, on the south dip of the field, in the river bottom, known as Willett No. 1 and Orton No. 1, are somewhat of a problem. They are reported to have missed the intermediate producing zone of the field, apparently by being too far out, and are now said to be in quest of the deep zone. The Willett will likely be carried down first as a deep test, and is understood to be scheduled for 6500 feet or better if it doesn't hit good production shallower.

First Test in Maljamar Pool Gets Under Way

Company Controls Large Area in Artesia District

Skelly Completion Extends Field Five Miles

ARTESIA (N. M.) Sept. 21. (Exclusive)—Henderson, Dexter & Blair, Los Angeles operators, have started drilling their No. 1 well in the Maljamar pool, their initial location being in the southeast trend from the Lea county wildcat.

Located on the Wyatt permit, on Sec. 34, 17-33, the well is west of the escarpment and approximately six miles east and south of the Maljamar producer. The company controls approximately 53,000 acres with the present drilling program calling for three wells. The Texas Company is understood to be jointly interested with these operators.

The Prairie Oil & Gas Company has closed a contract for a well on Sec. 34, 18-32. This well is located on a government permit.

The Skelly Oil Company's No. 1 well, located on Sec 22, 17-31, which last week extended the Maljamar pool five miles to the west, is still attracting attention, continuing to flow by heads, following the setting of six-inch casing. While the well is a good commercial producer at present depth, larger production is expected at 9650 feet, as this depth would correlate with the deep sand encountered in the Maljamar.

A rotary rig is being installed on the No. 1 location of the Cap Rock Oil & Gas Corporation, Sec 11, 16-32, which is in a northeasterly trend from the Skelly well. This is considered a likely location, and the Ohio, Midwest, Humble Empire and other big companies have purchased acreage near it during the past two weeks.

The next completion looked for in the Maljamar pool is the No. 1 of Bruce Sullivan, located on the Lodewick permit on Sec 1, 18-31, now drilling at 2500 feet in hard, white lime. The log is checking closely with that of the Maljamar and Skelly producers and a well here would extend the field approximately five miles to the south.

In the Artesia pool, Hausenfuss & Donley have picked up the Toomie-Allen sand in their No. 2, on Sec. 13, 18-27, at 2646 feet. A fishing job is delaying completion.

The Decura Development Company's No. 1 on the Vandagriff permit, Sec. 5, 17-28, is good for fifteen barrels a day from a depth of 2500 feet.

Revival of Old Canada Del Oro is Proposed

Arizona Mine Area Aided by Advance in Lead

TUCSON (Ariz.) Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Prospecting is in progress over 3000 acres of gold placer ground in the Canada del Oro, thirty miles northeast of Tucson. The work is being done by Will M. Neal of San Francisco, who has an option on a large acreage that has been panned and sluiced for gold since back in the Spanish days. In the event that the gravel beds show satisfactory gold returns from sampling, it is proposed to build water-storage reservoirs along the canyon, to obtain water for sluicing and dredging. Mr. Neal is owner of a number of producing wells in Archer count, Texas. He states that he is prepared to spend even $1,000,000 on the project.

George G. Young has placed a twenty-five-ton concentrating mill on his Tumacacori mine in Arivaca district to handle lead-silver-copper ore.

The late rise in the price of lead has caused renewed activity in a number of Southern Arizona mines, which also have been benefited by a lowering of rail freight rates to smelting points. Silver-lead ore is beginning to arrive from the once-famous Olive district. Three carloads have been shipped from the Young property of the Pantano Company, east of this city, all from development work in shallow tunnel workings. Shipments of similar ores are being made from the Golden Rule property, near Cochise Stronghold, a mine first worked in 1851.

The Comobabi Mining Company, in the district of the same name, is notable for the fact that its stockholders are all colored. G. W. Miller, president and manager, has completed a five-mile road and is sinking a shaft. In the same district, Manager Ralph Hauser of the Como-Pima Company is sinking a 300-foot shaft on the Chicago property and is shipping ore to El Paso.

OIL PACTS FILED

Poso Leases and Sales Contract Made in Kern County

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—L. V. Craig of Fresno has leased two acres of Poso Creek oil lands from L. Cavalletto, according to a lease filed for record here. The agreement calls for drilling within two years, and a one-eighth oil royalty. The property is located on Sec. 17, 27-22.

In another agreement filed for record the Bald Eagle Oil Company contracts to sell oil from Sec. 30, 28-28 in the Kern River field, to the Associated Oil Company. The agreement covers oil produced from the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter and the south half of the south half of the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of the section.

ACTIVITY IN RICHFIELD AREA GAINS

General Petroleum Busy on Eight Projects With Competitors Also Drilling

The activity of several competitors in drilling line wells in the old Richfield district has started the General Petroleum Corporation on a brisk development campaign at Richfield. It has eight projects under way there.

It is drilling Thompson No. 1-A at 2710 feet, drilling Thompson No. 9 at 370 feet, rigging up for Stern No. 7 and Stern No. 8, putting in foundation for Stern No. 9, drilling Hugo No. 4 at 1803 feet, and rigging rotary on Hugo No. 5.

Wells in this district are usually completed at about 4600 feet.

In the Santa Fe Springs field, where General Petroleum recently completed the Santa Fe No. 21 and Santa Fe No. 24, it is working on the Santa Fe No. 22 and is planning to spud the No. 23 within the next few weeks.

The Santa Fe No. 21 and Santa Fe No. 24 were completed in the Bell sand at about 3900 feet. They are not regarded as good wells, their daily output being only about 100 barrels each. The Santa Fe No. 23 will be a Meyer sand well and the Santa Fe No. 22 will be a Bell sand job.

RIGHT OF WAY FOR PIPE LINE GRANTED

TAFT, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—The Equitable Petroleum Company granted a right of way by the Standard Oil Company, to lay pipe lines, erect telephone or telegraph poles, and construct roads across Sec. 4, 32-23, in the West Side oil fields.

ABANDONMENTS DAMPEN ARDOR

Outlook Darker in East End of Poso Creek

Petroleum Securities Quits at 2400 Feet

Project of Superior Near by Also Deserted

POSO CREEK, Sept. 19. (Exclusive)—Things are not particularly encouraging in the eastern part of the Poso Creek district, now that two companies have abandoned their test wells. The Petroleum Securities Company has abandoned its first hole in the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of Sec. 8, 27-28, half a mile south of the Shell Company's discovery well on Sec. 9, 27-28.

At 2400 feet the Petroleum Securities, lacking commercial showings, based on the Shell Company's showings and production at from 1930 feet to 1970 feet, seems to have reached the conclusion that only one producing horizon exists in this district and that it would be futile to drill through a barren horizon to 3100 feet, where the Shell Company found granite.

On Sec. 10, 27-28, adjoining Sec. 9 on the east, the Superior Oil Company abandoned its test at about 2600 feet, having—according to field reports—found no indications of oil and worth bothering with, formations apparently dipping to the west. The Shell Company is drilling its No. 2 on the eastern half of Sec. 9, coring steadily from just below the surface.

Drilling at the southwest corner of Sec. 4, 27-28, as a north offset to the discovery well, the Union Oil Company's first Poso Creek venture is in the oil horizon and is reported to look like a producer, but until thoroughly tested for commercial production a definite statement cannot be made. Other operations appear to be waiting until the Shell Company's No. 2 and the Union's test develop something or nothing.

Following surface levels, the abandoned Petroleum Securities Company's test was located on the highest point in the district, while the Shell Company's producing well is at the bottom of one of the many ravines that bisect the area and drain into Poso Creek, the Union Oil Company's location also being at the same low drainage level. Geologists differ as to the effect surface levels have upon the sand and oil levels.

Mr. George Bliss McCallum, President of McCallum Hosiery Company, summarizes his letter to the Bankers regarding these Notes, as follows:

HISTORY AND BUSINESS

The business was founded in the early eighties by Alexander McCallum, a retail merchant whose ambition it was to manufacture the highest grade of full-fashioned silk hosiery. The Company operates mills at Northampton, Florence, Holyoke, Mass., Philadelphia, Pa., and Providence, R. I. From the date of its incorporation in 1896 the Company has extended its manufacturing facilities solely through the reinvestment of earnings. The Company has spent large sums for national advertising and through the approved quality of its product has established its name firmly in the minds of the trade and the consuming public.

SECURITY

These Notes are a direct obligation of the Company issued under an Indenture Trust which provides that no mortgage, except purchase money mortgages and the like, can be placed on the Company's property without equally securing these Notes. It is also agreed that the Company will not declare dividends which will reduce net current assets to below 100% of the Notes, nor reduce the ratio of current assets to current liabilities to below two for one, nor declare dividends which would reduce the surplus below $500,000.

ASSETS

The balance sheet of the Company as of July 17, 1926, shows total net assets of $3,493,911 or $2687 per $1000 Note; net quick assets are substantially in excess of the principal amount of Notes, amounting to $1,952,836 or $1301 per $1000 Note. The fixed assets were appraised by the American Appraisal Company as of December 31st, 1925, at a sound value of $2,227,000, although these assets are carried in the balance sheet at only $1,487,214.

EARNINGS

For the year ended December 31, 1925, net profits after depreciation and all charges, but before interest and Federal Taxes, as certified to by Messrs. Scovell, Wellington & Co., Accountants-Engineers, amounted to $334,057.27 or 2.95 times the annual interest requirements of $84,500 on these Notes. Average net profits on the same basis for the six years ended December 31, 1925, amounted to $352,349.26 or 4.16 times the Note interest.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The proceeds from $1,000,000 face amount of these Notes were used to reduce current indebtedness of the Company and to provide additional working capital. The remaining Notes were purchased from stockholders.

MANAGEMENT

The management which has been in control of the Company for many years and which has been responsible for its success will continue in active charge of its affairs. Substantially all of the stock of the Company is owned by the McCallum family and some of the Company's present executives. I have every confidence in the future prosperity of the Company.

Legal Proceedings—Messrs. Chadbourne, Hunt, Jackel & Brown, New York, for the Bankers, and Messrs. Ropes, Gray, Boyden & Perkins, Boston, for the Company. Auditors—Messrs. Scovell, Wellington & Co.

Hydrous Silicates

YERMO, Sept. 5.—Q.: Under separate cover I mail you a sample of rock, or is it clay of any value? It is some miles back of Yermo where there is a big deposit. Please give results of analysis through your "In the Earth" column. W.

A.: The sample is probably not a commercially valuable clay. It is a siliceous hydrous triple silicate of aluminum, magnesium, and iron. Sodium sulphate more or less present, with Halite (common table salt.)

GOOPS!

A Daily Lesson in Manners for Children

BY GELETT BURGESS

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WHISPERING.

If I were you, I'd bear in mind
That whispering is not refined.
It's not polite, because I fear,
When you say something I can't hear,
That you are whispering about ME.
And I think you're a Goop, you see.

FIRE DOES SLIGHT DAMAGE TO FACTORY

Fire of undetermined origin caused slight damage at the new $2,000,000 plant of the American Can Company yesterday. Further spread of the flames, which started in a rubbish heap, was prevented by quick action of the watchman on duty and the Vernon fire department, which responded to the alarm. The plant adjoins the Vernon Country clubhouse.

HOTEL SITE HISTORIC

NILES (Mich.) Sept. 19. (AP)—Days when the imperial banners of rival nations flew in succession above the lonely stockade of Fort St. Joseph have been commemorated in the name of the Four Flags Hotel just opened here. The fort, which stood on the present site of Niles, dated back to the period of La Salle, who sailed up the St. Lawrence in 1679. More than a century, later the Fleur De Lis gave way to the Union Jack of Great Britain, and this in turn to the jagged red crosses of Spain. Finally the Stars and Stripes of the new American republic were hoisted above the crude stockade.

POLLS OPEN TOMORROW FOR RECALL

Eighty-nine Precincts Will Vote on Whether Randall Will Retain Office

The recall election in the First District, aimed at Councilman Randall, will be conducted tomorrow. The polls open in eighty-nine precincts and will remain open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Randall's opponents are John W. Cook, an assistant city engineer at Van Nuys, and Greeley Kolts. The voters will first answer the question as to whether Randall shall be removed from office and then vote upon the three candidates.

The opposition to Randall arose when voters asserted that he refused to carry out certain election promises and failed to put through certain improvements.

Dinner to Mark Date of Historic Battle on Seas

Members of the California State Society, Sons of the Revolution, will gather at the University Club of Los Angeles, 614 South Hope street, on Thursday, at 6:30 p.m., to attend an informal dinner in commemoration of the battle between the Bon Homme Richard, under command of Commodore John Paul Jones, U.S.N., and the British ship Serapis, under command of Capt. Richard Pearson, on September 23, 1779.

This dinner is one of a number that are given by the Sons of the Revolution every year to commemorate different important dates in the history of the United States.

Addresses will be delivered on this occasion by Edward J. Henning, judge of the United States District Court; Vierling Kersey, assistant superintendent of Los Angeles schools, and Col. Arthur Williams, U.S.N.

Edward Bouton, Gen. Charles H. Whipple and Dr. Edward Pallette, are in charge of arrangements for the dinner.

LIQUOR RECORDS CHECKED

The records of Ted E. Enter, druggist on Hollywood Boulevard, are being investigated by federal agents for alleged juggling of prescriptions, and one item that attracted the attention of W. W. Anderson, assistant administrator in charge of permissive work, was a prescription given last March, but was not reported to the dry officer by Enter until a month or so ago, officers reported.

The prescription was given to Miss Taylor last March, but that was not reported to the dry officer by Enter until a month or so ago, officers reported.

PLATICAS DE LOS LUNES

Por el Profesor R. Guerrero

DEL DEPARTAMENTO ESPANOL DE "THE TIMES"

Número 468

En el segundo párrafo de la Plática 466 dice "lucuciones" por "locuciones". En el primero de la 467 dice "en Fénix" por "el Fénix", y en el tercero, "En año pasado" por "El año pasado" y "estudiate" por "estudiante".

Reanudando nuestras observaciones sobre el imperfecto de indicativo, diremos que se emplea para indicar la coincidencia en tiempo, parcial o total, de un estado o acción que dura algo, con una cosa pasada; y de allí que Bello llame copretérito al imperfecto de indicativo.

Ahora bien, cuando la cosa pasada se verifica momentáneamente, y en el instante de efectuarse coexiste con la que dura algun tiempo, esta última se expresa con imperfecto y la primera con pretérito: "Cuando llegué a Ocean Park, tocaba la música" (When I arrived at Ocean Park, the band was playing). El acto de llegar, que dura un instante y se expresa con pretérito, coincide durante ese instante con el de tocar la música, que se prolonga algún tiempo y se expresa con imperfecto. Puede haber comenzado a tocar la banda antes de mi llegada, y hallarse aún tocando en el momento en que hablo. En el ejemplo: "Cuando nos viste, comíamos" (When you saw us, we were dining), la acción momentánea expresada por el pretérito "viste" es la de dirigir la primera mirada (that of casting the first glance), pues la de "ver" puede haberse prolongado mientras comían los que hablan, y aun más adelante.

Cuando la cosa pasada con la que coincide un estado o acción que dura algun tiempo, es también de alguna duración, los dos predicados simultáneos van en imperfecto, aunque sus duraciones no sean iguales: "Todos escuchaban cuando ella cantaba" (All were listening while she was singing) (duración igual); "Cuando Juan visitaba por Florida, Pedro estaba en California" (When John was traveling in Florida, Peter was in California) (duración que puede ser desigual).

Esta circunstancia de ser el imperfecto un tiempo relativo, que casi siempre refiere a un hecho pasado simultáneo la acción por él expresada, hace que resulten de sentido incompleto frases como la siguiente: "Juan llegaba anteayer" (John was arriving day before yesterday). El que oyera esa afirmación, preguntaría a no dudar: "¿Qué ocurrió cuando Juan llegaba anteayer?", y habría que completar la cláusula arreglando, por ejemplo, "cuando nosotros pasamos por su casa" (as we went by his house). En cambio, esa misma oración tendría sentido cabal si empleásemos el pretérito: "Juan llegó anteayer" (John arrived day before yesterday).

Cuando los actos pasados de que se habla sean instantáneos y de sucesión inmediata, hay que poner en pretérito los dos predicados. Generalmente el acto que precede es causa o premisa, y el que le sigue inmediatamente es su efecto, consecuencia o resultado: "Cuando oíste el disparo, pegaste un brinco" (When you heard the shot, you gave a jump) (sucesión inmediata); "Apenas oí tu grito, salí despavorido" (I hardly heard your cry, when I went out aghast) (sucesión inmediata).

Si la coincidencia temporal fuere perfecta entre dos actos momentáneos, no puedere ser ninguno de ellos efecto, consecuencia o resultado del otro, y entonces, más bien que el pretérito, hay que emplear el imperfecto en las dos oraciones, o cambiar el giro formando uno sola de pretérito: "Sonaba la primera campanada de las doce cuando tu padre caía muerto" (As the first stroke of twelve was sounding your father fell dead) (coincidencia perfecta); "Los dos soldados salieron de la trinchera en el mismo instante" (The two soldiers left the trench at the same instant) (coincidencia perfecta).

Usase asimismo el pretérito para indicar la inmediata sucesión del momento inicial o final de un acto pasado por el incial o otro acto que comienza en lo pasado: "Luego que edificó la casa, me mudé a ella" (As soon as the house was built, I moved in) (el último instante de la edificación precede al primero de la mudanza); "Así como vimos la costa, nos dirigimos a ella" (As soon as we sighted the coast, we steered thereto) (el primer instante de la vista precede al primero de hacer rumbo); "Leí tu carta y escribí la recomendación" (I read your letter and wrote the recommendation) (el último instante de la lectura precedió al primero de la escritura).

Es frecuente en castellano anteponer a la oración de pretérito que expresa el acto inmediato anterior, algunas de las expresiones "luego que", "apenas", "no bien", "al instante que", "en el momento que", etc., que hacen resaltar la rápida sucesión de los actos pasados. Puede asimismo emplearse en la primera oración un infinitivo precedido de "al" o un gerundio precedido de "en", o bien valerse uno de gerundios en ambas oraciones: "No bien leí tu carta cuando escribí la recomendación"; "Al acabar de leer tu carta, escribí la recomendación"; "Al ver la casa, nos dirigimos a ella"; "En tocando la campana, salí yo a comer"; "Tocando la campana y saliendo yo a comer"; "Tocar la campana y salir yo a comer fue todo uno", etc.

Volviendo a los usos del imperfecto, y refiriéndonos especialmente al párrafo de Fernández-Flórez que estamos estudiando, diremos que sirve ese tiempo para significar acciones repetidas o habituales, que se refieren a una época preterita que se señala o que se supone conocida. De allí que el escritor mencionado haya empleado imperfectos en las oraciones del párrafo que cité al principio de mi Plática 467, pues había de actos que invariablemente ejecutaba en sus paseos por la calle de Alcalá. Sólo en la última oración usa el pretérito: "me saltó esta idea", pues se trata de algo repentino y que se efectuó instantáneamente.

Tal empleo del imperfecto español tiene analogía con el de "would" o "used to" antepuestos a un infinitivo inglés: "The squire would sometimes fall asleep in the most pathetic part of my sermon" (Goldsmith) (El patrón de la finca se quedaba a veces dormido en lo más patético de mi sermón); "I used to go there, but I go no longer" (Antes iba yo allá, pero ya no voy). Puede también decirse, "Solía yo ir allá, pero ya no voy". "The fine little bird would fly around the room, alight on my shoulder, and even eat out of my hand" (El lindo pajarito volaba alrededor del cuarto, se paraba en mi hombro, y hasta comía en mi mano). Por supuesto que vale también decir, "solía volar", "solía pararse", "solía comer". "Now Moses used to take the tent and to pitch it without the camp" (Ex. XXXIII.7, "Rev. Ver.") (En esa época Moisés cogía (solía coger) la tienda y la armaba (solía armarla) fuera del campamento).

Atinadamente hace notar la Academia Española en su Gramática que el imperfecto se emplea para expresar estados permanentes, como reconocidos en época anterior. Pónese así á la vista en la narración, la escena con sus pormenores y circumstancias, tal como la vieron los actores enépoca pasada: "Llegaron en estas pláticas al pie de una alta montaña, que casi como peñón tajado estaba solo entre otras muchas que la rodeaban: corría por su falda un manso arroyuelo, y hacíase por toda su redondez un prado tan verde y vicioso, que daba contento a los ojos que le miraban: había por allí muchos árboles silvestres y algunas plantas y flores, que hacían el lugar apacible. Este sitio escogió el caballero de la Triste Figura para hacer su penitencia, y así, en viéndole, comenzó a decir en voz alta, etc." (Cervantes, "Quijote", I, 25). En mi próxima Plática daré mi traducción inglesa de este pasaje, y seguiré hablando del uso del imperfecto de indicativo.

PROJECTS EXPLAINED IN BOOKLET

Twenty-eight Propositions to Be Voted on at Fall Election Elucidated

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 19. (AP)—Studious voters who have begun to peruse the forty-two-page booklet containing arguments for and against th twenty-eight propositions on which they will be asked to cast ballots November 2 may fee. that they have been given a rather tough assignment. Election records in the office of Secretary of State Frank Jordan, however, show that previous election years have produced several bumper crops of proposed statutes with which voters were invited to familiarize themselves before going to the polls.

Two years ago, to be sure, there were only eighteen measures on the ballot; but in 1922 there were thirty, and in 1914 there were forty-eight. To help the voter get a grasp of the essential features of the forty-eight measures on which he was asked to vote in 1914, there was mailed to him a book of 112 pages containing the proposed statutes and the arguments for and against them.

Among the lean election years of California, from the point of view of proposed statutes on the ballot, were 1904, when there were only seven measures on which to vote; 1912, when there were but eight, and 1916, when the voter again had only seven propositions to study.

EXCHANGE AT PARIS BARRED TO WOMEN

PARIS, Sept. 19. (AP)—The Paris Stock Exchange remains barred to women, although so many these days are taking a direct interest in its operations. There was a time when they were admitted to the gallery, but in 1893, when anarchists were placing bombs in all sorts of places, the Stockbrokers' Association passed a regulation that no woman should be admitted, as it was feared that one might introduce a bomb, concealed in her clothing. The regulation remains in force, although the danger would seem to have been minimized if not entirely removed by women's clothing of today.

Fate Overtakes Runaways

Three boys—Arnett Freeman, 15; Riley Hunt, 15, and Jesse Gidden, 17, ran away from their homes in Eureka, Tex. They became locked in a freight car. At Malone, Tex., the train was wrecked and the boys were killed.—[Pathfinder.

STORY of ELIZABETH by her mother Anne Austin

Married as a 17-year-old college student, Anne Austin becomes the mother of Elizabeth while still earning her way through school. Tests at the age of 16 months show the baby to have a vocabulary of 159 words. Anne leaves college to teach so that her husband can continue in school. Exiled from her husband she learns to treat the baby as a chum and the baby learns to entertain and care for herself all day. During her second year of teaching she has an attack of appendicitis.

IV. LEFT ALONE

My long illness in Marfa, together with my living expenses and railroad fare, had used up all my $80 a month salary—a wage which had seemed munificent to me when I signed the contract. An operation for appendicitis was absolutely necessary, but there was no money for hospital and surgeon. And my husband, Charles, in his youthful ignorance of illness, did not realize the seriousness of my condition and advised me to "forget it." I tried to—but in February when Elizabeth was 2½ years old, I was taken to the hospital without my husband's consent, for the operation could be postponed no longer. I was operated upon on Tuesday; on Thursday I received a note from my husband, saying that he was taking a position on a Fort Worth paper, and bidding Elizabeth and me goodbye forever.

That was all. The prophecies of disaster made by older and wiser people at the time of our youthful marriage had come true. He was so young! And he loved freedom. I can't find it in my heart to blame him very severely, but then it seemed that the end of the world had come.

My mother took care of Elizabeth for the short time I was in the hospital, and paid the hospital and surgeon's bill out of a small amount of money left her by my grandfather. But there was not enough to take care of Elizabeth and myself, even for a short time. Three weeks from the day I was operated on I began the heartbreaking search for work, which was almost an unknown quantity during those early days of the European war—1916.

EIGHT DOLLARS A WEEK!

I took the only job I could find—stenographic work at $8 a week. I found a room for $2 a week, with "kitchen privileges" thrown in, and entrusted Elizabeth during the day to a social settlement day nursery in the neighborhood. The only charge there was 10 cents a day, for a wholesome lunch of well-cooked vegetables, bread, butter and milk.

Without the help of the Evangelia Day Nursery, I don't see how I could possibly have managed on $8 a week. As it was, my breakfasts and suppers usually consisted of tea and toast, and my noon meal, eaten at a boarding house near my place of work, cost 20 cents a day. And how I did stuff at lunch time!

I am afraid my boarding-house hostess made very little profit on that 20 cents! Elizabeth had her daily quart of Grade A certified milk, of course, with all the bread and butter and fruit that she could eat. I sometimes had a hard time convincing her that I did not like oranges and apples and stewed prunes, but any sacrifice that I made at that time was more than justified by her blooming health, and her unflagging joyousness.

My strength had not fully returned, so it was necessary to hire the washing and ironing done, but I managed to make her simple dimity, gingham and percale dresses during the long summer evenings. She was growing so fast that she was always in need of new underwear, dresses and shoes. I used to accuse the stores of selling me paper-soled shoes for her, and, considering the price I paid for them, they probably did.

GETS TEACHING JOB

Later in the summer comparative affluence came when I secured a stenographic position that paid $45 a month. I remember distinctly the thrill that I got out of the first ready-made dress I had been able to afford for more than a year.

In September I went to Moody, Tex., to teach at a salary of $55 a month. Moody was only thirty miles from Waco, and I could come home to see my mother and sister, on an occasional week-end.

I had obtained a divorce from my husband in July, and in September he married again. My last hope of a reconciliation vanished, and if it had not been for Elizabeth's exceedingly demonstrative love for me and our ever-increasing companionship, I am afraid I should have succumbed to melancholia.

For the way seemed very hard along; college was definitely in the past, though I needed a year to graduate. But I had my baby, and I did not for a moment regret that I had married and mortgaged my girlhood to motherhood.

We arrived in Moody September 21, Elizabeth's third birthday. We settled ourselves in a private home, where the kindly old couple were glad to have the companionship of the baby while I was at school. That first day in Moody Elizabeth startled us by spelling out the big letters on the back of a magazine—"The Ladies' Home Journal." Only the J puzzled her, because it was drawn fancifully, with a very long tail. I had frequently told her, at her request, what a certain letter was, but I could not believe that she had mastered the entire alphabet in that haphazard fashion. But she had—every last letter of it.

SPELLS AT THREE

For Christmas she received a spelling board, the kind which is operated by sliding little wooden letters into grooves. One day she met me at the door on my return from school with the proud assertion that she could spell "organ recital." She had copied the words from an advertisement, memorizing the spelling, then had asked our landlady what the words were.

Soon she was spelling my name and hers, the names of books and magazines, and all sorts of other long, hard words. She paraded her information very seldom, so I was not able to keep up with her rapid progress in the fascinating game. But one day, when she was visiting school, she upset the dignity of the schoolroom by giggling when an 11-year-old boy spelled "Quaker" incorrectly. "Oh, teacher, mother, that's not right!" she held up her hand for permission to speak in the approved classroom manner.

I tried to sh-sh her, but my delighted pupils insisted that she be allowed to correct their classmate.

"A great big 'Q-u-a-k-e-r,' she rattled off the letters rapidly.

"How did you learn to spell that word?" I demanded, as much astonished as my pupils."

"I guess it's on my Quaker Oats box that I put my dominoes in," she answered, rather indignantly.

ARITHMETIC IN DOMINOES

With those same dominoes, by the way, she learned to count and to add. She counted everything—the number of steps she took from one room to another, the buttons on her dress, the rungs in the chairs, the grapes on a bunch. She did all this without any prompting, because she had an unquenchable thirst for knowledge, and an infinite amount of time to acquire it in. She seemed never to be idle, or bored, and never to be lonely.

That year she had measles, which she took as lightly as if it had been a strawberry rash. Her superb health was my chief pride, and the thing that I safeguarded as jealously as a miser his golden hoard. Her diet was still as strictly regulated as when she was an infant, and she never once transgressed in the matter of eating between meals.

It was not always a temptation-free life, however, for the schoolchildren and their parents adored her. She could not appear on the streets of Moody without being piled with offers of ice cream and candy.

TOWN PROUD OF HER

Her unvarying answer was, "I've had my lunch, thank you." Her appetite at meal times was excellent, and she had learned to like everything that her diet called for—every kind of vegetable, fruit, cereal and milk, in large quantities. She had an occasionally—roast beef, Salisbury steak, chicken and fish. But it was never a daily article of her diet.

I taugh her the calisthenics which were part of the schoolchildren's daily routine, and she could be seen every morning racing madly up and down the cement walks which surrounded the house, her short, fat legs pumping valiantly at her tricycle. She played with other small children very seldom, for there were none in the neighborhood, but the schoolchildren formed a habit of dropping by our house after school to play with her.

They teased her some, baited her to "show off" her knowledge of spelling and counting, but she was too much more interested in games of "hide-and-seek" and "Farmer in the dell" that she saved herself from being spoiled and becoming priggishly self-conscious of her precocity, which, by the by, was a matter of town pride. I never discussed her in her presence, or permitted others to do so. It never occurred to her that she was different from other 3-year-old little girls.

In March of 1917 my big opportunity came, and with it ended the epoch of extreme poverty. Hope, fulfillment of ambition, adventure, lay ahead of us.

SOUTHLAND ASKS ONLY FAIR PLAY

Reapportionment Advocate to Make Appeal in North for Square Deal

Southern California is only seeking the representation in the State Legislature to which it is entitled by population and does not desire control of the government for selfish purposes, as has been charged in the north in the campaign in connection with Proposition No. 20, the legislative reapportionment constitutional amendment to be voted on in November, Ralph Arnold, chairman of the Republican County Central Committee and executive chairman of the All-Parties Reapportionment Committee, declared last night.

Mr. Arnold's statement was issued on the eve of his departure for Sacramento to attend the Republican State convention there. While he is in the north he will make arrangements for the All-Parties Committee's campaign to be extended into the northern counties.

His statement follows:

"The justice of our plea for greater representation for Southern California in the State Legislature is bound to appeal to fair-minded citizens of the northern section of the State.

"The charge that we are seeking to gain control of the State government is utterly lacking in truth.

"What we are seeking is merely a square deal. We want that representation in the Legislature to which we are entitled under the Constitution of California—no more and no less. Southern California contains half the area and more than half the population of the State, but much less than half the membership of the Legislature.

"I cannot but feel that a large proportion of the citizens of Northern California desire to uphold the Constitution and desire to give Southern California a square deal, and I am optimistic as to the result if these Northern Californians realize the true facts of the situation."

BRIDGE PLAYERS HAIL NEW TAKES

Inquiries to "Times" Evince Great Interest

Expert to Lecture at KHJ This Afternoon

Fine Points of Game Shown in Queries Answered

Great interest on the part of bridge fans in and about Los Angeles has been evidenced by the many inquiries addressed to The Times regarding the forthcoming second auction bridge series by the world-famous card strategist, R. F. Foster, to be given in Bullock's tea room at 3:30 this afternoon and on the afternoons of the 21st and 22nd inst. Table reservations may be made at Bullock's fourth - floor information desk and in the tea room during the luncheon hour.

The subjects for Mr. Foster's three auction bridge lessons are: Monday, the fundamental principles of bidding, double valuation, suit distribution, original bids, secondary bids, assisting and denying suit bids; Tuesday, the fundamental principles of bidding (continued,) four-card suit bids, no-trump bids, taking out no-trumpers, doubling conventions; Wednesday, playing the hand, leads and partner's play, the "eleven" rule, finessing and discarding.

Mr. Foster will also speak over KHJ this afternoon at 2 o'clock on bridge, covering points of general importance and commenting upon a few of the most interesting questions submitted through The Times columns.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

K. S. asks what is the difference between a partner's play to a lead at no-trumps and when there is a no-trump suit?

Answer: In case the partner is trying to win the trick there is no difference, the rule being to win it as cheaply as possible. That is to say if the partner holds both king and queen, the play is the queen, because if the declarer held the ace and the king was played the leader would credit the declarer with the queen also, as it looked as if the king were the only chance to win the trick. If third hand holds cards in sequence with the dummy, such a queen, ten, jack, in dummy, if dummy plays a small card second hand, the ten is just as good as the queen, and follows the rule of trying to win the trick as cheaply as possible.

Mrs. P. R. G. asks if the "eleven" rule will always work out correctly, no matter what the partner leads.

Answer: The rule is infallible, regardless of the size of the card the partner leads, provided the card is the fourth best of the suit, counting from the top. The rule has no value apart from the fourth best lead and the fourth best lead is of no value apart from the eleven rule, as they are parts of the same play. If a player holds K, 9, 8, 7, 5, 2 of a suit and leads his fourth best, the 7, by deducting the spots on that card from 11 the partner is informed that there are exactly four cards higher than the 7, which the leader does not hold. Suppose J and two small are in the dummy; the Q and 6 in third hand; if dummy plays small, the third hand can play the 6, as three of the four cards shown by the eleven rule are in sight and the declarer can have only one, which must be the ace or king, as the leader would have played one of these cards if he held both. No other card can beat the 7 if the 7 is fourth best.

R. C. J. says: "We do not quite understand what is meant by an 'echo' and when it should be used.

Answer: The echo is an answer to the partner's play of the high or winning cards and is used only when there is no attempt to win the partner's trick. Echoes are of two kinds, depending on whether the hand is played with a trump or at no trumps.

GIRL'S WIT AWES JUDGE, HE ADMITS

Youthful Driver Asserts She Could Not Have Been Guilty of Charges

A 16-year-old traffic-law violator matched her wits with a municipal Judge and stumped him.

Helen Morrisey of 1225 West Fifty-seventh street appeared before Judge McConnell charged with driving her car without having the registration certificate properly displayed, without having its headlights properly adjusted, without having its license numbers sufficiently visible and with running through a boulevard stop.

She pleaded not guilty to all the charges.

"It ain't my car, judge," she explained. "You can see yourself I couldn't help it when it wasn't my car. Why that old Ford I was driving didn't even have a top on it, judge. I ain't guilty of all those things; that old Ford ain't worth being guilty of all that."

"Well, Helen," the judge said. "What about that boulevard stop?"

"I ain't guilty of that, either, judge. In the first place, West Adams and Western avenue ain't no place for a boulevard stop and besides . . ."

"Wait a minute! Wait just a minute there, little lady. I'm afraid you've got me beat," Judge McConnell intercepted. "I think you'd better explain all this to the Juvenile Court. This is no case for me."

POLICE TRIO DOES WORK OF OCTETTE

Central Avenue Triune Arrests Man Who Once Did Battle With Eight

Either the physical standard of the police department is three times higher now than it was two years ago or else the "unholy three" of Central avenue are worth the weight of any eight cops on the force. Best ask the boys around Central Police Station to get the answer!

In a recent arrest, Police Officers Sheffield, McClanahan and Randolph, the three burly representatives of the law that work Central avenue, took into custody a man who two years ago started a miniature riot at Agatha and Gladys avenue when he resisted arrest at the hands of eight policemen.

The man was Peter Jackson, a narcotic addict, who was sentenced to spend six months in jail by Municipal Judge Pope at the conclusion of his trial yesterday.

After arresting Jackson and bringing him to jail, both Officers McClanahan and Randolph spent a half-hour shaking hands with each other and congratulating themselves on their work, while Officer Sheffield gently massaged a bump over his left eye, which looked as, he said, "more like the hump on a camel's back than just a plain sock on the bean."

ANGELENO LOSES LIFE AT VENICE

Fred Sevance Collapses in Water While Bathing and Drowns

VENICE, Sept. 19.—Fred Sevance, about 39 years of age, of 2841 Chesapeake street, Los Angeles, who is believed to have been a county employee, died here in the water off the foot of Clubhouse avenue shortly after noon today.

Sevance's wife was on the beach but she became so hysterical police were unable to obtain a coherent account from her of what happened. They declared, however, they believed the man collapsed in the water and the waves carried him under.

The body was taken to the undertaking establishment of Sharp & Nolan.

CROSSING SUBWAYS ORDERED

State Decrees Improvement by Espee at Los Feliz and Brand Boulevards

An important step toward the elimination of two major highway grade crossings in Los Angeles county has been taken by the State Railroad Commission, it was announced yesterday. The commission has ordered the crossings at Los Feliz and Brand Boulevards over the tracks of the Southern Pacific to be abolished by the construction of suitable subways.

In its order the commission directs the railroad company to prepare and submit plans and specifications for approval within three months and reserves the right to final approval of the plans and the apportionment of costs.

The order follows several hearings conducted here recently by Commissioner Seavey on the complaint of the Los Angeles County Grade Crossing Committee and an investigation by the commission on its own motion of the desirability of the separation of all highway crossings on the Southern Pacific line between Los Angeles, Glendale and Burbank.

As a result of the investigation the commission's engineers recommended total separation of all crossings and submitted a plan calling for viaducts or subways and at each crossing. The total cost of putting this plan in effect is estimated at approximately $5,000,000.

LEGION AIDS BOND ISSUE CAMPAIGN

State-wide Drive Organized to Work for Adoption of Home Purchase Act

Organization of a State-wide campaign in the interest of the passage of the $20,000,000 veterans' Farm and Home-Purchase Act is reported from American Legion headquarters in this city.

Dr. John P. Slavich, State commander of the Legion, State Adjutant Fisk and others have been in the south in conference with Harold O. Ferguson of Los Angeles, chairman of the bond campaign committee, and plans have been made for an intensive drive for votes for the measure, which will provide funds to continue the work of the State Veterans' Welfare Board in putting World War veterans in homes and on farms at no cost to the taxpayers of the State.

County chairmen and local committees will be organized in each of the fifty-eight counties of the State for the campaign of education, which Legion members intend to put on so that the voters may know the purposes of the initiative bond act, No. 1, on the November ballot.

Too Much Gin for Party, Says Judge Edmonds

Found guilty of possessing six cases of gin, Mrs. E. J. Bonenberger was fined $300 by Municipal Judge Edmonds, although her attorney, John Hyland, advanced the argument that the liquor was to be used at a private week-end party.

When Judge Edmonds contended that six cases of gin is an unusually large amount for a private party, Hyland declared the six cases were necessary because "present-day gin is so weak and impotent that it has but little more kick in it than ginger ale."

UNION ABANDONS HOLE IN BELRIDGE

Among the wells officially abandoned during the week was Theta No. 2 of the Union Oil Company, on Sec. 25, 28-20, near the company's pipeline pump-station and west of the North Belridge pool. The No. 1 was also abandoned. These two tests are on a block of 3700 acres recently acquired by the Union Oil Company between Belridge production and the Temblor Hills to the west.

CONFERENCE ON WESTERN PROJECT SET

October 14 Fixed as Date for Meeting of Advocates of Reclamation

Decision to hold the "Winning of the West" conference in the Biltmore on October 14, was reached yesterday in a discussion between President Bent and Secretary Arnoll of the Chamber of Commerce.

THOMAS E CAMPBELL

With the conference expected to foster a project which ultimately will take in all reclaimable lands in the West, Thomas E. Campbell, ex-Governor of Arizona, left yesterday to personally invite Gov. Dern of Utah to attend. Invitations also will be extended to Congressmen and reclamation specialtists, after which Campbell will continue his trip to other States for the same purpose.

Invitations mailed by Bent to more than fifty prominent Angelenos to participate on the preliminary conference committee were expected to meet with acceptances today, he said.

Fine Feathers Held Cause of Girl's Dilemma

The desire of Gene Anderson, 24 years of age, for fine feathers led to her arrest on various charges of forgery, for which she is scheduled to appear to plead today before Judge Burnell.

Fine lingerie, sheer stockings and silk dresses appeared on the list of articles she is said to have purchased in different stores in Los Angeles county and passed numerous forged checks in payment therefor.

The young woman is said to have twice evaded custody by a ruse. At one time she is said to have escaped from a deputy sheriff upon the pretense that she was ill and on another occasion a constable of Whittier was tricked by a similar plea.

Rabbit Hunter Flushes Still, Bags Two Men

"Rabbits taste good to me," said George Contreras, head of the District Attorney's dry squad, when he saw a sign near Hawthorne, saying that they sold for 35 cents a pound.

Contreras was taken on a tour of the rabbit farm of Lee and K. Bollinger of Hawthorne, but his investigation is said to have resulted in the finding of a 150-gallon still and numerous gallons of moonshine. Both Bollingers were arrested and were booked for violation of the Wright Act. They are awaiting hearing.

FACTS OF LIFE AS MILLENIUM PARTS

Rev. Theodore C. Abel, pastor of Hollywood Unitarian Church, preached yesterday on "Wanted—a Reverence for Facts." He said in part:

"We humans, facing the riddle of the universe, are like a group of children piecing together a picture puzzle, except that our situation is more serious. Whence we are, who we are, why we are, whither we are bound—these are questions that will never be fully answered until all the facts of life have been discovered and placed in proper relation to each other. Every fact of life is a piece of the ultimate picture of the universe, but must be seen in its proper relation to other facts to be rightly understood.

"The human race is now in possession of enough facts to make it certain that all war, poverty, sickness and crime could be abolished forever and a relatively perfect society established that would guarantee liberty, justice and happiness for all. But that day will never come so long as the present-day disregard for facts continues. So long as nations perpetuate racial prejudices, in spite of the fact that humanity is of one blood; so long as people insist on exploiting each other for selfish private gains, in spite of the fact that we are all mutually dependent upon each other and so long as the churches demand acceptance of their pet traditional dogmas, irrespective of their conformity to the facts of life—just so long will humanity be kept in ignorance of its true nature and in bondage to fear and superstition."

FAIR DEAL DENIED "WORKADAY" CHURCH

Dr. Bruce Brown of South Park Christian Church preached yesterday on "Are We Fair?" He said in part:

"The ordinary, workaday church never gets a fair deal. It faithfully warns people when teachers come with fantastic doctrines which shame and disappointment are certain to follow in the end. Will people heed these unselfish warnings? They will not, but rather denounce the preacher who would help them as being selfish and bigoted. Then, when trouble and disillusionment come, people make no distinction and pronounce condemnation on all churches. This is not square nor honest nor right, to strike the ones who would have befriended and helped. When all has been said, the fact remains that people would be saved a lot of trouble in this life, let alone the next, if they would heed the plain and simple advice and warnings that constantly come from the old-fashioned next-door church."

SOUL'S IMMORTALITY CREED OF ALL AGES

Dr. Mayer Winkler, rabbi of Congregational Sinai, preached Saturday on "The Day of Atonement." He said in part:

"The most holy day in the Jewish calendar, marking the climax of the penitential season which commenced with the New Year, is Yom Kippur, the day of atonement. This day with all its ceremonies, grips the soul and summons before the tribunal of conscience the erring and the wayward to return to God. The important Jewish festivals are usually concluded with a memorial service consecrated to the departed. It implies the idea of the immortality of the soul. From the beginning of human history we have indications that humanity in every stage of culture and development has believed instinctively in the eternity of the soul, which is a part of divinity. Judaism never formulated this belief into a concrete dogma or creed, but it has implicitly taught that the soul of man is immortal. Immortality is a consequence of the God idea. Man created in the image of God, who is eternal, must have a spirit immortal."

INTERPRETS SOCIAL MESSAGE OF JESUS

Dr. Kerr Boyce Tupper preached at Temple Baptist Church yesterday on "The Social Message of Christianity." He said in part:

"A new voice has been heard among men, declaring with increasing emphasis that more and more God's kingdom must come and God's will be done on earth as well as in heaven. The Christian church, as representative of the benevolent Christ and legatee of divine truth, dare not fail to show deepest sympathy with all questions, social or economic. Salvation is not only salvation but also service. We must save men in their relations as well as in themselves. Christianity emphasizes both the individual men and the brotherhood of man, the microcosm and the macrocosm. Christ teaches us, even in private prayer, to say 'Our Father.' The chief teaching of the parable of the good samaritan is that we must care for men's bodies as well as their souls. Christianity is historical as well as spiritual; outward as well as inword; temporal as well as eternal. Religion, if it means anything, means duty, reality, life."

DEITY REVELATION PERFECT IN CHRIST

"Man, the Masterpiece," is the subject of a sermon preached yesterday by Dr. John L. Maile at Berean Congregational Church. Dr. Maile said in part:

"In the wonderful spirit of man is a continual urge to look forward. As the engineer of a train sees not backward upon the mileage accomplished but fixes his gaze upon the shining ribbons of steel that seem to be gliding swiftly toward him, so the thoughtful mind is ever directed forward along the track of future possibilities.

"The center of this quest, when worldly experiments are past, is, and must be, the self-existent Creator of all things, who always was, is now, and ever shall be. The circumference of this reality is utterly beyond the grasp of the human imagination. Well might St. Augustine say in substance, 'Man is made for God and can find no rest apart from his Maker.' That Jesus Christ is the clearest and most complete revelation of the Eternal Father is the explanation of His irrepressible influence in human history as the Son of Man and also the Son of God.

"That the human individual may find strength of body and soul, cleansing of moral guilt and priceless illumination of mind and imagination by entering into the life of Jesus, at once stamps man as the masterpiece of the creation of God."

GOD'S GARDEN SEEN IN HUMAN HEARTS

Rev. William C. Isett, pastor of Amanda Chapel, preached yesterday on "The Garden of God." He said in part:

"Perhaps none of us has a clear idea of what heaven is like. It is called heaven by Christians, paradise by Mohammedans, Nirvana by Hindus, Tian by Taoists and other names by other religions, but all religions have a heaven.

"There are some things in common among these religions in their understanding of heaven: All consider it a place of rest, a place of happiness, a place of justice and a place of light. While it would be interesting to investigate the things these various religions have in common, for our immediate purpose it is the Christian conception of heaven which is of most interest to us.

"Christians have thought of the benefits of heaven as of the future; Christ thought of them as present, and taught that they were obtainable by faith. When we get to heaven we have thought, first, of being in the actual presence of God. The teaching of Jesus was clear that right down here upon earth it is possible for us to have this conscious presence. It will be necessarily spiritual but none the less real. The early Christian church felt sure of the presence of Jesus after His ascension. The presence of our mother is real, albeit we may be miles and worlds away from her.

"We think of heaven as being a place where sin and wickedness do not exist. One might say that condition is not possible here on earth. The Scriptures, especially John, taught that since Jesus came to take away sin, He actually did it, and therefore John tells us to 'sin no more,' and that we are 'without sin.' It is possible for us to live in this heavenly state."

City Sued for Death of Child in Storm Drain

Charles and Caroline Dean have filed with the City Council a claim for $50,000 damages in the death of their son, Charles, Jr., 11 years of age, who was drowned June 2, last, in a pool of water collected in a storm-drain at Madison and Juanita avenues at Beverly Boulevard. The claim was referred to the City Attorney for investigation as to its legality.

The claim set forth that the child's death was due to neglectfulness on the part of the city in permitting the dangerous pool of water to collect

San Francisco Operatic Season to Open Today

Grand opera on the Pacific Coast gets under way today as the San Francisco season opens with the presentation of Puccini's "Manon Lescaut," Gaetano Merola conducting.

A large number of Angelenos are in the northern city to attend the opening night. A group of members of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association, headed by Benjamin F. Bledsoe, president, and other executives, will be in specially reserved seats.

The Los Angeles opera season follows the San Francisco performances, opening in just two weeks, on the evening of October 4, in the Shrine Auditorium. Eleven performances are on the program planned by the opera association with many of the most famous stars of the world in leading roles.

STREET IMPROVEMENT REQUESTS RECEIVED

Petitions for the opening and widening of Gateway Boulevard between Pico and Sepulveda Boulevards to a width of 100 feet and for the opening and widening of Country Club Drive from Health avenue to the Santa Monica city limits to a width of 100 feet have been received by the Council and referred to appropriate committees and the City Engineer.

TAUNTED BY RIVAL, WIFE DECLARES

Charges Other Woman Told Her of Power She Held Over Husband

Declaring another woman flaunted power over her husband, Mrs. Inez Platts filed suit for divorce against Jesse Platts. The other woman was named as Marie Lewis and was made corespondent in the action.

Mrs. Platts stated she protested to the corespondent over her asserted association with Platts and the other woman was declared to have replied:

"If you can't hold your husband it is just too bad for you."

On another occasion the corespondent was declared to have said:

"Sure, I have your husband, what are you going to do about it?"

Mrs. Platts also charged her husband and the corespondent lived in an apartment together and enjoyed a joint bank account, while Mrs. Platts said she always had difficulty in getting her husband to provide proper support for her.

The Platts were married December 28, 1913, and separated July 1, last, according to the complaint, which was prepared by Attorney E. L. Davin.

WILD WEST SHOW OPENS

Trim Cossacks, Lumbering Elephants and Indians Delight Los Angeles Audience

Trim Russian Cossack soldiers doing acrobatics on fleet steeds; Arabian horsemen with gaudy burnooses; lumbering elephants in circus acts; galloping buffalo chased by Sioux and Cheyenne Indians on wiry ponies; cowboys, cowgirls, zouaves and Mexican vaqueros—these were some of the picturesque people and stirring incidents in the opening performances of the 101 Ranch Real Wild West and Great Far East at the Washington and Hill-street lot Sunday afternoon and night.

The show was on the grounds early yesterday for it advertised only a matinee performance in Bakersfield Saturday, so that the three-day engagement in Los Angeles might open without the delay imposed by a late arrival.

There are hundreds of people and animals with the 101 Ranch and these with band wagons, tableaux wagons, stage coaches and covered wagons will be seen in the street parade, which will leave the grounds at 10 a.m. today, and proceed to Washington street, to Main street, to Jefferson, to Figueroa, to Pico, to Hill street and back to the lot.

It is said to be the largest circus march left in the land.

The 101 Ranch performances, beginning at 2 and 8 p.m., today and tomorrow, open with "Moscow," Far East spectacle, employing hundreds of people and animals. The elephants and camels have their roles in this production, as have the cavalrymen of the Imperial Russian Cossack circus, one of the show's features.

Los Angeles people were impressed with the spread of canvas erected by the show. The canopy big top, rectangular in shape, covers more ground than does the largest circus tent ever built. The sideshows, horse tents, cookhouses and padroom tops are unusually large and every bit of the lot is utilized.

Both Col. Joe C. Miller and Zack T. Miller, known to hundreds of motion-picture people, are with the show. Many screen celebrities attended the opening.

DOESN'T KNOW THE HALF

Prof. Joseph Bayer of the National History Museum of Vienna has dug up in the village of Willendorf, on the Danube, what he says is the oldest Venus in the world. He fixes her age at 20,000 years, the second Ice Age. Prof. Bayer has something yet to learn, bragging about his 20,000-year-old Venus. He has never seen some of our chorus girls.

SILOAM IS A GOOD TOWN

Siloam, Colo., is a real place for a regular feller to live. School was due to open and the coming presidents were somewhat worried because of the winter prospects. Then the schoolhouse vanished. It was found later on the farm of a man who lives near-by plastered with the sign: "Private Property, No Trespasing." The man who took the building had a disagreement with the School Board, took his building away and is standing pat. So are the kids. Most of us were born too soon.

TIME TO GET BUSY

Thomas A. Edison at last has turned the reins of the gigantic company bearing his name over to his son Charles. The inventor has decided to let loose of the executive end of the business and spend practically all of his time in the laboratory. As Tom is only 79 years of age and for years has been working only as much as eighteen hours a day and invented some of the world's most useful devices, probably he thinks it is time now to get down to work and quit foolin'.

BAROMETER OF RELIGION

"Sermons at sea are popular in rough weather, but lose interest when the waves are quiet. A foggy Saturday means a sanctimonious Sunday," confided the officers of an ocean liner in the Associated Press recently. Possibly if the preachers would confess it, landlubbers are affected about the same way. The barometer is a fair indicator of religion. A beautiful Sunday often means an empty pew. The mystery of suffering may have a partial explanation here.

HIS STAR

Napoleon had an immobile countenance. So has Mussolini. Napoleon sprang from humble origin. Mussolini was a brickmaker. Napoleon welded his nation into a mighty army that swept over the world. Mussolini is fusing the Italian people into an igneous mass sensitive to his genius. Napoleon was an archegotist. Mussolini does not seem to despise himself. Napoleon had his star of destiny. Mussolini announces himself protected by a similar star. Napoleon had his Marengo. Is Mussolini dreaming of conquest? Napoleon also had his Waterloo. Mussolini might profit by his example.

TWINS AND TRIPLETS

Morse and Wheatstone each discovered the magnetic telegraph in 1837. Morse's system seems to have been more practical in its application and so he was able to market his product.

Edison invented the phonograph in 1887. In another part of the world wholly oblivious of any other working on the same problem Cross developed the identical idea. A third genius named Scott wrought on similar mechanism in another isolated spot. The phonograph seems to have been triplets.

Bell and Gray are said to have perfected the telephone in widely separated places not only in the same year, but almost on the same day.

Some insist that Marconi did not discover wireless alone. A succession of inventors worked upon Hertz's theories and induced sound to travel without wires. It is a sort of composite.

Langley's "Folly" was the first flying machine in the opinion of many. The Wrights were fortunate and possibly alert enough to have their apparatus work. So says the Providence Journal.

Copernicus announced that the world was round. Columbus thought that he had demonstrated the fact in sailing to the Indies. Magellan actually proved it by his prow and prowess.

Leverrier calculated the stars in Paris and from their perturbations found Neptune. Another man in Germany, hundreds of miles away, not knowing why, poked his telescope into the sky and found Neptune separately and simultaneously.

Detroit and Kokomo are both heralded as the birthplace of the automobile. If you are ever possessed with an idea, better gallop off to the patent office as you would for a mining claim.

There is a telepathy of ideals as of ideas. Heaven does not keep the copyright law, and would have all men possessed of your wealth of thought.

Write and there is a merry scratching of quills. Talk and there is a Babel of voices. Speak and all the world becomes loquacious.

Planets and men are known by the company they keep. Inventions come not alone, but as twins and triplets. No man liveth to himself.

LACKING VISION

Progress is alike constructive and destructive. It operates on the basic theory of the survival of the fittest. The old must make way for the new, the inefficient for the efficient. No general reform is effected without inflicting individual hardships. These must be endured, because they cannot be avoided. To do otherwise would be to make the part greater than the whole.

With the production of mineral oil the whaling deets rotted at the docks. When the electric cars came the horse cars and the light rails represented an almost total loss. By the advent of the automobile the carriage factories were hard hit. Modern machinery has completely revolutionized industry. Mechanical power has largely superseded horse power and man power.

Readjustments are taking place all over the world by the development of the potential resources of the backward parts of the earth. Old markets are disappearing; trade routes are changing, and the older countries are suffering from the development of the new. So acute has the change become that an organized opposition is appearing against opening up new territory and markets, because of the ill effect such development has on the old.

The Dawes Plan was based in part on the development of the resources of the French and Belgian colonies and mandated territory in Africa. This development is now under way and protests are coming from England, France, Italy and Belgium that the dislocation of world commerce and industry will do more harm than the reparations will do good.

Germany has agreed to make the capital improvements to develop rubber, cotton, lumber, copper and other raw materials. For this development the German industries will have employment, and the German government will receive credit for reparation payments. But now comes a protest from many parts of the world against these capital improvements because of their effect on world industry. These objections are set forth in the following extract from an editorial in the Saturday Evening Post.

Will the capital and labor of Belgium and France allow the material development of their African colonies to be turned over to German industrialists, capital and labor, in order to have credit items appear in the international accounts of their governments? Was it for this that France reacquired the iron and coal of the restored provinces? Will Great Britain sit quietly by while rubber plantations are developed, through reparations payments, to compete with those of her creation? Will it concern the United States to have exploited, in the Belgian Congo, copper mines to drive our metal from the export markets of the world? Will it do the corn belt any good to have reparation-created oil seeds drive down the world price of fat? Are the steel companies of Great Britain and the United States to forego all share in African railways and docks? Who is to be the arbiter in the allocation of extensive capital improvements of such importance? How rapid is to be the education of the consumers' wants of the natives of Africa?

That industrial displacements will result is beyond dispute. But such is the law of progress. There is no preserving the status quo in commerce and industry. Those who will profit under the new arrangement are the ones who can adjust themselves to it with the least friction. This progress may be retarded, but it cannot be prevented. The development of the potential resources of the earth is proceeding and it will continue, regardless of the individual injuries occasioned.

There will be a period of transition in which conditions will be unsettled; but the countries of the world must accept the inevitable. The future builds in part on the ruins of the past. What cannot be evaded must be accepted with the best grace possible.

The domination of Western Europe, alike political and industrial, belongs to an era that is definitely ended. That past is separated from the present by the bloody gulf of the World War. The secret of the future is to be found in the words of the Prophet:

"Where there is no vision the people perish."

"NORDIC NONSENSE"

We need to rid ourselves of our Nordic nonsense, said Dr. Merle N. Smith of Pasadena in a recent address in Los Angeles. He was giving his impressions from his trip around the world.

He stated three things which America must do to hold her place and command the respect of the foreign world: Recognize the "solidarity of the human race," "abolish war" and "co-operate" in religious or denominational activities.

Nordic nonsense is a fine piece of discrimination. Race snobbery is perilous. The real American is neither Nordic nor Latin—he is an amalgam. And in most cases many tinctures enter.

Even our ideals and religion, of which we boast much, are of Asiatic and Semitic origin. The truest patriot who loves his country the most will have an international mind—and heart.

When Pittsburgh was picked up by radio at Calcutta Dr. Smith was asked by a Hindu, "What has Pittsburgh to say to Calcutta?" That was a poser. Has America anything to say to the world?

When told that in America a man could travel from New York to Chicago, 1000 miles, in about twenty hours a Chinese savant asked, "And what will he do when he gets there?"

When we have Ku Klux Klan riots in Indiana, what can we say about conflicts of caste in India? American civilization is in the retort in the Orient.

We have 17,000 missionaries in foreign fields and then we send out tens of thousands of feet of films that do not always tally with our preachments.

The Orient is sending 8000 students back to our schools annually and they are checking up on our conduct. They take our culture and mechanisms back, but not our ideals.

Co-operation instead of antagonism is the compulsory necessity of religion. The outlander is suspicious of a divided church. War must cease in both state and church.

If we give the world ideas without the corresponding controls of religion we but sharpen the dagger of vice against the breast of virtue.

"NO! ON NINE"

An intelligent citizen was asked recently how he stood on the Wright Act. He replied, "Well, it carried, didn't it?"

He was on the caboose and saw only things that had gone by. He did not appear to know that the Wright Act is imperiled by a referendum on the ballot in November.

This is a fair sample of ordinary good citizenship. He would hotly resent any implication that he bore his citizenship lightly. It may be charitable to say he is ignorant, not dilatory.

If the officers of the law were not more alert than he a recall would be instituted forthwith. It is a weakness of our system that there cannot be a recall of citizenship for neglect. Some are ardent in patriots doing their duty—especially other patriots.

If the Wright Act be repealed, every city, county and State officer will have little part in the enforcement of the constitution. Four hundred judges and 20,000 police will be paralyzed by the nerve of the law being cut.

If the Wright Act be repealed, law enforcement in California, Arizona and Nevada will depend almost wholly upon seventy-five Federal prohibition officers to bring them in over three States and a half-dozen Federal judges or so whose courts are already cloyed to try them.

Our more than 1000 miles of coast line offer rare possibilities for smuggling. Our deserts will be infested with bottles and barrels with wings. Our thousands of miles of glorious highways will be a menace with swift cars engaged in illicit booze traffic. Our southern border furnishes proverbial contact with law-breakers.

A drop of rain on election day has drowned more than one good cause. A ballot or a car with a man asleep at the wheel is a dangerous experiment. Ignorance and democracy have a hard time living together. A hazy, lazy attitude is a crime.

Southern California must also roll up sufficient majority to overcome the North. "No on Number Nine" is the only slogan that will save the constitution.

MERRY MORTICIANS

Four hundred morticians met in solemn conclave in Pasadena recently. It was the twenty-second annual convention of the California Funeral Directors' Association.

Just how it had the hardihood to come to Pasadena is a mystery. Pasadenans are said to be so in love with their town that they have to be put into cages in heaven to keep them from returning.

And yet the morticians met there. Perhaps calling themselves morticians instead of undertakers enabled them to slip by the guard unnoticed.

It opened with a big ball at the Maryland. Consider the solemn brethren of long faces and longer coat-tails swishing about in the St. Louis hop. The morticians made merry in the dance.

Possibly they were pleased in looking forward to future prospects. It may be that there are some people whom even a funeral director can bury with considerable enthusiasm. If they would always bury the right people they might be forgiven.

What is more, the chairman of the Board of City Directors gave them an address of welcome. Why should Pasadena give the funeral directors a formal and cordial reception? Why should they seem so happy in having the undertakers come to town?

Are there some things and people whom they would cover over with beautiful flowers? Would a few more deaths help even the ideally beautiful Crown City?

The city lost its new auditorium by failure of the bonds to carry by the necessary two-thirds. Are the public-spirited folks looking forward to another election and hope to enjoy a few funerals in the meantime?

The whole matter puzzles an outsider. There was such an evidence of cheerful optimism which we usually miss in the presence of the mortician.

Evidently there are some real undertakings that may be undertaken by undertakers. There are also a few people who may be embalmed with considerable pleasure as well as profit to the community.

When Will the Bridegroom Come?

[Protected by George Matthew Adams]

BREAD THAT MOTHER MADE

Some inquisitive scientists have been violating our sanctities and announce that the alcoholic content of home-made bread is .04 to 1.9 per cent.

"Home-made bread, the kind mother used to make, contains a greater alcoholic content than beverages permitted under the prohibition law," said Prof. Nicholas Knight to the American Chemical Society in session in Philadelphia.

Is this the secret of the hold that the bread that mother used to make had upon society? Was it the "kick" in it that made the big brown loaf the monument of epicurean satisfaction?

Will this finding inspire many to go back to mother's bread? How many slices will a man have to eat in order to be "lit up"? How many loaves will it require to superinduce the dreamy eye and wabbly leg?

As far as can be learned nobody has felt the necessity of amending the Constitution to prohibit the bread that mother used to make. The truth is every constitution extant seems to have gotten a bracer from this bread.

We have yet to hear of any antibakery society being formed. Nor has it been deemed advisable to put a padlock upon any food dispensary. No man has yet been flung out of any bakeshop because he has imbibed too freely of bread.

Records and experience are both silent concerning the evil effects of bread upon the liver and the brain. There seems to be a paucity of instances where a man with a loaf went home and kicked his wife and licked his children.

Booze quite generally has been found to be antagonistic to bread. When the bottle comes in the loaf goes out. The flask and the bread pan have little in common.

Even if the yeast plant in bread has been found to distil 1.9 per cent alcohol there is no product known as near-bread. Red noses do not frequent the bakeshops for paint and consolation. When the rummies are driven to the bakeries for a nip they are hard pressed.

It will not be necessary to tighten up the Volstead Act to include bread. By no sort of necromancy can the bake oven be turned into a still.

BEAUTY AND BEAST

The American Academy of Medicine spent one afternoon at its convention discussing the beauty helps of women. The learned scientists seemed to be in doubt about the rolling, banting and other exercises indulged in by portly females. Plastic surgery was condemned. A mild diet and much outdoor exercise were approved as the best assurance of the reduction of flesh and the increase of pulchritude.

OVERLOOKED A BET

Police seeking a robbery suspect paid a visit to his room and found that he had just leaped through a window and was on his way. Several shots apparently led the suspect to believe business was meant so he nose-dived into a garbage can. He was rescued from this haven and led off to the police station. Probably the cops overlooked a bet in not simply clamping on the lid and letting it go at that.

MARTYRS TO SCIENCE

The public-health service has produced a vaccine against Rocky Mountain spotted fever, sometimes called "tick fever," so prevalent in certain Northwestern States. But it was produced at the cost of three lives: Assistant Surgeon McClintic and his two laboratory associates, who contracted the disease while making tests. "They gave their lives," says Surgeon-General Cummings, "that others might live."

PEN POINTS

Parties split at times. The wonder is that candidates don't, the way they straddle.

The true explanation of crime waves is that a lot of people are lower down than a snake's chassis.

As to "lifetime cars," think how you'd look now if you had bought a lifetime brown derby!

"Winter rids us of insects." What about the golf bug and the political bee?

A pullman smoker doesn't encourage easy fellowship. There's nothing high to park your feet on.

The annoying part of having a car pass you is that the speed cop gets you instead of him.

The only ones who must compete with dead people are authors and a widower's second wife.

Clara Bow, though not a fiddler, demonstrated when she caught "Vic" Fleming that she could draw a fine beau.

If a woman has to pay $3000 for a husband who cannot see, how much would she have to pay for one who could look her over?

Travelers on the "Padre" are to be summoned to breakfast by the soothing tinkle of mission chimes. It surely is not meant to suggest the softly jingling coins on the diner salver.

Ah, well; very few rich men wear more, eat more or have more fun than ordinary folk.

PETLURA---THE BANDIT WHO WOULD BE A KING

BY MURZA BARONAVA

How little it meant to Americans, that dispatch from Paris announcing that Petlura, the bandit of the Ukraine, had been killed [illegible] of revenge for his deeds in Southern Russia; and how much it [illegible] to the refugees from the Ukraine in foreign countries all over the world! Petlura, the bandit who would be King of the Ukraine, who promised the peasants that their country should be free once more, that the glory of the past, before they became a [illegible] would return!

No other voice could rouse the fighting spirit of the peasants like that of Petlura. They would follow him even against the terrible Letts that Trotzky brought to win the Ukraine back again for the soviets. He fought against the Reds, the Whites, against the German and Polish invaders. And his personal bravery became a maxim all over Little Russia.

At one time he occupied Kiev, the capital of Ukrainia; at another time he pressed into Odessa, my native city on the Black Sea. He occupied all the city but a small district about the port, which was under the protection of an allied English and French fleet.

"Courage takes cities" is a maxim of Little Russia, and those who fought against him acknowledge his personal courage.

I have read of bandits in many countries during the past, but never of one who operated on so large a scale, who could call so many thousands to his command, who could disperse whole armies sent against him.

To understand the magnitude of his dream one must know something of the Ukraine. It is a province on the Black Sea almost as large as California. Its population in 1914 numbered 35,000,000, more than that of England, almost as much as that of France or Italy. It is the richest agricultural territory in all Russia. Odessa was Europe's greatest grain port.

The Ukraine was loved by we who were born there almost as California is loved by those fortunate enough to be born or to live here. Once it was great and independent. Its King—called Hetman—was more powerful than any other ruler in all Russian territory. Even the Cossacks paid tribute to him. At one time he demanded and received tribute from the Turks in Constantinople.

There is many a mighty name in the history and legend of Southern Russia. Greatest of these was Bogdan Kmalnetzky, who took the land from the northern Tartars. But the power of Turkey grew and the free city of Odessa became subject to the rule of the Sultans.

Then came the Russians again from the north and Odessa passed under the rule of the Czars.

That was all centuries ago; but the glory of the old Ukraine still lives in the folk songs of the peasants.

DREAMS OF EMPIRE

After the revolution of 1917 the Russian soviets made Ukrainia one of the Federation of Socialist Soviet Republics and Skoropatsky was the chief. But Skoropatsky dreamed of being a king. Promised the support of the Poles and Austrians, he renounced allegiance to the soviets and proclaimed the Ukraine an independent monarchy. He was called Hetman.

But the Reds from the north sent an army into the Ukraine. The Poles and Austrians deserted the Hetman and he was compelled to flee. That was in 1918. But about this time a new and terrible dictator appeared in Central Ukrainia. He called himself Hetman Petlura. He told the peasants that they could and should be free, that he would set up for them a peasant state. There would be no rich, and there would be no poor. The land would be their own. They would have their seat of government in Kiev and would become one of the great powers of Europe.

Petlura had been a colonel in the armies of the Czar. His aides were officers from the imperial service. Himself a native of the Ukraine and understanding the stupidity and credulity of the uneducated peasants, he builded his power on their support.

He had no regular army; but the peasants of 100 villages would rise at his command. They possessed the arms they had brought home from the war when Kerensky, in the spring of 1917, gave his famous and unhappy order that the armies should be disbanded and the soldiers of all Russia should return to their villages.

But when they returned they brought their arms with them, and there were rifles and revolvers in almost every peasant's cottage. It was with these arms that the peasants made the revolution.

THE BANDIT KING

Some said that Petlura was a great bandit and rascal and some said that he was a great patriot. For two summers he marched and fought through the Ukraine. Trotzky set a price of 50,000 golden rubles on his head; but his peasant supporters were too loyal to be corrupted.

The Austrians and Poles sought to capture him; but he rode with a few followers into the Kiev forests, where none dared follow him.

Then, when he was expected least, he would appear in another district, the peasants of 100 villages would rally to his standard and he would sweep the country-side.

He drove the Reds from Kiev. He penetrated into almost every part of the Ukraine. When he marched to the Black Sea in 1919 and occupied Odessa he was reputed to have 150,000 peasants under his command. He brought 25,000 on this raid.

Then the Whites under Denekine were fighting Trotzky's Reds and Petlura was defying them both.

I recall well the terror when the Petlura peasants marched down Derebascov street in Odessa. We feared looting and one of those terrible pogroms that have rendered the name of Petlura infamous all over Eastern Europe and Western Asia. But he was then [illegible] Reds and Whites, [illegible] sympathy and support of [illegible] 1,000,000 peasants, [illegible] less looting under Petlura [illegible] of the others who [illegible] during the terrible years [illegible] and 1919.

PETLURA POWER

Petlura's peasants [illegible] mined to root out the [illegible] ish population of Ukraine, [illegible] 2,000,000 men, women [illegible] dren. And it has been [illegible] that they actually did [illegible] Jews during the two [illegible]

I know some refugees [illegible] Los Angeles who were in [illegible] lage of Proscurov—you [illegible] it a city here, for it had a [illegible] lation of more than 30,000—[illegible] uary, 1919, during the first [illegible] the pogrom there. Petlura [illegible] taken the village and he [illegible] over for looting to his [illegible] for a period of three [illegible] robbed and murdered [illegible] but they spared neither [illegible] nor children. More than [illegible] Jews were killed here [illegible] three terrible days. [illegible] killed in the streets, [illegible] bodies lay unburied for [illegible] They were killed in their [illegible] hunted in every hiding [illegible]

This wholesale slaughter [illegible] peated in at least 100 [illegible] no one knew why. Before [illegible] the pogroms Petlura would [illegible] the synagogues, say the [illegible] Jews was against his [illegible] that there would be no [illegible] ing; but the young men [illegible] Jewish families must [illegible] armies. When they refused [illegible] pogroms would begin anew.

How one could be so [illegible] could pretend to be fighting [illegible] welfare of the Ukraine [illegible] and then be guilty of such [illegible] is something I shall never [illegible] stand. I am inclined to agree [illegible] those who believed him mad [illegible] fanaticism and the war had [illegible] his brain; and as I look back [illegible] those terrible times now I [illegible] why the Ukraine could not [illegible] its freedom.

WHY PETLURA FAILED

Men who would kill the [illegible] like that could never be [illegible] by the good God with the [illegible] ment of a country. The Reds [illegible] cruel, but not so cruel as the [illegible] ants of Petlura. The [illegible] peasants are greedy and [illegible] If the Jewish population had [illegible] been possessed of some [illegible] they would have suffered less [illegible] the peasants robbed whoever [illegible] slew. They enriched themselves [illegible] with treasures that reeked [illegible] blood.

But for those pogroms it is [illegible] sible that Petlura's dream of [illegible] pire might have come true. [illegible] were many in Odessa who were inclined to follow him until they learned of the bloody deeds of his followers. The Ukraine will have no king whose hands are stained with so much Jewish blood. One in his right mind would have known that such terrible measures could not succeed.

And now he is dead—killed by a French bullet. The fanatical and stupid peasants who fought for him in the Ukraine will be slow to give credence to his report. For he was fatally believed to possess a charmed life. He passed through battle after battle, always where the fighting was hottest, and never received a wound. Military friends of mine say that he wore some kind of armor under his coat. But there were many intelligent officers in the White armies who believed he was protected by some higher power. Perhaps the strangest rumor had something to do with his success.

My poor Ukraine! How she longed for freedom, and when a bandit came to offer it to her there will be pardon for her if a mother's heart is like God's when she learns that the butcher is dead. He drove the Reds from the Ukraine and for a time none knew where; and the peasants have been waiting for his return to rise again against the Reds and, alas, again to rob and murder.

And it is now ended. The bandit who would be a king died a bandit's death that he inflicted on many thousands. He who drove so many [illegible] to exile died himself a fugitive. Perhaps it is well.

MY PHILOSOPHY

My philosophy is simple,
And I hope to make it plain;
For there are so many people
Eager to be true and sane.
Let us, then, in clear prose,
Visualize just what we mean
Conscious beings, all endowed
In the trails of our small lives
Moving swiftly, yet unbowed
Through a vast, unbounded space
Parts and parcels of the main
Life that is Infinity.

Nothing ever was created,
Nothing ever will there be;
Forms are changing, vanishing,
Often many times a day.
Every atom is in motion,
Always was, will always be.
Worlds evolving, worlds dissolving.

All is perfect harmony,
And there is in every [illegible]
An uplifting tendency,
Urging all, through [illegible]
strife-storm,
To achieve nearness.

And to do this we must ever
Learn to chord and harmonize
With the ringing voices [illegible]
In the chorus of the skies.
We must get into the rhythm
Of the life in which we live,
Faces glowing, all [illegible]
That life's highest [illegible]
And with this ideal before us
We will soon end [illegible]
Gladness voicing [illegible]

This is my philosophy.

The Valencia Trio is composed of girls who know good music and play it well. Their ensemble is splendid, they play with beautiful expression, and one always knows that they will be absolutely on key—which means much.

The versatile Orpheus Four entered into the spirit of the evening by singing several "flower" and "garden" songs. They can always be depended upon to sing just the right thing at the right time. They also gave their half-hour of hymns, which is their custom on Sunday evenings. It is amazing how the old-time music keeps coming in to the quartet. Their library of old songs must be one of the largest in the country.

FOSTER TO TALK

The program today at noon will bring to you the Stewart-Warner Trio, James Neill Northe, tenor, and Pat Lynn in popular songs. Setting aside our usual custom, we will be on the air at 2 o'clock this afternoon, as we feel that we are giving our friends a rare opportunity.

Robert Frederick Foster, than whom there is no greater authority on bridge, will speak on the fundamental principles of bidding. Following his radio talk, Mr. Foster will go immediately to Bullock's, where he will speak at 3 o'clock. Arrangements have been made to present Mr Foster at Bullock's in three additional talks—one this afternoon, one Tuesday and one Wednesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Many who were unable to gain admission to his former series will be glad of this opportunity.

Today is the birthday of Arthur Stevens, "King Arthur of KHJ," and he is celebrating by having a party at his home in San Bernardino. The children who usually appear with Arthur on the children's program Saturday nights are to be among his guests.

YOUNG WOMEN INVITED

An unusually attractive program, free to all young business women of Los Angeles, will be given by the Girls' Corner Club tomorrow evening at the Philharmonic Auditorium. Employees and managers of Bullock's store will be honor guests and Walter S. Young will be the speaker. NEWCOMER ADOPTS CITY ON GLIMPSE

Concert Master Engaged by Philharmonic Declares Los Angeles His Home

Alfredo Megerlin, for four years concert master of the Philharmonic Orchestra in New York, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday to become concert master of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Megerlin was accompanied by his wife and 7-year-old daughter, and announced upon arrival that "the Megerlin family are now all Angelenos."

Megerlin took one drive in the city yesterday and straightway declared himself "sold" on the beauty of Los Angeles and Southern California. He is a native of Antwerp, Belgium. When he first came to this country, nine years ago, he took out his first citizenship papers. Within three hours of his arrival here yesterday he announced his intention of becoming Americanized at the earliest moment.

Megerlin reported to Walter Henry Rothwell, conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra, who escorted the new concert master to the home of W. A. Clark, founder and backer of the orchestra. Afterward the three had a long conference on the coming year's work for the Philharmonic.

"I have always loved everything beautiful," Megerlin exclaimed. "In Belgium I remember once we cherished a palm tree and when it grew too large for our garden we gave it to a park, where it became a famous thing. Now I come to your city and I see everywhere these beautiful palms and at once I think I am an Angeleno for the rest of my days."

Megerlin refused to discuss music, declaring that people sometimes talk too much about it, when it can always talk better for itself through fine execution. At present Megerlin and his family are at the Engstrum Arms apartment hotel, but they will shortly find a "real house with many beautiful palms" and take up all the activities of citizens.

Prominent realty men from Los Angeles closed the annual hi-jinks frolic at Coronado Beach yesterday afternoon with the staging of a burlesque bathing beauty show.

Lewis bearing a banner with the words, "Join Our Bathing Beauties Club."

The judges were Mrs. D. W. Grant and Miss Kells, daughter of H. R. Kells of the realty firm of Kells & Grant.

Briton Speaks Before Lawyer Club Tomorrow

A. Moresby White, distinguished English barrister, will be the principal speaker tomorrow noon at the luncheon meeting of the Justinian Club at Hotel Clark. Mr. White will speak on the English Inns of Court, a subject on which he has a fund of practical and intimate knowledge.

The Justinian Club is an organization including in its membership all the judges of courts of record in Los Angeles and a number of the leading attorneys of the city.

An unusually large attendance is expected at tomorrow's meeting as the subject of Mr. White's address is one of interest to American jurists and lawyers who are seeking to raise the standards of the courts and the bar by developing the fraternal spirit and associations so well served in England by the historic Inns of Court.

WONDER HORSE HERE FOR SHOW

Won 300-Mile Army Endurance Race

[P. & A. Photo]

Tanbark Highbrow

* A. T. Feamster up on "Major Vancicler."

THE arrival here recently of "Major Vancicler," widely known throughout horse-show circles as the winner of the army's 300-mile endurance race in 1924, has excited interest among local lovers of thoroughbred horseflesh. Yesterday A. T. Feamster, his owner, was busily engaged in putting the aristocrat of the tanbark through his paces at the Griffith Park Riding Academy for a group of interested visitors.

In addition to being an animal of great stamina, "Major Vancicler" is known also as a "high-chool" horse, having been taught a number of show tricks by Feamster, who raised him from a colt. Feamster brought him here, he says, for exhibition purposes, and intends entering him in the Ambassador and other shows.

The horse won every blue ribbon in the Union, Or., stock show recently, according to Feamster, who declares he has exhibited him in shows throughout the country and that he has won blue ribbons every time he competed. Among the other cities where he has competed in shows, Feamster says, are Richmond, Louisville, Philadelphia and New York.

"Major Vancicler" is a dappled sorrel, six years' old, sixteen hands high, weighs 1100 pounds and is seven-gaited. He is out of "Van Sicler," who never lost a harness race, according to Feamster, who raised the colt in Notice, Idaho. He is known as a full-blooded Red Squirrel.

The army endurance race in which he defeated twenty-eight entries, is considered a test in horseflesh. It is run over a 300-mile triangular course during a period of five days, in which the entries are supposed to cover sixty miles a day. The race which "Major Vancicler" won was from Boise City to Caldwell, to Nape, Idaho. Sixty points were awarded on the winner's condition, and forty on the elapsed time.

Feamster, known as one of the best riders in the country, was up on "Major Van." He was the only rider who rode without using spurs and quirt. He rode in a French army officer's saddle. Each entry had to carry 200 pounds, under the War Department rules, and to make this up twenty-seven and one-half pounds of shot, or deadweight was added to "Major Van's" burden. He was the smallest entry by from 180 to 300 pounds, and was from 2 to 5 years the youngest. The "Major" was the only full-blooded horse in the race, which was open to all.

The "The Major" was also the only entry that has been fed on alfalfa and hay during his training and was brought from the pasture three days before the race.

Only four horses completed the test and Feamster declares "Major Van" came in chewing the bit and with his tail in the air, although he lost fifteen pounds during the three-day test, the smallest loss recorded by any contestant. He won the race by one hour and thirty-four and one-half minutes. Maj. E. S. Shafer, U.S.A., of Ft. Russell, Wyo., officated as judge and the late William Jennings Bryan, who was visiting Boise City, awarded the prizes to Feamster. They were a silver cup, $300 in cash and a gold medal given by the Arabian Horse Club of America.

HOLD-UP MEN BEAT VICTIM

Half Dozen Report Loss of Several Hundred Dollars to Bandit Gangs During Night

One man suffered a possible skull fracture and a half a dozen other citizens lost several hundred dollars as the result of as many robberies reported to the police yesterday. Juan Arranta of 1862 North Main street suffered the injury. He reported that he was ambushed by two bandits while crossing a vacant lot near Macy and Alameda streets. When he offered resistance he was promptly knocked down with a blow from a piece of heavy gas pipe. Though severely injured Arranta remained conscious, and later staggered into the Receiving Hospital for treatment. His assailants obtained $30 in cash from his purse, he stated.

W. H. Sloan of 142½ East Thirty-fourth place reported the loss of $10 and a watch to two bandits who held him and his girl companion up while sitting in his car at One Hundred and Twenty-first street and South Park avenue. The girl was not molested. Sloan reported that the bandits acted in a very nervous manner and appeared not to be more than about 18 years of age.

As C. B. Brown drove his car into his garage at the rear of his home at 4075 Oakwood avenue, one man driving up in another car behind him, compelled him at the point of a revolver to hand over $2 in cash and a $50 watch. The bandit then made Brown walk a short distance from his home so that he would have a chance to escape without being followed by his victim.

A lone bandit armed with an automatic pistol held up J. A. Del Dotto in his grocery store at 4102 Clayton street and robbed him of $16, another police report stated.

A few minutes after he departed from the Shell oil station at 1120 North Broadway, J. C. Maxwell was held up by a lone bandit answering a similar description, and after being forced to drive to Mozart street and Avenue 21, was robbed of $116 and his car.

Liquor Law Violator Escapes Fine, Dentist Collects Bill and One Assertedly Aching Cruncher is Yanked Amid Fumes of Gas

Municipal Judge Turney called a Wright Act violator's bluff with the result that W. B. Stevenson lost an aged wisdom tooth and Dr. John A. Macklin collected a dentist's bill.

Appearing before Judge Turney in answer to a charge of possessing a pint of liquor, Stevenson pleaded guilty but insisted that he had bought the liquor for the sole purpose of easing the pain of a chronic toothache.

"Where's the tooth?" the judge asked.

Stevenson opened his mouth and pointed.

"Why don't you have it extracted?" the court queried.

"Well, your honor, I was on my way to the dentist's to do that very thing when I was arrested," Stevenson answered.

"All right," Judge Turney declared, "you're getting the chance right now. Come back at 2 o'clock this afternoon. If you still have the tooth you are 'stuck.'"

At the appointed time Stevenson reeled into court looking very pale and extended the judge a sealed envelope. It contained a large wisdom tooth and a note which read:

"Your honor; inclosed find wisdom tooth I have just extracted from W. B Stevenson. Thanks for the business." It was signed by Dr. Macklin.

"Okeh," said Judge Turney, "$50 suspended and I hope you feel better from now on."

Stevenson reeled out of the courtroom, looking very pale. "The gas that dentist gave me was worse th the liquor I had," he muttered. "There ought to be a law against ". No wonder men drink."

PAUL WHITEMAN SCORES A HIT

"Classical Jazz" Draws Large Audiences

Receives Ovation at the Million Dollar

Meighan's "Tin Gods" Wins Approval

BY HERBERT MOULTON

Super-jazz.

Ultra-modern syncopation.

Classical melody and popular squawks—deftly blended.

In other words, Paul Whiteman is back.

And with him are the peppiest and most dexterous group of harmony-hounds that perhaps have ever been assembled in one orchestra.

Fresh from their European jaunt, Whiteman and his band opened at the Million Dollar Theater Saturday for their first appearance in Los Angeles since their concert tour two seasons ago.

That they were not forgotten during the interval was attested by the fact that the theater has been jammed to capacity at every performance.

Whiteman's reception, in fact, was the kind that every local boy hopes for when he comes home. He received prolonged applause after each number, irrespective of what the number happened to be.

To call his organization a jazz band is hardly descriptive enough to do it justice. Music in its more popular forms of rendition is uppermost, of course, but added to this is something of greater melodic fineness, even a classical quality, that lifts it above the commonplace.

There is a commingling of the strains of the stringed and woodwind instruments with the blatant and cacophonic whoops of the brasses that makes the playing of every number a happy surprise. The marvelous part of it all is that anything even faintly harmonious could come of it. But it does, to such an extent, in fact, that plain, unadulterated jazz sounds rather tame by comparison.

Whiteman, it will be remembered, is responsible for the Rhapsody in Blue, which was hailed a few years ago as the epitome of jazz, the forerunner of a new American music. It was anticipated that this would be given in the series of pieces on his opening program, but at the performance I attended yesterday it was not included.

One of the bright spots of his performance is the Whitemanesque rendition of "Valencia."

Whiteman announces it with an apology and then proceeds to make it one of the most acceptable numbers of the group. This is largely due to the antics of various members of the band, who indulge in many musical idiosyncracies.

The number in which he introduces the individual members of the band, too, is a riot.

It is the comedy relief of the program.

Whiteman has been called "King of Jazz" and "Czar of Syncopation," but it might be more fitting to label him as a Monarch of Modern Music.

For he has evolved something surpassingly entertaining, something that is distinctly individual in its style and presentation.

To miss hearing him will be to miss one of the treats of the season.

While Whiteman is unquestionably the principal attraction at the Million Dollar, the screen is not without its compensating features.

The photoplay offering is "Tin Gods," starring Thomas Meighan.

It is one of the best pictures Meighan has ever made.

Directed by Allan Dwan, it is almost flawless in its unfoldment, with a continuity of splendid smoothness.

However, despite the fact that Meighan's performance is among his best, the acting laurels will have to go to Renee Adoree.

She plays an exotic South American dance-hall girl and imbues the character with all of the fiery appeal and colorful vigor that such characters invariably have in the imagination, if not in actuality.

Her portrayal really makes the picture one of merit; otherwise it might conceivably have been so much tropical claptrap.

The story is built around a husband and wife, played by Meighan and Aileen Pringle, who come to a parting of the ways because of the wife's selfishness in the matter of a career. Hubby wants to build bigger and better bridges, but it seems he can't because his wife won't leave New York—and they don't need any bridges in New York.

Thereafter, he goes to South America, becomes a victim of despondency, almost drinks himself to death, and is saved by the girl from the saloon.

The last-reel appearance of the wife in South America puts a lively climax to the story and brings about a fadeout that is not in the least conventional.

Miss Pringle is well cast as the career-complexed wife.

Other players are William Powell, who gives an interesting portrayal as the native saloon-keeper, and Hale Hamilton, John Harrington, Joe King, Robert O'Connor and Delbert Emory Whitten, Jr.

Story of Hollywood

Patsy Ruth Miller

Appearing in the Warner feature, "Broken Hearts of Hollywood," the feature film showing at Pantages this week.

Pictures Life of Pioneers in 'Three Bad Men'

"Three Bad Men" a screen story of one of the most romantic periods in the history of American empire building, dealing with the opening of the many millions of acres of Indian land to the white man, is the feature now at the Figueroa Theater.

Over 15,000 people appear in some of the scenes, depicting invasion of the Dakotas. The horse, oxen, dogs, cattle, prairie wagons and other vehicles, including bicycles, surreys, wheelbarrows, hand wagons and prairie schooners, run into the thousands.

The cast includes J. Farrell MacDonald, Tom Santschi and Frank Campeau in the roles of the "rascally three," who play a strangely assorted trio. George O'Brien and Olive Borden play the lovers, supported by Alec Francis, Otis Harlan, Lou Tellegen and Jay Hunt.

'HOT' MUSIC FINE BUT RHYTHM COMES FIRST

Carr Brothers' California dance orchestra, which opens a limited engagement at the Cinderella Roof on the 27th inst., is said to bring the kind of rhythm that makes one want to dance. There is a certain psychology to playing dance music, the Carr brothers claim. The thing that makes people have the desire to dance is "rhythm," which is entirely up to the drum, banjo and tuba players, and after that you may play all the "sweet" or "hot" music that a crowd likes but the rhythmic foundation must be there.

Carr Brothers are said to have one of the finest rhythm sections of any band that has ever come to Los Angeles. There are ten artists, each one an accomplished musician and entertainer.

CROONING MELODY

Nick Lucas and Elsa Ersi Please Hillstreet Audiences

Nick Lucas, he of the haunting, crooning voice, "brought down the house," as the rubber stamp has it, at the Hillstreet yesterday.

You've heard the sad, soft voice of Nick via the phonograph discs, and now he is doing a "turn" in person via the vaudeville stage.

This pleasing troubadour takes the usual blatant jazz airs and presto-changos transforms them into ballads. He is a very generous lad with his encores, calling to the audience for requests.

Elsa Ersi has moved her blonde loveliness and fascinating accent over to the Hillstreet. The charming Hungarian girl sings a light, joyful group of Viennese waltzes and Czardos, varied with the tabasco of American popular music.

Miss Ersi's Hungarian stringed orchestra is one of the best heard in many moons.

Gerber's Gaieties moves at a sufficiently fast clip, but it is just another vaudeville revue, with little to distinguish it from the many that have gone before. There is a team of dancers, however, who must be favored children of Terpsichore.

Anderson and Yvel do an Apache dance on roller skates in a final thriller, and Small and Hayes, two dusky lads, sing and dance. One of them invades the ranks of the Cantor tenor with his splendid rendition of a Hebrew classic aria.

"The Sea Wolf," dear to the hearts of all lovers of Jack London's virile romances, has again found its way to the screen. This time Ralph Ince plays the brutal captain of the clipper-ship, "The Ghost."

While the picture would have benefitted by a more spectacular treatment, the London story is carefully followed, and there are a number of sterling performances.

The storm at sea was just a little too "studio," to be impressive, and the choppy waves obviously only in a tank. This perhaps is a minor point, but it detracts from a picture so markedly sea-faring in nature.

Ince gives a splendidly tempered characterization as the man who lived and died denying a power greater than his own brute strength.

Theodore Von Eltz and Claire Adams are most acceptable as the "shanghaied" sweethearts, and Snitz Edwards is properly amusing as "Cookie."

Ralph Ince, who also directed the production, has caught successfully the rugged spirit which London always managed to convey in the printed pages of his novels.

'Mare Nostrum' Was New York Record Breaker

"Mare Nostrum," Rex Ingram's production, with Alice Terry and Antonio Moreno in the leading roles, which is now playing at the Forum Theater, last week established a new record among photoplay achievements in New York.

ALICE TERRY

This production recently closed its long run of twenty-eight weeks at the Criterion Theater there, where it was playing at advanced prices, and was moved over to the Capitol Theater, where it broke all attendance records and grossed more than $74,000 in the seven days' showing.

"Mare Nostrum" is announced to be equally as popular at the Forum as in New York and is said to be one of the best pictures seen at the Forum recently.

OCTAVUS ROY COHEN TO WRITE COMEDIES

Octavus Roy Cohen, Saturday Evening Post writer, signed yesterday a contract with Universal to write a series of comedies for Charles Puffy.

These comedies will be produced under the supervision of Scott Darling, supervising director of Universal comedies.

ELSIE ADDS NEW GROUP OF STARS

Wizardry of Impersonator Is Again Evidenced on Orpheum Bill

BY BARBARA MILLER

"Those of you who saw me last week are bearing up very well under the strain."

Thus the blithe Elsie Janis, at the close of her Orpheum act yesterday afternoon.

Undeniably, the audience "stood the strain" perfectly, not to say joyfully.

There was only one objection to Miss Janis's number. It was far too short, despite her generosity in the way of encores.

A phenomenal person, truly, this slim, curly haired woman who slips so casually yet so perfectly into the personalities of the great of the stage.

She repeated several of her impersonations of last week—Mr. John Barrymore's lament anent the banana famine in Denmark, Sister Ethel's dramatic declaration that "Mama goes where papa goes," and Senorita Meller's haunting "Violet Seller," with Charleston trimmings.

By way of variety, Jeanne Eagels, floppy pompadour and well-known slink intact, announced emphatically, "That's my baby!" while George M. Cohan, Eddie Foy and Sam Bernard favored with a saccharine ditty.

Though Miss Janis belongs to the clan whose members believe that everyone secretly wishes to be something he is not, and her impersonations this season are based on that theory, she permitted Will Rogers to be himself—to everyone's delight.

Of special interest, also, is the presence on the current bill of Alfred Mirovitch, distinguished Russian pianist.

This is his first appearance on the vaudeville stage. His numbers, of course, are executed with perfect skill and he combines an interestingly business-like manner with rare ability.

As for the rest—typical "vaudeville stuff." Entertaining in the extreme, too, judging by the incessant applause.

Harry Fox's songs and patter were received with special joy while his chorus of "six beautiful girls" proved one of the hits of the show.

Opening the bill, Zoe Delphine & Co. appeared "In a Paris Cafe," an equilibristic act. Wilfred Clarke in a nonsensical skit, "Now What?" the good taste of which might well be questioned, and Bud Snyder & Co. offering more humor, are other features.

Bert Hanlon, with his fast line, is on for another week as are Allen and Canfield, with songs and slap-stick.

All Egyptian Marks Shattered With 'Don Juan'

Close of the first month's run of "Don Juan," the Warner Brothers' love picture starring John Barrymore, at Grauman's Egyptian will be celebrated tonight. According to Sid Grauman, the production has broken all attendance records since the opening of the Hollywood playhouse.

John Barrymore

It is shown by a survey of box office records that the Egyptian Theater has never presented a feature with greater appeal to feminine audiences, and matinees have been thronged by members of the fair sex, to whom John Barrymore is the greatest living matinee idol.

Into the prologue is definitely incorporated both a masculine and feminine appeal, with divertisements for young and old alike. There are male choruses, the Cansinos, Bernardo De Face, hailed as one of America's best known mandolin players; the Novelle Brothers, English mimics and pantomimists, and a musical accompaniment and overture by Josiah Zuro and the Egyptian Theater orchestra that has been favorably commented on by music lovers.

Title Writer Injects Laughs in 'Wet Paint'

Humor has been injected into Raymond Griffith's picture, "Wet Paint," now showing at the Metropolitan Theater, by Ralph Spence, author of "The Gorilla," who wrote the subtitles.

Spence opens by comparing the picture to Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing." He remarks that the plot was "taken from the French," and he adds that "the French gave it up without a struggle."

As the action of the picture progresses Griffith finds himself a human island—entirely surrounded by women. As the situation develops and the girls threaten to sue Griffith for breach of promise Spence sagely remarks that "some girls take it to heart—others to court."

Bryant Washburn, who plays the part of Griffith's rival, appears on the scene and is highly enraged. He announces that the girl, Helene Costello, really loves him, and Griffith says, "If she loved you she would have announced her engagement to me. That's the way with women."

'Bardelys' Will be Given Great Premiere Night

The reserved seat sale for the opening of "Bardelys the Magnificent," starring John Gilbert, opens this morning at the Carthay Circle Theater. The event takes place the 29th inst. and it will mark the world premiere of this effort of King Vidor and John Gilbert, who were also responsible for "The Big Parade."

"The Volga Boatman" ends its run the 27th inst., after an engagement of nineteen weeks. The theater will be closed all day Tuesday and until Wednesday evening to allow for the final dress rehearsals of Jack Laughlin's new prologue, "Les Magnifique," and also for the purpose of giving Carli Elinor a chance to put the final touches to the rehearsals of his musical score for this picture.

Already hundreds of stars, directors, authors and film celebrities have indicated their intention of being on hand at this gala premiere. It bids fair, according to Roy Miller, to eclipse even the opening of this theater last May.

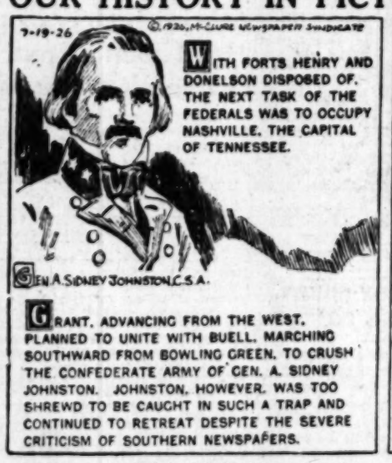
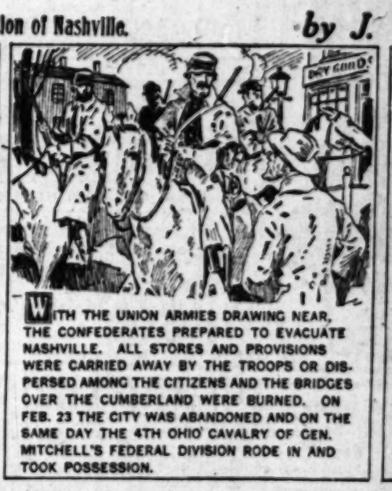
OUR HISTORY IN PICTURES 513 The Occupation of Nashville. by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD



WITH FORTS HENRY AND DONELSON DISPOSED OF, THE NEXT TASK OF THE FEDERALS WAS TO OCCUPY NASHVILLE, THE CAPITAL OF TENNESSEE.

GRANT, ADVANCING FROM THE WEST, PLANNED TO UNITE WITH BUELL, MARCHING SOUTHWARD FROM BOWLING GREEN, TO CRUSH THE CONFEDERATE ARMY OF GEN. A. SIDNEY JOHNSTON. JOHNSTON, HOWEVER, WAS TOO SHREWD TO BE CAUGHT IN SUCH A TRAP AND CONTINUED TO RETREAT DESPITE THE SEVERE CRITICISM OF SOUTHERN NEWSPAPERS.

HIS FORCES KEPT BEYOND THE GRASP OF THEIR PURSUERS AND IN THEIR RETREAT DESTROYED EVERYTHING OF MILITARY VALUE BEHIND THEM TO PREVENT IT FALLING INTO THE HANDS OF THE FEDERALS. ON FEB. 20, 1862, TROOPS OF GRANT'S ARMY HAD REACHED CLARKSVILLE, FIFTY MILES NORTHWEST OF THE STATE CAPITAL.



WITH THE UNION ARMIES DRAWING NEAR, THE CONFEDERATES PREPARED TO EVACUATE NASHVILLE. ALL STORES AND PROVISIONS WERE CARRIED AWAY BY THE TROOPS OR DISPERSED AMONG THE CITIZENS AND THE BRIDGES OVER THE CUMBERLAND WERE BURNED. ON FEB. 23 THE CITY WAS ABANDONED AND ON THE SAME DAY THE 4TH OHIO CAVALRY OF GEN. MITCHELL'S FEDERAL DIVISION RODE IN AND TOOK POSSESSION.

THE GOVERNOR AND STATE LEGISLATURE FLED AND WHEN GRANT AND BUELL REACHED NASHVILLE THEY AT ONCE SET UP A STATE GOVERNMENT UNDER MARTIAL LAW. ANDREW JOHNSON (WHO LATER BECAME PRESIDENT AT THE DEATH OF LINCOLN) WAS APPOINTED MILITARY GOVERNOR WITH THE RANK OF BRIGADIER GENERAL.

Cook for fifteen minutes in three tablespoonfuls of butter, one quarter of a cupful each of sliced onion, chopped celery, chopped green peppers and one-half teaspoonful of pepper corns; add three tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well blended; then five cupfuls of chicken stock, one-half pound of honeycomb tripe, cut in cubes, one and one-half cupfuls of potato cubes. Cover and cook an hour and just before serving add one-half cupful of cream, two tablespoonfuls of butter and salt.

PALACE GRILL SALAD

Cut clean, crisp stalks of celery into narrow straws about like matches and throw in ice water. Peel a pineapple and shred with a fork. Chop fine a few green peppers and pimentoes and put all on the ice. When ready to use dry the celery in a napkin and mix all together with a mayonnaise, to which a cupful of whipped cream has been added. Serve icy cold on lettuce hearts.

GRAPE MERINGUE TART

Make a rich pastry as for pie and line with it a deep tart or pudding form. Chill, brush with white of egg, prick with a fork and bake. Beat the whites of four eggs to a stiff, dry froth, add a cupful of sugar, vanilla to flavor and then gently incorporate two cupfuls of grapes. Drop by the spoonful into the baked shell and bake in a slow oven until the meringue firms firm to the touch.

PUREE OF CAULIFLOWER

Cook one head of cauliflower until soft in two quarts of veal or chicken stock. Rub through a sieve and set aside. Cook together until thick two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour and two cupfuls of milk. Add to the cauliflower, reheat and just before serving add the yolk of an egg beaten smooth with half a cupful of cream.

HUNGARIAN GOULASCH

Wipe two pounds of beef cut from lower part of round with a piece of cheese cloth, wrung out of cold water, and cut in one and one-half-inch cubes. Put in saucepan, add one quart boiling water, to which has been added two cloves of garlic and let boil five minutes. Cover and let simmer until meat is tender.

Pare potatoes and cut in three-quarter-inch slices, then cut slices in cubes; there should be one and one-half cupfuls. Cover with boiling salted water and let boil five minutes; drain and add to meat fifteen minutes before serving time to finish the cooking. Peel twenty-four tiny onions and cook in boiling salted water to cover; drain and add to goulasch. Cream three tablespoonfuls butter, add three tablespoonfuls flour and work until smooth; then add by small pieces to stock in stew pan (of which there should be two cupfuls.) stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper and turn on a hot platter.

The LAST WORD

By ALMA WHITAKER

THE DUNMOW FLITCH

An ancient rite is observed every year at a little town called Ilford in England. A "flitch" of bacon is presented to all those married couples who "have lived in perfect harmony for twelve months."

A trial is staged at which the jury are six spinsters and six bachelors, and prominent men undertake the job of presiding judge, and counsel for the claimants.

And this year two couples were able to prove that "perfect harmony." One was an old couple of 79 years of age, who had been married for nearly sixty years. And the other was a young couple, with ten children.

Of course, it was high time the old couple had learned to live in "perfect harmony" and avoid petty squabbles. But that young couple, with ten lively children to frazzle their nerves and test their tempers, certainly earned their "flitch."

"Of course, it is very nice for a married couple never to squabble about anything," said a merry wife, when we were discussing this ancient rite, "but it sounds a bit dull. Are one of them must be exceptionally meek and patient. For my part, I prefer a dash of incompatibility. It keeps one on one's toes, up to the mark, you know.

JUST SPOILS FOR ARGUMENT

"If we have perfect harmony at our house for more than a week or two, I feel smothered. I just spoil for a fight with someone. I will wager both of us would have to take it out on somebody else if we did not feel free to take it out on each other."

"But it is so common to quarrel with one's family" I suggested. "Anyone can do that. It is so easy to blow up at home, and take it out on the poor dears who are dependent upon us and our good temper, and who jolly well have to put up with us."

"Oh, they probably enjoy it, too. They want their touchy spells the same as we do. I don't see why you call it 'common.' I am sure our incompatibility is perfectly good form. . . . most of the time anyway," said the merry wife, laughing. "Anyway directly either of us get rude we realize it is time to stop."

"And probably frisk out of the room and bang a door or kick the piano or swear at the cat. . . . which is very common indeed" I insisted.

"Well, we never actually throw things, and of course, we never descend to calling names" she gurgled.

SPATS OF INCOMPATIBILITY

"Oh, no, never. Certainly not. She has never called me a sublime idiot or an addle-pated chump or a stupid mummy of a . . . ." remarked her spouse, sarcastically.

"Did I ever do that, darling?" she asked contritely. "You must have been quite seriously incompatible on those occasions. Could not possibly have been when you called me a fool-dum belle, and said I wore feathers where my brains ought to be, and had no more sense than a yapping chimpanzee."

"Dear me, you must have had your spats of incompatibility." I agreed. "Tell me, do you ever believe each other? And who forgives who first, and do you take it all back?"

"The best that can be said for us is that we resume diplomatic relations" grinned the husband.

Shameless couple. They never could claim the Dunmow Flitch. Perhaps there is something to be said for just a dash of incompatibility, but oh, it must require peculiar finesse to keep it from becoming just "common." Quite as difficult in its way as earning the Dunmow Flitch, and much more dangerous.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Auto License Hunting

One Mother Says:

Long motor rides were very tiresome to my children until I started the game of license hunting. We started the first of the year to see how many different state licenses we would see. A notebook was carried in the car, and whenever the tag of a new state was seen, it was jotted down. We already have more than half of the states, and we are all interested in seeing if we will get them all before the end of the year. The children vie to see who can see a new license first, and our rides are made much more interesting.

NEW PLANT UNIT READY TO OPERATE

Tonopah-Belmont Mill at Wickenburg Due to Start Today

The first seventy-five-ton unit of the new milling plant of the Tonopah Belmont Development Company at Camp Belmont, twenty-eight miles southwest of Wickenburg, Ariz., is scheduled to go into regular commission today, treating ores running from $25 to $40 a ton from the upper levels of the mine, and from $40 to $60 from the lower horizon, values running in lead, silver, gold and copper.

A number of other mining companies, attracted by the favorable mineralization of the district, are clustered around the Belmont, and their holdings are in course of development, including the New Tonopah Divide, whose shares were listed on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange on September 16.

The property of the New Tonopah Divide adjoins the Belmont, or McNeill mine, and is said to cover the extension of the McNeill vein. The main shaft being sunk in the development of the Divide has been sunk on the hanging wall side of the massive ore deposit to a depth of 100 feet, and from this level a crosscut is being run to reach the vein, recent reports from Wickenburg stating that the country rock in the face of the cross-cut is heavily mineralized and permeated with copper and lead sulphides, indicative of the near presence of commercial ore.

Further agricultural and railway developments are being planned for India.

GASTRIC ULCERS

As I write this, the whole world is shocked by the death of Rudolph Valentino. Shocked, not only because he was a beloved screen actor, but because he was young, apparently strong, athletic and in good health. He died from the effects of a ruptured gastric ulcer and, according to the first reports, he had had no warning that he had an ulcer. According to later reports, he had had a severe case of intestinal trouble not very long since, and he was continuously dosing himself with bicarbonate of soda for hyperacidity.

You see from this that the poor boy had had warnings, and undoubtedly had he gone to a competent physician for what he apparently considered minor symptoms of indigestion, he might have been saved from death.

He served greatly in giving thousands pleasure while he lived. By his premature death he will probably serve as many thousands in a more serious way, by teaching the need of competent medical attention in the beginning of disorders and the need for periodic health examinations to forestall disorders.

Already the near-doctors and laymen who know nothing of the case of the subject are writing, giving their opinions as to the cause of his death. Those who are fanatics against surgery say the operation killed him, not realizing that unless an immediate operation is performed, a ruptured ulcer which lets much of the contents of the stomach or intestines into the abdominal cavity, invariably causes death very soon from peritonitis or bleeding. Immediate operations will often prevent these. Others say he was fed too soon, that the simple milk gruel, for instance, caused his death, not realizing that patients are fed after a period of starvation not only for nourishment, but to keep down acidosis, and in case of stomach troubles, to prevent the possible corroding action of the hydrochloric acid. Others say he died from nicotine poisoning; that if he hadn't been a great smoker his tissues would not have been poisoned and he would have had more resisting power.

All of this is obviously unfair to him and to his doctors, for if the lining of the abdominal cavity and the covering of the intestines (peritoneum) is greatly infected, even with a strong constitution, death is most certain to result.

But why should a young man who was reputed not to be dissipated, who was an athlete, who apparently was well, why should he develop a gastric ulcer? Not knowing any more about him than the rest of you do, I can only conjecture. I shall give you the ideas of the cause of ulcer, hoping by this and by the example of Valentino to help prevent them. First, I'll quote from Tice:

CAUSES OF GASTRIC ULCER

"Age. Ulcer is seldom found in infancy, childhood or during adolescence.

"Social Conditions. Those who lead strenuous lives attended by mental and nervous strain or hardships . . . improper food or habits of eating, may bear a part.

"Toxic Agents . . . The injudicious ingestion of alcohol plays a part although many abstainers are found to have ulcers (Excess nicotine no doubt also has to be considered. L. H. P.)

"Focal Infections. It has been quite well established that infections arising from foci in the tonsils, about, or in the teeth, nasal sinuses, gall bladder, appendix, prostate, ovaries or elsewhere, is an important causative factor in both gastric and duodenal ulcers."

Now I'll quote from Robert McCarrison's Studies in Deficiency Disease.

After demonstrating that monkeys and guinea pigs fed upon deficient diets would develop ulcerations, he goes on: "Deficient and ill-balanced foods may thus be added to the list of chemical, mechanical, toxic, nervous and bacterial agencies capable of producing hemorrhagic erosions and acute ulcers of the stomach and duodenum. . . . The food fault leads both to the state of lowered resistance to infection and to ill health of the stomach and duodenum so that organisms such as streptococci swallowed by the mouth, or arriving by way of the blood stream, might in this state become the more easily implanted on an area of eroded mucous membrane."

(Tomorrow—Gastric Ulcer No. II)

Bank Robbery Suspect Faces Charge Today

Circumstances surrounding the robbery on July 10 of A. R. Brownwell, assistant cashier of the Pasadena National Bank, and the theft of $5800 in cash is a matter that will come before Judge Keetch today when Tony Souza, alias Billie Wallace, appears to plead to a charge of robbery.

A woman figured in the affair and three others besides the defendant are said to have been implicated. While the woman waited outside in a car, according to the report, four men entered the bank and forced the assistant cashier to lie face down on the floor while the bandits took all the cash in sight.

One other arrest has been made in the case and Souza is the first to come to trial.

Gilbert to Ask Probation for Bribe Convict

W. I. Gilbert, attorney for Aimee Semple McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, is scheduled to appear today before United States District Judge Henning and plead on an application for probation for Morris Orsatti, Italian steamship agent, who was convicted and sentenced two years ago in the court of United States District Judge Bledsoe to twenty years in Leavenworth for bribing Harold L. Dolley, former chief of the Federal prohibition service in Southern California.

Orsatti carried his fight to the President of the United States in an effort to escape punishment but was unsuccessful and a year ago surrendered himself for imprisonment.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Steps Saved

Keep your box of matches close to the stove. Don't cross the kitchen twenty times a day just for a match.

Summer Memories

About now we are wondering how we can get the grass stains out of our summer flannels. Cover the stains with glycerine and white of egg mixed, using equal quantities. Leave on for a few hours and then wash in the usual way.

Can't Get Soggy

Do you always brush over the under crust of the fruit pie with white of egg before putting in the fruit? It will prevent the fruit juice from sinking through the crust if you do and make a much nicer pie to both eat and serve.

A Good Polish

Boiled furniture will never rub into a good luster no matter how much energy is expended upon it. First wipe off the article to be polished with a cloth wrung out of warm water. Then add the polish to another cloth wrung out of warm water and rub well with the grain of the wood. Follow by rubbing briskly with a dry, soft cloth.

Trial for Two in Corona Bank Case to be Set

Trial of James E. McEniry and Irvin Jordan, former prominent bankers of Pasadena and Corona, is scheduled to be set this morning by United States District Judge James. They were arrested in May, 1925, on charges involving the Corona National Bank in which losses to depositors amounted to nearly $70,000. Both have been at liberty on bail.

Jordan is represented by Attorney John DeWeese and John Halvord is representing McEniry.

Y.W.C.A. Invites Parents to View Classes' Work

Parents and friends of the youthful mermaids who recently passed a four-fold swimming test after a period of instruction in the Young Women's Christian Association health natatorium, 941 South Figueroa street, are invited by officials of the institution to witness any of the various classes.

Novel methods have been employed there, with marked success. Each lesson is accompanied by a new game that the girls have received most enthusiastically. Fall classes for young girls are scheduled to begin next Saturday.

Instruction in clogging and soft-shoe dancing has been added to the curriculum of the Y.W.C.A. Such classes will meet every Monday at 8:15 p.m. The association announces its intention of continuing instruction in other forms of dancing, declaring it to be beneficial from a health standpoint, and an agency making for grace and poise. Classes in nature and aesthetic dancing will meet at 6:30 p.m., every Wednesday, and at 11 a.m., on Thursdays. Classes for children will meet every Saturday at 9:45 a.m.

Home Ownership

Since ancient times man has had some place he liked to call home. Particularly in Southern California, home ownership is a lure felt by all—to have a garden, a home, a garage, all of your own, to keep, to beautify; to enjoy and everlastingly to grow more fond of. Many opportunities to obtain homes, of varied type, large or small, appear in the "Real Estate" columns of the Los Angeles Times. Others prefer to start with a lot, after paying a small sum down. Thousands and tens of thousands of satisfied home owners secured their properties through Times Want Ads.

Cancellation of advertisements on-fore appearance cannot be guaran-teed to take effect until after the advertisement has appeared once. Counter-manded must be received by 3:30 p.m. for daily issue and 4 a.m. Friday for Sunday Times.

Rates for display advertising will be furnished on request.
